Virtuous Indignation.

The New York Post is very indignant at the Tribune's having sent one of its reporters to spy out the internal arrangements of the Bloomingdale Asylum. It says:

> It is a proper question whether there is any sort of limit to this method of gaining information—whether the man whom, in one case, we may be properly grateful to for adding to our stock of useful knowledge, should not, in another case, be looked upon simply as a sneak and a spy who, if he had his deserts, would be kicked into the gutter without ceremony. If we are wrong in this suggestion, if the end to be gained and not the way of gaining it is the only thing to be considered, it is well to know it, that we may all look to our kitchen doors and other back entrances, whether public, private or semi-private.
>
> As our readers know, one of these "Peeping Toms" has been spending a week or two in the Bloomingdale Asylum. Whether he reports the truth of what he has seen there is not in the least to the point, and we, for one, decline to consider it. This evidence is not admissible. It is prima facie unworthy of being heard, because of the manner taken to obtain it. The man who sneaks into your house or mine, in a disguise, on false pretences, by an appeal to our compassion, that he may find out what he could have for the asking, or what the public—which is the same thing—could have for the asking, if it has any right to it, with all the safeguards and appliances of the law to certify to its correctness—such a man is a confessed cheat and sneak, who resorts to disreputable methods to gain his end, methods unsafe and contrary to the good order and well-being of society, and we decline to listen to him.

The public have a perfect right to know how a lunatic asylum is managed and we can see nothing improper in the means taken by the Tribune to procure information. A lunatic asylum is not like a private house. The man who "sneaks" into a private house and then seeks to make public the information he gains should not be listened to, but the reporter of the Tribune does not stand in this position. The Post is simply envious.

The Price of Kisses.

A grass widow and a young unmarried man were fined $5 and costs for kissing each other while riding through the streets of Prairie du Chien, Wis., one Sabbath lately. This is equal to the hanging of a cat for desecrating the Sabbath by killing a mouse. But kissing will not languish out West in consequence. Grass widows will prove just as luscious, just as bewitchingly seductive as ever, and now that a market price is put upon their labial endearments, the "unmarried young man" will know to what amount he should beware of the widows.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage Stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Another Oregon Poet.

Oregon, since Josquin Miller was acknowledged a poet, has gone into the poet-raising business. The next aspirant for poetic fame is Stephen Maybell, the "workman poet," who attemps loftier flights than our "workman poet," Sam Booth, whose ambition it is to write ballads for the people and let others make their laws. The East Portland Democratic Era is incubating this new poet, and he is being hatched very fast. It promises to publish shortly a humorous poem entitled "Blarney, or How to Pay the Rent." It says:

> Critics who have seen the poem in manuscript, pronounce it superior in every respect to "Tam O'Shanter" or "Hudibras," and of a character that ranks ahead of those celebrated poems, noted the wide world over for their humor.

It then informs us that "Stephen Maybell, Esq.," [he seems to have dropped the "workman poet"] "is the greatest natural poet of the age." We are afraid that the daily papers of Portland, Oregon, are not strong enough or persevering enough to hatch a poet. They'll get off him and let him grow cold. The Era publishes copious extracts from the works of Stephen Maybell, Esq., and winds up nearly a column of adulation as follows;

> We give another extract, which we consider sufficient to establish all we have said in the poet's favor. It is found in "Memories," a poem that has so far withstood all criticism, and is as follows:
>
> "I see a ruined cottage now,
>   Sad, silent as the dead.
> And there where merry laughter rose,
>   Complains the owl instead:
> While through the fallen roof streams down
>   Pale Luna's lonely rays
> Upon the hearth, where gathered once
>   The lights of other days.

Withstood all criticism, has it? Let us see. Ho! Imp, bring us our keenest dissecting knife. That ruined cottage is the cheapest kind of stage scenery; the owl is an old theatrical prop, mangy from long use;

"Sad, silent as the dead,"

has been set up a million times;

"Pale Luna's lonely rays"

is out of the Waverly Magazine—any number you like to pick up;

"The lights of other days"

played out years ago, and now only used in advertisements of new kerosene oil lamps. Oh! this is a very cheap sort of poet, this Stephen Maybell, Esq.; he won't do. Drop him at once, we beseech you. He's a Hector A. Stuart, a Herbert C. Dorr, an Eliza Pittsinger in pants. Don't, don't try to encourage him in cramming his brain with poetry—in chewing up good verse and then spitting it out in a mangled form with all the flavor taken out of it. He is a shoddy machine. He even plagiarizes from Joaquin Miller:

> "I love to weave these idle thoughts,
>   Pleased am I with their gleam,
> I'm but a dreamer at the best,
>   Who cannot help but dream;
> Whose rude, untutored fingers sweep
>   The lyre's melodious string—
> Who sings and yet he knows not why,
>   Except he loves to sing."

That is nothing but Miller mangled and mutilated. Stephen Maybell, Esquire, had much better go to work and stop writing mechanical poetry.

A Very Old Theatre.

A correspondent of the Baltimore Commercial, writing of the Roman Amphitheatre at Verona says:

> It is almost equal in size, and is in a far better state of preservation, than the Coliseum at Rome, being regarded as the finest specimen extant of Roman architecture. It presents a most imposing sight, the interior having suffered but little, in consequence of the great care that has been taken to preserve it, though most of the outer circle of the arches were nearly all destroyed by an earthquake nearly six hundred years ago. The height of the building, when perfect exceeded 120 feet. It is in the form of an ellipse, the extreme length of its diameters to the outer walls being 511 and 413 feet. The length of the arena is 511 feet and in width 412 feet. The corridors, stairs and stone seats are in a remarkable state of preservation. There are forty successive tiers of granite seats, each row being one and a half feet high, the same in breadth, and accommodating twenty-five thousand people. There is no authentic information as to the founders of this work, though it is said to have been built between the reigns of Titus and Trojan. It was used for the exhibition of shows and sports in the Middle Ages, and sometimes as an arena for judicial combats. A wooden theatre is now erected in the arena, and the arches are rented out for stores by the city.

An Outraged Devil.

The devil of the Providence Herald is in a bad way; in fact, he is on the verge of insanity, and his friends expect him to become as driveling an idiot as the editor. In an editorial on "Youth and Age," it was poetically stated that "the advance of age, with its accompaniments of diminution of muscular strength, weakened sight, withered looks, grey hair and tottering steps, drove away the efflorescence of youth. All fabled fountains of youth cannot bring back the bright hopes, the roseate dreams, the brilliant and gorgeous-hued visions which have been lost—there can be no reviviscency of that glorious past youth." When the devil reached "reviviscency," he went into a corner and wept copiously. He would not be comforted, but at length he so conquered his emotion that he informed his sympathizers that he knew he must be near death, or that he was becoming imbecile since he could no longer understand the editor. He knew the editor must mean something, but he could not wool it; he consequently thought that he himself was either drifting to his grave with astonishing rapidity, or with fearful velocity becoming a first class idiot. He knew that one or the other was the case, as he was positive the editor wasn't an idiot. At latest accounts the devil was in a low state, and it is feared he may commit suicide, or kill the editor. The latter would not be regarded as a calamity in any well-thinking community. The man who could write such stuff and use a word like "reviviscency" is only fit to make stuffing for worms.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night, "Buffalo Bill" with its stirring scenes of Indian fights, surprises and sieges, and thrilling bowie-knife duel on the blazing prairie will be presented for the last time. Many who have delayed seeing this most sensational of dramas will avail themselves of the last opportunity of doing so. To-morrow evening a new version of the exciting play entitled "Neck and Neck," will be presented with the famous realistic scene of the execution. On Friday evening, E. T. Stetson will be the recipient of a well-earned benefit.

Alhambra Theatre.

Maguire's California Minstrels: Bob Hart, Cool Burgess, Charles Sutton, Delehanty and Hengler and many more, and Martin Simonsen and Mme. Fanny Simonsen will appear to-night in a very well arranged programme of songs, song and dance, amusing negro acts, operatic scenes, violin solos, etc. I. McAndrews will give his popular impersonation of "Uncle Pete," and Add Ryman's amusing "Burlesque Court Scene" will terminate the entertainment.

Maguire's Opera House.

The Fabbri Italian and German Opera combination will give their first operatic performance in costume, with full orchestra and and chorus, this evening, at Maguire's Opera House. Part first will consist of Acts I and IV of "Il Trovatore," with Signora Inez Fabbri as Leanora, L. Eissenbach as Macrico, Jacob Muller as Il Conte di Luna and Miss Mora as Inez. This will be followed by an English ballad, "Farewell," by Miss Anna Elser; a romanza by Jacob Muller in costume, and a Spanish scene, "La Naranjera," by Miss Anna Elzer, in appropriate dress. Part third will be the fourth act of "Rigoletto;" Signorina Inez Fabbri as Gilda, Miss Anna Elzer as Madeline, L. Eissenbach as the Duke, and Jacob Muller as Rigoletto. The box office will be open for the sale of tickets from 10 till 4.

Bella Union.

First part, interlude and afterpiece at this house are all lively and sparkling. Mrs. Charles Coriell's ballads and comic songs are very popular; Charles Coriell shines in farces; the Reynolds Brothers are as popular as ever; Matt Kelly and Tommy Rree are capital in the act of "The Two Banjos," and the afterpiece, "A Race for a Widow," is received with shouts of laughter.

American Theatre.

At this place of amusement for the million, the admission is only 25 cents, and an attractive melange of songs, dances, negro acts, tableaux, sensation drama, etc., is given every night. "Innocent Wives and Truant Husbands" is the last sensation.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The musical melange by the Rochada Family is a pleasing feature in the very varied entertainment given by the great combination of artistes forming Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus troupe. "Don Pedro," the monkey equestrian, is a perfect wonder, and his feats excite shouts of applause and laughter; the dancing of "Garibaldi," the Italian steed is capital; the groupings by the Carlo Brothers, assisted by Miss Fanny Carlo and M'lle Oracia, are graceful and artistic; and the finale, consisting of leaps on the French battute by the company and double somersault by Adolph Gonzales, winds up the evening's amusement in good style. There will be an extra matinee performance to-day, when the full bill will be performed and all the artistes will appear.

The Fair.

This will be the last week of the Horticultural Fair, and increased attractions will be presented. Immense pyramids, bouquets and fountains of flowers ten and twelve feet high have been constructed. Newman's exhibit of silk-culture, cocoons, silk worms, feeding and spinning, reeling of silk from the cocoons, etc., will be at the Hall all this week. Grand concert every afternoon and evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at these lovely pleasure grounds are so numerous that thousands visit them during the week. Next Sunday there will be a popular entertainment and a balloon ascension.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here

A Little Diplomatist.

Some one says that little girls are only "small women." One whom we know, aged seven years, proved this the other day. Her father and mother are separated, and she is being brought up by her grandmother. Jenny goes to see her father and mother by turns. After returning from her weekly visit to the latter, her grandmother said, "Now, Jenny, tell me; which do you love best, your father or your mother?" "You see, grandma," replied Jenny, "When I am with mamma I tell her I love her best, and then when I am with papa I say I love him best; but really I love one just as much as the other, and you best of all."

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

An Old Landmark.

The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N.E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. x

A "Condemned" Surprise Party.

Those surprise parties, somehow, nearly always turn out unpleasantly. They tell about one that came off up in Connecticut recently which was not half as joyous as a well-conducted funeral. It was reported of a man and his wife, who had been married for many years without having any children, that they had at last been made happy by the birth of a daughter. Some of their friends determined to give the man a presentation surprise party. So about forty persons marched up to the house one evening carrying a cradle and lots of gum rings, and bibs, and bottles with gum nozzles, and a baby carriage, and some little night-gowns, and a coral armlet, and a gross of soothing-syrup, and socks, and paregoric. And they all burst into the parlor at once on tiptoe. And when the man, in amazement, asked them what they meant by such conduct, they said they were coming in quietly so as not to wake the baby. And when he blushed and stammered, and asked, "What baby?" they said his baby, and began to hand him the things, and to load him up with soothing-syrup and gum-rings, until he got mad and floored one of the guests with a quart bottle of paregoric, and held him down until he explained. And then it was revealed that it was all a mistake about that little daughter; that no such arrival had taken place at all, but that the report was false. And then the surprise party was a great deal more surprised than the man was; and the guests gathered up that infant furniture, and tried to pretend to the man that they never thought he had a daughter, but that they understood he had accepted a position as a director of an orphan asylum, and that they had brought around a few things for him to distribute among the poor, fatherless children. The man said it was singularly thin, and then the company went home. The Constitutional Convention ought to adopt some kind of a measure to prevent these mistakes.

A Widow's Plaint.

A fine chance presents itself in Pittsburgh for some chivalrous bachelor who wishes to marry. One of the papers of that city contains the following advertisement:

> WANTED—A brave-hearted man who has buffeted the storms of life, and did not tremble for the issue when the troubles came. Must be refined and respectable, middle-aged and discreet.
>
> Wilt thou leave me in my anguish,
>   Groping on through life alone?
> Shall I, weak and trembling, languish,
>   With no arm around me thrown?
> Address WIDOW.

If there is a spark of manliness and honor in the universe, she shan't. She shall have an arm around her thrown so that she will not "weak and trembling, languish." If we had a spare arm which would come off we would come and would express it out to her ourselves, so that she could throw it around her, herself. It will be an outrage, however, if somebody else does not volunteer. There are 486,000 more men than women in the country, and a few of these ought to embrace this opportunity to pair off. How would it do, for instance, if the whole 486,000 touched to the soul by that affecting appeal, should rush for the widow and each throw an arm around her. Could she possibly "weak and trembling languish," with 486,000 "arms around her thrown?" She might, but certainly she she would not, grope through life alone! No woman can honestly be said to grope through life alone when she has 486,000 human beings hovering around her. So we hope she will hear from them all.

Mrs. Hillard, of Rockport, Ill., recently horsewhipped a Baptist minister named Archer, who had aimed at her the poisonous shaft of calumny.

Some citizens of Concordia, Mo., watching for the comet, thought it was upon 'em, tail and all, as a boy's kite floated over the scene.

A fastidious Alabama boy shot his father because the latter didn't purchase him as good a pair of boots as he wanted.

An Evansville, Ind., man left $500,000 to start a spiritual seminary.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

THE THREE BELLS.

Beneath the low hung night clouds
  That rake her splintering mast
The good ship settles slowly,
  The cruel leak gains fast.

Over the awful ocean
  Her signal guns peal out.
Dear God! was that Thy answer
  From the horror round about?

A voice came down the wild wind,
  "Ho! ship ahoy!" its cry:
"Our stout Three Bells of Glasgow Shall stand till daylight by!"

Hour after hour crept slowly,
  Yet on the heaving swells
Tossed up and down the ship-lights,
  The lights of the Three Bells.

And ship to ship made signal,
  Man answered back to man,
While oft, to cheer and hearten,
  The Three Bells nearer ran;

And the captain from her taffrail
  Sent down his hopeful cry,
"Take heart! hold on!" he shouted,
  "The Three Bells shall stand by!"

All night across the waters
  The tossing lights shone clear;
All night from reeling taffrail
  The Three Bells sent her cheer.

And when the dreary watches
  Of storm and darkness passed,
Just as the wreck lurched under,
  All souls were saved at last.

Sail on, Three Bells, forever,
  In grateful memory sail!
Ring on, Three Bells of rescue,
  Above the wave and gale!

As thine, in night and tempest,
  I hear the Master's cry,
And, tossing through the darkness,
  The lights of God draw nigh!

Rearing a Hoodlum.

The baby happened once in a pretty caprice to slap father's face instead of kissing him when he stooped down for his greeting. Papa and mamma laughed, aunties laughed and baby thought he had hit a happy idea. And after that he would slap papa instead of kissing him. Papa was very well content to feel the soft little waxen touch against his cheek. And it was very funny. It was also a nice little show for friends when they came in. Baby could at any time win a round of applause by visiting an expectant cheek with a blow for a kiss. He was such a sweet plaything. But there came a time when he ceased to be a plaything. What had been only arch and cute became downright rude. If he now mortified his parents by his rude, boorish manner as a little boy, he was doing precisely what they had taught him when he was a little baby.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance old stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. ▲

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.—We give up a large portion of our space to our Australian letter condensing Eastern, Pacific Coast and Local departments. Though, by accident to our forms yesterday, half a case of the paper was "pied," we hope our readers will not find any serious deficiency in this issue of FIGARO.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—We think it was my Lord Tomnoddy who, having exhausted all other sensations went to a hanging, and swore

To see a man swing at the end of a string
Is you know, gads my life, of course, quite a new thing.

If he did'nt say that he said something like it. This is what the people of San Francisco think now, so they go and see "Neck and Neck," which will be played at the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow night.

THE ALHAMBRA.—At the matinee to day and to-morrow night Mr. and Mrs. Simonsen and Maguire's California Minstrels, comprising Bob Hart, Cool Burgess, Add Ryman, Charles Sutton, Delehanty and Hengler, and many others will repeat the programme which has delighted so many during the week. A new entertainment will be presented on Monday.

MAGUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—A very large and fashionable audience assembled last night to hear the performance of "Lucrezia Borgia," by the Fabbri Opera Troupe. Signora Inez Fabbri by splendid singing and acting in the title role confirmed the good opinion already formed of her abilities and proved herself an artiste of great talent. J. Muller rang and acted the role of Duke Alphonso finely throughout and electrified the audience by his magnificent rendition of "Vieni la mia Vendetta;" Miss Anna Elzer made a charming Orsini and gained much applause and a most enthusiastic encore for her rendition of the famous brindisi in the last act. L. Eisenbach as Gennaro did his best singing in the trio with Signorina Fabbri and J. Muller. The fine tenor voice of M. Goarles and the excellent style in which he rendered the role of Rustighello were generally admired. M. Charles has a good voice and is a true artist. M. Roncovieri as Gubetta sang and acted with much power. The chorus was better than usual; the opening chorus of the last act was given with good effect. Altogether the performance gave great pleasure. It will be repeated on Sunday evening. On Tuesday "Ernani" will be performed and "Martha" is in preparation.

BELLA UNION.—A Great Saturday night bill has been prepared at this house. Among its many attractive features, may be mentioned "Sweet Spirit hear my Prayer," by Mrs Charles Coriell; "Captain Jinks" and other things by George Reynolds; "San Jose Band," by George Reynolds, J. H. Larkin, Johnny Tuers and Tommy Bree; the burlesque opera of "Lucrezia Borgia," and the one-act drama of "Matteo Falcone; or, the Brigand's Oath."

NEW AMERICAN THEATRE.—H. Howard, Hughey Morton, Flora Emerson, May Leroy, Josie Mayfield and a host of other popular variety artistes appear nightly in a melange of songs, acts and dances, and in the three sensational plays the casts of which appear on our first page.

CHIARINI'S ROYAL ITALIAN CIRCUS.—An extraordinary programme of equestrian and gymnastic acts will be performed at the matinee today and again this evening. There will be a performance to-morrow night.

PLATT'S HALL.—Miss Annette Ince's complimentary farewell benefit will take place on Monday at Platt's Hall. John McCullough, Owen Marlowe, Mrs. Julia Melville, Vernon Lincoln, L. J. Lewis, and M. Y. Ferrer, will all appear in a varied entertainment of songs, recitations and instrumental solos. W. Z. McDougall will act as conductor and director. Tickets for reserved seats can be secured at the hall on Monday without extra charge. Miss Annette Ince has so many friends and is so highly appreciated by the public that a large attendance may be expected.

CITY GARDENS.—The Butcher's Picnic.—There will be an immense entertainment at the City Gardens to-morrow. The Butchers of San Francisco and adjacent towns will hold a grand picnic and barbecue. Oxen will be roasted whole and all will be invited to partake. In addition to this the Buisley Family will give a performance in the Pavilion and, to crown all, an ascension will made in the new mammoth balloon "City of San Francisco," just completed at a cost of $1,200.

HAYES PARK.—PICNIC TO-MORROW.—There are certain nationalities who manage al fresco amusements better than Americans. Mexican festivities of this description are always pleasant. On Sunday next the Mexican military company called Guardia De Juarez will give a grand picnic and ball at Hayes Park, in commemoration of the Sixty-second Anniversary of Mexican Independence, when this company will parade for the first time, and be reviewed by Dr. Isaac Rivas, Mexican Consul. The band of the Second Artillery has been engaged for the occasion. An advertisement appears in another column.

THE HORTICULTURAL FAIR.—This will be the last night of the Horticultural Fair, and increased attractions will be presented. Immense pyramids, bouquets and fountains of flowers ten and twelve feet high have been constructed. Newman's exhibit of silk-culture, cocoons, silk worms, feeding and spinning, reeling of silk from the cocoons, etc., will be at the Hall all this week. Grand concert every afternoon and evening.

BENEFIT OF MISS MINNIE WALTON.—On Thursday evening, September 19th, Miss Minnie Walton, the charmingly natural, soubrette actress and pleasing vocalist, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall, and make her first appearance in three months. A concert will be given by the best vocal and instrumental performers in the city. Miss Minnie Walton is such a general favorite, that Pacific Hall is sure to be thronged on this occasion.

SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—This admirable society will receive a benefit at the Horticultural Hall on Monday. There will be a great vocal and instrumental concert, and the Floral exhibition will be given for the last time. All who have dumb animals should join in this benefit and strengthen the hands of their friends and protectors.

BADGER'S CENTRAL PARK, OAKLAND.—Charles Alcer's Metropolitan Band will give an instrumental concert at these gardens to-morrow. On Monday, the annual picnic and target excursion of the Manhattan Guard, Captain H. Dobson commanding, will be held at this favorite resort.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—M. Perrier, the wonderful athlete, has been engaged and will appear to-morrow. Among other terrific feats of strength he will perform that of lifting a 200 pound grizzly bear with his teeth. The infant skaters, Jenny Bishop and Ally Peplow, will also appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

THE DALLES, O.—The Vivian-Gangain-Gerretta-Montague Troupe performed on the 5th and 6th.

VANCOUVER.—Charles Vivian, M'lle Marie Gangain, M'lle Garretta, and Ed Montague, under the management of Mr. Church, gave an entertainment on the 4th. The company is to be increased by talent from San Francisco and will then open at the Walla Walla Theatre.

PORTLAND.—The theatre was opened for the Fall and Winter season on the 7th by G. B. Waldron and the company whose names we have already published. The play was "Macbeth" with G. B. Waldron as the Thane, and Mrs. O. P. Stewart as Lady Macbeth. The Oregonian says, "Mrs. Stewart is one of the most accomplished Lady Macbeths on the Pacific Coast." We always thought Lady Macbeth's greatest accomplishment was murder. Nick Hockgortel reopened the Theatre Comique on the 11th, with Ella La Rue, George Wallace, Zadie Zelmar, and others. Maria Zoe and Miss Fanny Garistsoa go up to join the company on the steamer which leaves to day.

SACRAMENTO.—Mrs Adams will exhibit herself and political panoramas at the theatre this evening. If amusements are slack now there will be enough next week when the Fair commences. The Bee says:

John Wilson, the veteran of the arena, has succeeded in New York city in engaging a host of performers for his grand combination of the European, New York and California Circuses, with the Asiatic menagerie of trained animals, dogs, monkeys and goats, at an enormous expense, and with new paraphernalia, trapping, costumes and equipments.

Wilson has secured the whole of the Plaza, and a lot at the corner of Eighth and K streets. The Proctor company will open the theatre, and there will be many other entertainments.

STOCKTON.—The Theatre was opened by the Proctor company on the 10th. It is composed of the following artistes: John Wilson, J. C. Williamson, E. Plympton, E. N. Thayer, O. Edmonds, Miss Kate Denin, Miss Minnie Walton, Mrs. O. Edmunds, Miss Belle Chapman, Mrs. J. Reiffarth and Miss Nettie Lloyd. "Arrah-na-Pogue" was produced on Thursday evening. A circus has been performing during the week.

SALT LAKE.—Miss Ada Gray made her first appearance in "Article 47" on the 2d, and played through the week, closing her engagement on the 7th in "Who's Wife?" Miss Jean Clara Walters has been engaged for the Fall and Winter season as leading lady.

RENO.—Conklin Brothers Great Philadelphia Circus, Samwells' trained animals, etc., showed on the 13th.

GOLD HILL.—Conklin Brothers Great Philadelphia Circus and combination of shows, performed on the 10th to the largest assemblage ever seen there. The News says there were nearly fifteen hundred persons present. This paper is loud in its praises of the performance and says:

M'lle Sansea performed most excellently on the trapeze, perpendicular rope, flying rings, etc., and did some very fine riding. She is a marvel of female gymnastry, to say nothing of natural beauty.

It also says Pete Conklin is "a glorious clown, far above the average."

VIRGINIA CITY—Conklin Brothers' circus showed on the 11th and 12th.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

At the Olympic, New York, "The Red Pocket-Book" was produced on the 2d. The World says:

A dreadfully sensational drama, with the not very attractive title of "The Red Pocket-Book," was produced last evening at the Olympic Theatre. It is not a very clever translation of a French melodrama with the same name, and its chief aim to attention is the attempt to represent in the second act "The good ship Minerva," as the bill has it, which good ship is at sea, and tumbles about very comfortably with the whole company of the theatre on her deck, and after buffeting the waves in a very gallant manner long enough for the characters to speak their lines, takes fire and with a loud explosion is engulfed with the stock company in the remorseless bowels of the stage. The play is in four acts. Its plot is simple. One man steals a red pocket-book and murders the owner; another man suffers for the crime. Justice in the last act claims her own by means of the red pocket book. Then the right man suffers and the spectators are happy. The human means by which this interesting story is illustrated are Neil Warner (Innocence), J. E. Nagle (Villainy), and a number of less brilliant players who doubtless mean as well but are not so fortunate in their powers of expression. As a calamity "The Red Pocket-Book" is a masterly success. The descent of the whole cast into the cellar is one of the most brilliant realistic effects of the already brilliant season.

The New York World of the 2d inst. has the following:

Emerson's California Minstrels made their appearance last evening at Tine Edwin's Theatre under the management of Messrs. Emerson and Maguire. The troupe is a very large one, including in its numbers the notable Ben Cotton, a favorite minstrel comedian, and Billy Emerson, one of the best song and dance performers that this business can boast of. The entertainment abounded in good music and genuine negro drolleries about which there is an acceptable old-fashioned smack that seemed to please the audience immensely. As this is the is the only minstrel troupe now left on lower Broadway and is in many respects the best of them all, we presume it will meet with all the success it deserves.

Jule Kent, clown, will be added to James Robinson's Circus at the commencement of the brief season at the corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth street, on September 9th.

P. T. Barnum has leased the iron building in Fourteenth street, New York, formerly occupied by Lent's Circus, and will open it early in the fall with equestrian performances. It is said that he will erect a building for the exhibition of wild animals adjacent thereto.

William Aymer, clown, is in New York, having filled his engagement with Newton Brothers' Forest City Circus.

Tony Pastor's Opera House is announced to be reopened for the regular season on Sept. 16th, with the following chief members of the company: Jennie Engel, serio-comic; Kittie Leroy, jig dancer; Clara Brooks, from London, Eng., character vocaliste; Celia Ford, vocalist; Gus Williams, Dutch Comique; Harrigan and Hart, character duettists; Billy Carter, banjoist; Hen. Mason and Harry Hernell, Ethiopian comedians; Johnny Manning, Irish comedian; Frank Girard, general performer; Charles Seebart, Marie and Amelia Gorenflo, and Tony Pastor.

Charles R. Thorne, Jr., may possibly play a few star engagements during the coming season, but declines becoming a member of any stock company.

Leo. Hudson, equestrian actress is in New York.

Milton Nobles, aided by some amateur performers, inaugurated Harder's Opera House, at Port Huron, Mich., on Aug. 22d. A second performance was given on the 29th, and a third and last one is announced for the coming season at Aiken's Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

Lawrence Barrett appeared at the Brooklyn Academy on August 30th to a rather slim house, the play being "Julius Cæsar," with Barrett as Cassius, Robinson as Brutus, and Shewell as Marc Antony.

Charles E. Collins, alias "The Cure," who has an extensive acquaintance with profession people, has leased the café adjoining the Olympic Theatre. A formal opening was given on Saturday evening, August 31st, which was largely attended. Among the guests were Dan Bryant, Nelse Seymour, Harry Eytinge, C. R. Thorne, Jr., J. E. Whiting, Harry Wall, Sam Colville, H. H. Pratt, and numerous other professional persons and prominent citizens.

"Le Roi Carrotte," in spite of gorgeous scenery and a good deal of music, has not made what may be termed a hit at the Grand Opera House. The Dramatic News devotes about two columns to criticising this production. We make the following extract:

Of the principal persons engaged in this burlesque upon the name of opera, the praise naturally rests with Miss Rose Hersee, who makes a pretty and lovable Evening Star. She sang her music with correctness, expression, and a natural vivacity which was pleasing. Her reception was most enthusiastic. Miss Emma Howson, as Princess Cunegonde, was as cold and unsympathetic as it was possible to imagine. We cannot understand why she dressed for the last act with exactly the same costume, even to the gloves, as she used in the "Grande Duchesse" at the Union Square Theatre. The part tо dressed very differently in the original. The whole weight of the piece rested upon the exertions of Mrs. John Wood, and it is sufficient to say that she infused it with a vim that reminded us of former triumphs. Of John Brougham we can only say that as John Brougham he was a success, but as King Carrotte he was a stupendous failure.

It is announced that "Sensational" McCloskey will soon start on a tour through the country with a well selected company, who will assist in the representation of his effusions.

The Boston Museum opened on the 2d, with Wm. Warren, Charles Barron, H. Hardenbergh, R. F. McClannin, Hart Conway, J. A. Smith, Fred Williams, J. H. Ring, J. Burrows, N. Salisbury, Annie Clark, Fannie Marsh, Mrs. J. R. Vincent, Mrs. Fred Williams, Amy Ames, Nellie Morant, Fannie Skerritt, M. Parker, Nellie Dowling, Miss Brown, Nellie Watkins, Josie Wright, C. H. Frye, J. Nolan, H. N. Wilson, J. R. Pitman, Frank Carles, R. H. Lucas, Marden Ryan, S. W. Standish, W. S. Mason and J. N. Roberts. Treasurer, W. Blatchford; stage manager, Fred Williams; prompter, J. B. Pitman; leader of orchestra, E. N. Catlin. "The School for Scandal" was the opening piece. "Masks and Faces," with Miss Fanny Morant in the leading role, was presented on the 9th.

Fechter returned from Europe on the 26th.

Jane Reignold returned from England on the 25th. She will be leading lady at the Varieties, New Orleans.

Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, opens regular season, September 21st, under Mrs. John Drew.

Edwin Adams, Louisville, September 2d, two weeks.

Edwin Booth started with his company Sept. 11 and played at Norfolk, Conn, 11th; thence to Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Worcester, Springfield, Lowell, Lynn, Providence, New Bedford, Lawrence and Salem, where he will be 25th and 26th. After New England the route will be through New Jersey and thence West.

Ole Bull, the violinist, will make a tour of the world it is said. His business man is Mr. Toroball. The names people will.

"Pygmalion and Galatea;" Gilbert's comedy, which met with such an emphatic success in London, is in preparation at Wallack's Theatre. Mr. E. A. Sothern is superintending its production.

Augustin Daly, who is lessee of the Fifth Avenue Theatre and Grand Opera House of New York and the Chestnut Street Theatre of Philadelphia, will, in a measure conduct these establishments by telegraph, his principal office being in the Grand Opera House. A wire is already in operation between the metropolitan houses.

Charley Howard, the inimitable personator of old darkey characters, dutifully reports to FIGARO from the American Theatre, Pittsburgh, under date of September 1st. He closed a very successful engagement there, and went to Cleveland, Ohio, to open on the 15th. On the 14th prox. he will commence an engagement of three weeks at the Howard Athenæum, Boston.

The Theatre Comique, Washington, is doing a rushing business. It is beautifully decorated, and has a good company comprising Miss Marion Taylor, burlesque actress, James H. Milborn, Otto Burbank and many others.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital London, and the last twelve years of San Francisco. DR. TOZER informs the afflicted that after visiting all the HOSPITALS IN LONDON AND PARIS and spending one year in the most celebrated Hospital in London, the LOCK, he has reopened his old Medical Institute at the old stand, where he can always be found. DR. TOZER has for forty years met with unparalleled success in the treatment of disease generally known as CHRONIC AND SPECIAL COMPLAINTS.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER is in every way responsible, binding himself to effect a permanent CURE, or making no charges. Those who cannot afford to pay for advice and medicine will be charged for medicine only. THE MONTHLY RESTORATIVE PILLS, never known to fail in giving relief in cases for which they are recommended, are to be obtained only at my office. Price $5 per box. Full direction on each box, sent by Express or otherwise.

DR. TOZER does not imitate the advertising Quacks who make it a practice to publish false affidavits and other false references, but refers to the most respectable people in the State, whom he has CURED of diseases which others have failed to cure.

THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

G. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor. California and Davis sts.
E. G. Mathews, Grain Merchant, 298 Davis st.

LETTER FROM AUSTRALIA.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, July 20th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—The present state of the mail service between this colony and the Pacific slope is not on anything like a satisfactory basis. Our Parliament has most positively declined to ratify the arrangements entered into between our late Chief Secretary, the representative of New Zealand, and Mr. Jas. Webb, the reason being that in the preliminary negotiations we have been overreached. How my communications will in future reach you I know not; but if all other means fail, the Suez route will always remain open. This will reach you per Nebraska, to call early next month from Auckland.

I shall first refer to our past and present doings in the dramatic world since my last communication, and will then allude to the future.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE,

Under the management of Messrs. Lyster & Cagli, is now nearly at the close of its second subscription season. Success has deservedly attended their efforts to meet the requirements of our dilettanti opera frequenters. Only one or two comic operas have been given, and though everything has been presented regardless of expense, no startling novelties have been produced. Mr. Lyster, who takes his benefit on the 12th proximo, may depend upon a crammed house, as he is the most popular impresario we have ever had here, and it is owing almost solely to his pluck and energy that opera has taken such a firm hold as one of the most fashionable and elevating of our amusements.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL

Has been (and most successfully) made the home of light comedy. Robertson's plays have been in the ascendant lately, and with good success to the treasury. "School" ran for five weeks to excellent houses all through, but crammed nightly the first three weeks. The last comedy by the same author, entitled "M. P.," was produced on Saturday, and was received with enthusiasm by a crowded audience. John Dunn (Rascal Jack) made a great hit as Isaac Sorcome, the would-be M. P. The cast, which is one of the best to be obtained this side of the water, comprises Appleton, Ireland, Sefton, Dunn, Greville, Con Warde, Hattie Sheppard, and Eleanor Carey. Anna Forde does the "Rustic Prima Donna" for the concluding portion of the programme. In a fortnight from this the company go to Adelaide to appear in Robertson's comedies.

THE POLYTECHNIC HALL

Is still presided over by a commonwealth, whose names I gave you in my last. They have worked hard, and well deserve the success that has attended their efforts. During the season Mr. G. W. Collier, who in times past at the old Theatre Royal showed unmistakable possession of considerable histrionic talent of a high order, has grown in public favor, not by the flatteries of friends but by his really excellent acting, which has been flatteringly commented on by the entire press of the city, and which, it is to be hoped, will not cause him to relax in his efforts to attain a high position on the stage of this colony. Melodrama has been the principal attraction.

NEW TEMPERANCE HALL,

Which is one of the handsomest buildings in this city, is occupied by the talented Kennedy Family, who have been playing to crowded houses for the past five weeks in their entertainment on "The Songs of Scotland." The company consist of Kennedy pere, J. and D. Kennedy and the Misses M. and Bessie Kennedy. Their audiences are increasing every night, and their numerous changes of programme are really astonishing.

OPERA COMIQUE AND CITY LOUNGE,

Which is the lower St. George's Hall, originally the Wax Works Exhibition, has been opened in a really splendid style, by Mr. William Smith of Ballarat, with Mr. H. B. Wilton as manager. Amongst the company engaged are Messrs. J. J. Daniels, E. Amery, J. Stewart, F. Leathwood, F. Buckhan and Miss Emma Weippert, (Mrs Wilow). The difficult to obtain good "variety show" talent is in this city severally felt, but arrangements have already been made with Charles Holly and Buckley.

ST. JAMES' HALL

Formerly Dr. Jerdan's Anthropological Museum, has been leased, renovated and opened as a concert hall, by Mr. F. Teplin, formerly proprietor of the burnt down Varieties. He has an excellent company on hand, including T. Campbell-Romoro, (Alf McFarren), W. White, Harry Rogers and Frank Adams, Miss Alice Trees and Miss Florence Celzado, and as Trapeze performers, M'lle Zulu, C. Verlette and Albertiol Brothers.

ROYAL COLOSEUM.

Is still open with a Japanese Troupe and a moderate company of the fourth rate talent, and is still the rendezvous of the scum of our population. It is only a coffee and liquor lounge now, and has therefore lost much of its attractions in the way of being a boozing ken for roughs to meet, consult and concert in.

THE WAX WORKS EXHIBITION

Is one of the standard shows of this town, and is worthy of being ranked on a par with that of the famed Madame Tussaud's in London. Mr. Kreitmayer, its energetic proprietor, is adding almost weekly to the already large collection. To meet the increasing demands for novelties, he has just engaged a series of dissolving views.

THE NEW THEATRE ROYAL

Is now fast approaching completion, and will it is expected, be ready for opening early in November next. The new lessees will be Messrs. Geo. Coppin, Harwood, Stewart and Hennings, and the opening stars (if engagements are possible) are to Mr. Barry Sullivan and Miss Glynn. Mr. Harwood has already left for London to make this and other important arrangements. The company engaged, will include Miss Sheppards, Miss Cary, Miss Wooldridge, Mrs. Bryce, Miss Fanny Bryer, Miss Nelly Stewart and Miss Maggie Stewart. Messrs. Appleton, Ireland, Greville, Con Warde, Sefton, Taylor, R. Stewart and Harwood. Mr. Hennings will have charge of the scene painting department, and Mr. F. Coppin the band.

THE NEW PRINCE OF WALES

Will open next month under the direction of Mrs. Gladstane. It is without exception the prettiest and most comfortable theatre we have ever yet had in Melbourne. The company already engaged includes Messrs. James Carden, (for leading man), Tom Lewis, James Milne, Lionel Harding, Miss Rose Cooper and Mrs. Alfred Phillips.

PRINCESS THEATRE,

Under the management of Messrs. Stuart, O'Brien and H. Holmes, will open the dramatic season in the middle of August with one of the strongest companies we have had at this house, among those already engaged are Messrs. O'Brien, G. B. Steele, R. Roberts, John Munro and Leston; Mesdames Adelaide Bowring, Eloise Juno, Polly Leake and Mrs. Holmes. The management have already accepted three dramatic works from local authors. A play by Marcus Clarke, the name and plot as yet unknown; a play called "The Puritan's Revenge," by J. C. Patterson, one of our ablest writers, and and a burlesque on "Rip Van Winkle" by the same talented author.

DRAMATIC EXODUS AND ARRIVALS.

By the last mail for India Mr. G. W. B. Lewis left for Calcutta to open a new dramatic season there, and with him he has taken his wife (Miss Rose Edouin), Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Lawrence (Miss Zerry George), Mr. Macsergh the Irish comedian, Mr. Leonard and Mr. James. Several members of his company are already in India awaiting his arrival. By the Baroda, which arrived here on Saturday last, we have the advent of Mr and Mrs. Benoee, who have gained some celebrity in India and China as dramatic artistes. They have not yet closed as to their first appearance.

BALLARAT.

The Theatre Royal has been lately occupied by the Agatha States Opera Troupe who closed on Saturday last a very lucrative season. On the same evening Mr. E. C. Moore who has lately returned from England with a troupe of male and female gymnasts, comic and sensational singers, which he has styled the Magnet Troupe, introduced at the Alfred Hall to the largest audience numbering some three thousand, ever assembled in the building. F. Clifton, the comic singer, was voted exceedingly vulgar; the others were an immense success. The members of the company are Miss Lettie and her brothers Frank and Victor, gymnasts; Fanny Sara, sensational, and an excellent voice in imitation of Simms Reeves, and F. Clifton. They are likely to make a hit.

CASTLEMAIN

The Theatre Royal is occupied by Foley and his clever little family of comedians. Foley has left the circus biz—too much for him as he is getting an old man. Gifts of china tea pots, etc., is one of the attractions of the show. Keith and Phillips' menagerie is also in this city and doing very well.

GEELONG.

Madame Agatha States with her opera company including Miss Lucy Chambers, Mrs. H. J. Fox, and Signors Orlandini, Susini, Cecchi and Mr E. Farley, with Signor Giorza as director and accompanyist are now appearing at the Mechanics Institute. In giving their operas they dispense with band and chorus. Cora di Lamonde, magicienne, played to very good audiences at the same place.

SANDHURST.

The new Theatre Royal is doing but moderate business with a scratch company and Miss Ada Hart, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. West and Mr. H Stanley. "Aurora Floyd" and the burlesque of "Alladin" is the staple of the programme presented. The Theatre Royal orderly room is tenanted by Mr. J. Rainer with his panorama of the American War.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Sydney—The Victoria Theatre is now under the direction of J. J. Bartlett, lately one of the lessees of the Opera House which was burned down some time since. The new season at the Victoria was inaugurated by the production of a a new play by Walter Cooper entitled "Hazard" in which Frank Hussey essays with considerable ability the characters of Tatsell, a gambler; and Jake, a colored gemman. Frank has made an immense hit as he is called before the curtain at the end of each act. The cafe Chantant, to be in future called the Theatre Royal, Sydney, has been giving a variety entertainment to excellent business.

N. S. W.

Newcastle—The Theatre Royal at July 23d last, was open under the management of Mr. J. C. Byers and Miss Julie Hodson. The company includes G. Dillon, J. H. Clifford, and others. "The Bottle" and such other moral dramas is the pabulum placed before the audience.

Geelong—Business has been dull in this town. The theatre is rented by E. Holloway, W. H. Cosrey and Harry Power. Besides these gentleman the company includes Mr. Thayer and Miss Joe-Gougenheim.

Theodore's Microscopic Wonders has been doing this district and with considerable success.

QUEENSLAND.

Throughout this northern colony things have been very blue for the theatrical and musical profession, and with but slight present prospects for improvement. Dates are July 20th. In Brisbane, at the Royal Victoria Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell (late Mrs. Robert Heir) are giving their duologue entertainment called "Darrell's Delights," including a short comedy, "The Mexican Tigress," scenes from Shakspeare, and character singing by Mrs. Derrell. A variety company occupies the School of Arts, including Horace Best, Alec O'Brien, John Collins, Frank Brown, Alf. Carroll and Lizzie Rowland. Rockhampton has not held out any inducements to newer talent with a chance of their making a living. The town is now thoroughly broke for amusements—not worth visiting.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

The Cerendial Family, with Walter Sherwin and and Henry Gordon, a basso of some repute, have been giving a series of concerts in the Adelaide Town Hall, with good professional and pecuniary results. They now propose a tour through the South Australia provinces. The Draeger Family of male and female instrumentalists are also doing the interior.

TASMANIA.

The "Blue Tail Fly" Berlow, accompanied by Messrs. Charles Holly and W. Buckley, cloggists and jig dancers, has recently made a tour of the island. Business not very good; the two latter have returned to Melbourne. Berlow does the island again with his single-band entertainment.

NEW ZEALAND.

According to the latest dates, the prospects for the members of the sock and buskin in this colony are brightening. New theatres are being built or contemplated in Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch and Dunedin. Already negotiations are pending with artists in Sydney and Melbourne to join a company to make the three latter places a circuit. Mr. Morton Tavares has this plan in contemplation but from the scarcity of talent here the prospect of getting a really tolerable company are very remote. Mons. Fleury is in Melbourne on the same errand for another autrepreneur. The stock company at the Princess's, Dunedin, are playing "No Thoroughfare." At Christchurch, Prof. Haselmeyer was giving his entertainment at the Music Hall. At Auckland, Miss Aitkin has given her farewell readings; she shortly goes to California. Prof. Carr, mesmerist, was doing well at the Prince of Wales Theatre.

THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge.

What a Juvenile Genius Came To.

Talk about natural talent. Look at this, won't you? Twenty-six years ago an infant prodigy was discovered by his intelligent, but too indulgent parents, climbing up the pedals of a piano. They immediately decided that the child had a natural gift. Well, he was put under instruction until he finally ran through and through seventeen of the greatest masters, all of whom saw the natural plant shooting out with the most gratifying vigor. Then he went to ten Conservatories, then to Europe, then all round the world, then to the North Pole, finally to New Jersey. Here he suddenly disappeared Nobody seemed seemed to know anything about him, Rumors went the rounds that he he had quietly retired, the more effectually to grrpple with the natural gift, and reduce it to some kind of subjection. Years assed on and still the prodigy grappled. At length we gave him up—when who should suddenly fall upon us but he his identical self. We are happy to record that he is now a rising and efficient barber! We we were not prepared for it, but he is none the less a barber.

Warlike F-ns.

The Japanese soldiers use their fans as weapons on the battle field. They are made of paper, but are larger than usual, and have a sheath of iron. When the Japanese Achilles has slain his Hector, he sits down to rest and cool himself by means of his fan; and if disturbed and unexpectedly attacked, he immediately tomahawks his adversary with the doubly serviceable instrument. These fans are adorned with the national emblem—a red sun on a black ground.

The Howson Family.

The Brooklyn Programme says:

The Howson Family is a decidedly musical one. While Emma has distinguished herself as prima donna in English opera; Frank is conductor of Mrs. James. A. Oates' burlesque troupe, of which John is a singing comedian. Emma is the soprano of a church choir—St. Stephen's Church. Twenty-eighth street. The father of the Howsons was a famous musician.

Nice Little Boy.

"Uncle Charles, said Jimmy, a six-year old, the other day, "can you tell me why the sun sets in the West at night and rises in the morning?"

"Pshaw," said Uncle Charles, "the first fool you meet can tell you that." "Yes Uncle,', replied the sweet boy, "that's why I asked you."

Special to the Ladies.

Mrs Schloss begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that the grand opening day of her magnificent new stock of Fall Millinery will take lace on Thursday, the 19th inst. The exhibition will display the very latest Paris and New York styles of hats and bonnets, and also a most elegant assortment of feathers, flowers, velvets, ribbons and laces ever imported to this market. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—4?4 Kearny street, near Pine. P

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Heathenism in England.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has caused considerable excitement by stating in a speech before a Missionary society that while England was attempting to convert heathens to Christianity, the heathens in England were doing much towards converting Englishmen to heathenism. The Primate referred to high-class heathen gentlemen. He said:

London was full of such specimens. One might see there, any day a cavalcade of some six carriages bearing the Burmese ambassadors, absolute heathens, who have come to do their homage to the greatness of of England. Then in the Temple where the familiar sight of our barristers with their peculiar costume used formerly to be the only thing we saw, The eyes of a Christian were now shocked by the spectacle of some sixty Hindoos, members of the Temple of Lincoln's Inn, still remaining Hindoos and heathen in the centre of English civilization.

The Archbishop is really alarmed at the effect these heathen may have on English society. He says:

The danger is a real and imminent one. Why? Because Christianity has set up claims that are controverted by experience. One of these claims is that a Christian is a better man than a heathen; these learned and excellent heathen come here, and people say they are as good as any Christian is and they are thus compelled to confess that one, at least, of the claims of the Christianity is false; and, still worse, these heathen are such pleasant people that when one comes to know them he rather likes them, and thus the pestilent feeling of toleration is born and nurtured!

It really won't do for Christians to investigate too closely the belief held by some these heathen. The Archbishop of Canterbury Primate of all England acknowledges it. If these gentlemen make an attempt at proselytizing, steps must be taken to render their efforts of no avail. If they publish copies of their Scriptures in England they must be seized and burned. Something must be done. The Archbishop has our sympathy.

More Trouble.

DEAR FIGARO:—Squiggins is out of the way. He troubles me no more. But still I am not happy. Kate is kind, but not affectionate. I am not sure that she really loves me. Rendered desperate by her coolness, I thought I would try an experiment. I saw an advertisement in a New York paper which read as follows:

LOVE LOZENGES—COMMAND UNDYING love and affection. Price, $1. Address Dr. Gullem, Hogem street, New York.

The question arose in my mind, "Will one box of these lozenges produce undying love and affection?—will one lozenge have that effect?—or is it necessary in order to keep up the effect to be continually feeding the girl you wish to love you on these lozenges?" I fancied if I asked Dr. Gullem about it he would tell me that in order to keep up the fond affection, and make it undying, it would be as well to buy a gross or two; so I concluded not to buy any of these love lozenges, but to feed my Kate on Clarke's chewing candy, which will perhaps do as well; don't you think so? [Quite as well.—ED. FIGARO.] I don't like to ask Kate to marry me until I am sure she would say "yes." It would be very awkward to be refused. I never had the mitten in my life, and I don't want to. I think under the chewing candy regimen she is growing more fond of me than she was, but she is beginning to look pale. I think champagne is good for her, too, so I sent her a basket of Landsberger the other day. I am puzzled about Kate. I know she likes me, and think the would marry me, perhaps; but I don't know whether she loves me or not.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. U

A Powerful Exhortation.

Not long since, at a private entertainment, Bret Harte told the following story: A California teamster went courting a girl who was a good church member, and while in her company, being on his very best behavior, he was careful not to use any language which would shock the exceeding proper ears of his sweetheart. But one day, driving up a hill, he burst forth into the most objurgative address to his animals, never dreaming that the object of his affection was standing by the roadside listening to his profanity. But when she opened upon him the batteries of her reproof, he knew that she was there. But he held his ground. "Do you call that swearing?" said he. "If you do, I don't know what you'd say if you heard that fellow jist behind me exhort an impenitent mule!"

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOHEMIAN CLUB ROOMS,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 13, 1872

HARRY EDWARDS, Esq.—Dear Sir: Your protracted illness has been a source of anxiety and pain to your fellow members of the Bohemian Club. They fear that you may not be able to resume your professional duties immediately, and as an earnest of their regard for you, they have directed me to convey to you a proposition which may result in relieving the irksomeness of long confinement to the sick-room. It is the desire of the Club to give a dramatic and musical entertainment for your benefit and I ask your permission to carry out this desire.

Should your reply be favorable, the Club will endeavor, with the aid of a large number of volunteers who have already expressed their wish to assist, to afford the public a pleasant evening's entertainment, and at the same time give an opportunity for evidence of that esteem in which you are universally held.

I remain, my dear sir,
Your obedient servant and friend,
THOMAS NEWCOMB,
President Bohemian Club

THE REPLY.

No. 2 6 CHESNUT STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, 1872

THOS NEWCOMB, ESQ.—My Dear Sir: Your letter proffering me a benefit has affected me very deeply. My crippled hand can as ill perform perform the office of grateful sense I have of the considerate kindness of my brothers of the Bohemian Club—a kindness all the more valued because it was so unexpected, and, at the same time, so delicately and generously displayed.

To refuse the acceptance of so noble an offer would ill-become me, and I know would be hurtful to the friendly feeling which prompted it; and therefore, without attempting thanks, which can never be adequately expressed, I leave myself wholly in your hands and those of the warm-hearted spirits who surround you, whose esteem I am proud to have gained.

Forgive this necessarily brief note, and with all good wishes for yourself and Club, believe me always your sincere friend,

HENRY EDWARDS.

Metropolitan.

To-night will be produced for the first time in this city a new and original drama in five acts, written expressly for E. T. Stetson entitled "An Illusion; or, the Dream of Life." This piece is said to present many beautiful tableaux. It will be produced with fine scenery and illusive effects. E. T. Stetson, W. J. Cogswell, Miss Osborne, and Miss Maggie Moore are included in the cast.

Maguire's Opera House.

"Lucrezia Borgia" was performed again last night to an audience which crowded this theatre in every part. Having noticed the first performance of this opera at length in Saturday's issue, we have but little to say of the second, save that the few faults visible in the preceding performance were rectified, and that the representation last night gave the greatest satisfaction to the very large and fashionable audience present. One word to one of the finest singers and most accomplished artistes who have ever visited this city, Jacob Muller, the baritone. We must protest against this gentleman's destroying the expression of his handsome features by the too lavish use of pearl powder, his natural bronze with a touch of rouge would look far better. Let him look to it. The next opera will be "Ernani." This is to be given to-morrow night. The box office will be open for the sale of tickets to-day from 10 till 4.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night a new programme will be presented by the admirable combination of sweet singers, talented musicians funniest of Ethiopian comedians and most artistic of song and dance men, known as Maguire's California Minstrels. The engagement of Mme. Fanny Simonsen, the highly-cultured vocalist, and Martin Simonsen, the wonderful violinist, is of course continued, they having achieved a tremendous success last week. Among the new acts to be presented to-night may be mentioned Bob Hart's new finale to the first part entitled "Arizona Diamonds;" McAndrew's comical sketch entitled "The Colored Troupe Fought Nobly;" She's My Sugar Plum," Delehanty and Hengler; "Three O'Clock Train," by Charles Sutton and M. A. Scott, and Bob Hart's sketch entitled "Nip and Tuck," by Add Ryman, Bob Hart and company, which will terminate this feast of mirth and melody.

Bella Union.

The new programme at this house is a decided success as was proved by the uproarious applause it elicited last night and the night before. Miss Josephine in an Irish jig; J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong in Dutch acts; Minnie Filmore in ballads, and Johnny Tuers in negroloidisms, were all much applauded. Mrs. Charles Coriell delighted the audience by her charming singing in the burlesque opera by Charles Coriell, which went off in a lively manner, and the melodrama of "The Brigand's Oath" wound up the evening's entertainment. The same bill will be played to-night.

American Theatre.

Hughey Morton, Flora Emerson, May Leroy, Josie Mayfield and a host of other popular variety artistes appear nightly in a melange of songs, acts and dances, and in the three sensational plays the casts of which appear on our first page.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This great exhibition entered on its third week last night and the Pavilion was packed perfectly full, hundreds being unable to obtain seats. This evening there will be another entire change in the programme of acts, and the two magnificent California horses, General Grant and Othello (brothers) will be introduced for the first time. These horses were purchased by Chiarini during his first visit to this city and have been educated by him during his travels. Everything connected with this model circus is in such admirable taste that it is no wonder that the attendance comprises the fashion and wealth of the city.

Hayes Park.

There was an immense attendance at the picnic and festival in commemoration of the 62nd Anniversary of Mexican Independence. The Mexican military company, Guardia de Juarez, presented a fine appearance. The Mexican consul, Dr. Isaac Rivas, presented the company with a beautiful banner. The ball in the evening was a very pleasant one and nothing occurred to mar the harmony of the evening.

Horticultural Pavilion.

This evening, the very last exhibition of the Horticultural Pavilion in its present condition: filled with beautiful flowers and shrubs will take place, the occasion being a benefit to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Those who visit the Pavilion to-night will find themselves in good company, all the very "nicest" and most ladylike girls in the city will be there, for nice girls love dumb animals, there will be a fine concert of music, the programme of which appears on our first page, and a very pleasant time may be expected.

Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man.

A lecture with the above title will shortly be delivered in this city (some time next week), by Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller, the wife of the poet, and herself a poetess, who has lectured with great success in Portland, Oregon. The maxim "nothing extenuate, nor set down aught in malice" will be carefully observed, and a curious analysis of one of the most extraordinary characters of the nineteenth century will be given.

Benefit of Henry Edwards.

By correspondence, which appears in another column, it will be perceived that Henry Edwards, the sterling actor and favorite with everyone, is confined to his bed by sickness and that the members of the Bohemian Club, of which Mr. Edwards is Vice President, have chosen this time to tender him, through their President, Thomas Newcomb, a complimentary benefit. We are sure that the public of San Francisco will respond to this call, as one man and that the audience present on the occasion will only be limited by the size of the hall. The entertainment which will comprise many original features (among others, it is whispered, an original play performed by Bohemians) will come off at Platt's Hall, on Thursday, Sept. 26th. The good taste which characterizes the correspondence must be admired by all and may serve as a model for others, if they can find an object equally worthy.

Benefit to Miss Minnie Walton.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 19th, Miss Minnie Walton, the charmingly natural, soubrette actress and pleasing vocalist, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall, and make her first appearance in three months. A concert will be given by the best vocal and instrumental performers in the city. Miss Minnie Walton is such a general favorite, that Pacific Hall is sure to be thronged on this occasion. Among the amateur artistes who have volunteered for this concert are Miss Mary E. Wadsworth, the most promising prima donna California has produced, Miss Emelia W. Neill, Mrs. Bradford, J. T. Williams, Vernon Lincoln, Fred Lyster, A. Hartdegan, the violoncellist, Louis Schmidt, Oscar Weil and all the members of the California Theatre orchestra. Tickets are for sale at Gray's now, and should command a premium before Thursday, as apart from the desert and popularity of the beneficiary the concert will be one of the grandest ever given in California.

Reopening of the California Theatre.

We are so often asked the question, "When will the California Theatre reopen?" that we think it as well to state that the date fixed for that great event of the theatrical year is September 30th. The first performances will consist of sterling old English comedies performed by the regular company, and in the second week, the grand production of "Richard III," with McCullough in the title role, with the gorgeous costumes from Booth's Theatre, New York, will take place. The envious hoarding which hides the beauties of the reconstructed building from the impatient public will soon be removed. Fifteen days soon pass away

Woodward's Gardens.

The thousands of attractions at these gardens afford hours of pleasant diversion to all who visit this oasis in the sandy desert of San Francisco. Next Sunday, M. Perrier, the French athlete, who is rapidly recovering from his accident, will make his appearance in a startling and extraordinary performance.

The Sontag Opera Season.

Miss Anna Sontag, prima donna of the opera season to commence at the Metropolitan Theatre on the 30th, arrived in this city on Thursday evening. The other members of the troupe will arrive next week. The orchestra and chorus are constantly rehearsing and everything is being done to make the season a grand success.

Equestrienne Talent.

J Allen of the Metropolitan Theatre, advertises but he wants four dashing lady equestriennes for the Great Eastern Hippodrome at the State Fair, Sacramento. They are not to ride bare-back steeds, but simply to appear in the grand entre.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

We have news from London up to the 15th ult. The principal theatres are now closed and brushing up for the Fall season. Dion Boucicault opens Covent Garden the latter part of August with an eastern spectacular piece, similar to "Lalla Rookh," called "Babil and Bijou." It is in five acts and a prologue, and embraces the ballet, drama, spectacle and burlesque, to be gotten up in magnificent style......At Drury Lane they intend producing a new version of "The Lady of the Lake."......At the Alhambra they are still running "Le Roi Carotte."......A bit of moonshine, in three rays, entitled "The Vampire," written by R. Reece, was produced at the Strand on August 15th......At the Gaiety Theatre, the comedy and opera bouffe company had returned. J. L. Toole was to have commenced an engagement on August 19th...... The Royalty was to be opened early in September under the management of W. H. Swanborough, with a new and original comedy by F. Hay, and a new burlesque extravaganza by Conway Edwardes. ......J. A. Cave is about to become the lessee of the Greenwich Theatre.......The dramatic season at Drury Lane is to be commenced September 21st, when Andrew Halliday's version of "The Lady of the Lake" will be produced, and the Vokes Family reappear in England in a new and original farce.... Signor P. E. Picard, the circus manager, who was with Chiarini in the United States a few years ago, sails on August 17th in the steamer 'Moselle, for Lima, Peru, with a large and very fine circus troupe......At the Vaudeville Theatre, in the Strand, they are still running the burlesque of "The Very Last Days of Pompeii," which has reached its 150th representation, in which the charming burlesque actress, Miss Nelly Power, nightly adds to her laurels. At the Queen's Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Bandmann are playing in the drama of "Dead or Alive," to fine houses. At the National Standard Theatre, Mr. Henry Irving is playing "The Bells"......The North Woolwich Gardens are running a monkey show, baboons, ourang outangs, apes, marmozetts, chimpanzees, etc., without number. After this comes the barmaid show, and then the baby show. Mr. Holland is a live manager, and keeps excitement up all the time. At the Royal Surrey Zoological Gardens and the Cremorne Gardens, a fine entertainment is given at a very reasonable price of admission.

Mr. Hughy Dougherty seems to be as popular with our English cousins, as he was at home. In a notice of Moore and Burgess' Minstrels, the London Era of August 4th says: "Mr. Hugh Dougherty made a hit with his wonderful stump oratory. A more diverting conglomeration of fine phrases and high sounding passages, not having the slightest connection with each other, we never heard out of the House of Commons, where the members do not, like Mr. Dougherty, the minstrel, frankly acknowledge that their speeches are incomprehensible. Nor do they like this famous orator, after a long-winded dissertation, admit that they are digressing. Mr. Dougherty's sense of humor is immense, and he takes the audience so winningly into his confidence, that the pleasure of being sold increases each time that operation is performed."

At a meeting of the Royal general theatrical fund, in the Lyceum Theatre, London, the following resolution was unanimously agreed to:—"That a cordial vote of thanks be presented to Mr. Sothern for his unexampled generosity in coming from America to play solely for the benefit of the Fund, and for the great interest he has invariably manifested in its welfare." Mr. Sothern was also elected a trustee of the Fund, in place of the late Charles Dickens.

Billy Martin, late of the Theatre Comique, and Tommy Sully, late of Kelly and Leon's Minstrels, are with Moore and Burgess' Minstrels, at the St. James' Hall, London.

Mr. Eph Horn made his first appearance in England at the St. James Hall, London, on August 12th, appearing with Moore and Burgess' Minstrel Troupe.

"The Verdict of the World," is the title of a new drama recently produced at the Brittania Theatre, London. The verdict of the public is favorable.

A new comedy, entitled "A Son of the Soil," is in preparation at the Royal Court Theatre, London, Eng.

Gathering Roses.

Out on the shaded porch she stood,
Twining the sweet rose vine;
Said I, "There is one bright rose I see
That I fain would keep as mine."
"I'll toss you your choice!" she gaily said,
The rose-leaves fluttering o'er her head.

"My rose," said I, "is the largest there;
And, if that one you refuse—
The sweetest, brightest, best of all—
None other will I choose."
"Come—gather your rose yourself!" said she,
Turning her blushing face from me.

Gladly I did her bidding then,
And, clasping her hand in mine,
Gathered my rose all close to my,
Under the fragrant vine.
"This is the one I want," cried I.
Only a kiss was her reply.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

....FOR...
PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's own invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No. 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan.

"Illusion, or the Dream of Life," produced last night at this theatre, is a metaphysical melodrama with many fine tableaux, strong situations and a splendid duel scene in which E. T. Stetson and W. J. Cogswell did some fencing which fairly brought down the house. Mr. Stetson gained frequent applause for the delivery of speeches full of the strongest kind of sentiment, and the tragic nature of the drama was relieved by comic scenes in which W. Simms and Miss Maggie Moore caused much laughter. Miss Henrietta Osborne did full justice to the character of Leonora; Mrs. Mary Watson filled that of Teresa; L. Belmour as Pedro read his lines with due emphasis and good discretion, and all did their best to do justice to the sentiments put in their mouths by the author. The audience appeared deeply interested in the development of this weird composition. It will be played again to-night.

Alhambra Theatre.

The new programme presented at this house last night went off brilliantly. Bob Hart's new finale to the first part entitled "Arizona Diamonds," made a great hit; Mme. Fanny Simonsen's "Echo Song" was much applauded, and of course encored; much amusement was caused by McAndrew's laughable sketch entitled "The Colored Troops Fought Nobly;" Martin Simonsen electrified the audience by his delightful performance on the violin; Delehanty and Hengler's new song and dance was a great success, and the other acts all went well. The same bill will be presented to-night.

Maguire's Opera House.

To-night the ever-popular opera of "Ernani" will be presented by the Fabbri Opera Troupe with the following cast: Don Carlos, Jacob Muller; Donna Elvira, Signora Inez Fabbri; Ernani, L. Eisenbach; Donna Juana, Signora K. More; Ruy Gomez da Silva, M. Roncovieri, and Don Ricardo, M. Charles. The public have accepted the performances of this troupe as being the most pleasing ever given in this city, and there is no fear of the attendance falling off. Thursday is the next regular opera night and on this occasion the grand opera of "Norma" was to be presented. In order, however, to give full effect to the production of this great opera, Thursday night will be given up to rehearsal and "Norma" will be presented after careful preparation on Saturday evening. The box office will be open for the sale of tickets to-day from 10 till 4, and the seats will soon be all taken.

Bella Union.

The burlesque opera by Charles Coriell in which he, Johnny Tuers, Mrs. Coriell, Tommy Bree, H. Sinclair, and others appear is a very popular feature in the excellent entertainment presented at this house. Johnny Tuers in his song and dance draws immense applause; Miss Josephine's Irish jig is a great bit. Miss Jennie Johnson's comic songs cause much laughter, and the afterpiece of "The Brigand's Oath" is terrific in its character.

American Theatre.

Hughey Morton, Flora Emerson, May Leroy, Josie Mayfield and a host of other popular variety artistes appear nightly in a melange of songs, acts and dances, and in the three sensational plays the casts of which appear on our first page.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The new programme is a very attractive one. "General Grant," "Othello" and "Gazelle," the new equine stars were much applauded last night. The lively pantomime of "Les Modistes de Paris" wound up the evening's amusement in good style.

Platt's Hall.

A capital programme of songs, recitations and a comedietta was given last night for the benefit of Miss Anette Ince. The attendance was not as large as was expected, taking into consideration the popularity of the beneficiary and the attractions of the entertainment.

Horticultural Pavilion.

The beauty, wealth and fashion of San Francisco were well represented last night at this hall, when an excellent entertainment of vocal and instrumental music was performed for the benefit of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The success of this attempt should lead the Society to give an entertainment on a larger scale at some future time. The Floral Fair closed with last night.

Benefit to Miss Minnie Walton.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 19th, Miss Minnie Walton, the charmingly natural, soubrette actress and pleasing vocalist, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall, and make her first appearance in three months. A concert will be given by the best vocal and instrumental performers in the city. Miss Minnie Walton is such a general favorite, that Pacific Hall is sure to be thronged on this occasion. Among the eminent artistes who have volunteered for this concert are Miss Mary E. Wadsworth, the most promising prima donna California has produced, Miss Emelia W. Neill, Mrs. Bradford, J. T. Williams, Vernon Lincoln, Fred Lyster, A. Hardagan, the violincellist, Louis Schmidt, Oscar Weil and all the members of the California Theatre orchestra. Tickets are for sale at Gray's now, and should command a premium before Thursday, as apart from the desert and popularity of the beneficiary the concert will be one of the grandest ever given in California.

English Opera.

Next week, Mme. Fanny Simonsen will appear as Arline, in a condensed version of "The Bohemian Girl," with W. F. Baker as Thaddeus, J. G. Russell as the Count, Ainsley Scott as Devilshoof and G. D. Bockafeller as Florestine, making a very pleasing English opera company.

Hayes Park in the Field.

Major Jack Stratman has leased this Park, and intends to open it as a place of public resort. A new amphitheatre 100 feet in diameter, is to be errected in the rear of the Pavilion for circus and other performance. The whole place will undergo thorough renovation before opening.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

LADIES, PLEASE NOTICE, that the finest Millinery Fall Fashion exhibition of this season will take place at the establishment of MADAME E. SCHLOSS, 406 Kearny street, between California and Pine, commencing Thursday next, the 19th instant. x

Concerning Colonels.

The profuse use of the title of "Colonel" elicits these pertinent remarks from the Philadelphia Post: "To call a man 'Colonel,' is to convey the idea that he is of a mild, meek, and benevolent disposition. It is also an evidence that he never was a soldier. For instance, we may recall some of the Colonels of Philadelphia. There is Colonel Forney, Colonel McClure, Colonel McMichael, Colonel Scott, Colonel Phillips, Colonel Hincken, Colonel Green and Colonel Faitz. Of what regiment? And we might mention many more gentlemen of high standing who have never been in the army, and can only be called 'Colonel' as a tribute to their antipathy to blood. If every Colonel was a soldier, the standing army in Philadelphia would be a menace to our liberties. Their number is as great as it was in San Francisco, to which John Phœnix bears witness in the following story: The steamboat was leaving the warf, and everybody was taking leave of friends—all but Phœnix, who had no friend to bid him farewell. Ashamed of his 'loneliness,' as the boat sheered off he called out in a loud voice, 'Good-by, Colonel.' and, to his great delight, every man on the wharf took off his hat and shouted, 'Colonel, good-by!'"

A Manager's Pious Will.

Mr. George Jones, of Lansdowne House the proprietor of Rosherville Garden, a favorite place of riverside resort, whither Cockneys have been invited for generations, past "to spend a happy day," has just died at the ripe age of 77. He made all his money by the people, yet he has left it all (£35,000) the parsons for the building and endowing of churches and the providing of stipends for vicars and curates. Considering what a hostile stand the clergy not unfrequently make in England against the amusements of the laity, more particularly against such amusements as are customary at Rosherville—music, dancing, play-acting, and the like—the late Mr. Jones has displayed a forgiving spirit and heaped coals of fire at a season when coals are very dear upon the heads of his enemies. It is to be hoped that Mr. Jones has left no poor relations.

Wife and Lady.

The custom of calling a man's wife his lady has been sufficiently commented upon to render it familiar.

One day at the Navy Yard, when something special was going forward, the sentinel had positive orders to admit no one. During the day, the wife of one of the officers came to the gate, but the sentinel, obeying orders, cried out:

"Karn't pass, marm."

"But, sir," replied she, "I must pass. I am Captain W.'s lady."

"Karn't help it, marm. Couldn't let you in, if you was his wife, marm."

Marysville Boys.

Under the heading, "Academy of Sciences," the Marysville Standard has the following:

Yesterday some of the railroad employees discovered a lot of boys ranging from eight to fifteen, under the chute at the depot, playing faro. They had a large dry goods box for a table and smaller ones for seats. Here they congregate to play faro, poker and such games, and were busy at faro when discovered. Truly, Marysville has some interesting youths, for which their parents deserve a premium.

Prompted by Love.

One morning found little Dora busy at the ironing table, smoothing the towels and stockings.

"Isn't that hard work for the little arms?" I asked.

A look like sunshine came into her face as she glanced toward her mother, who was rocking the baby.

"It isn't hard work when I do it for mamma," she said softly.

Served Him Right.

A man who employed a spy to get evidence against the virtue of his wife got nicely come up with in London not long ago. The woman met the petition of her husband with the plea that she had been led into evil solely through the plots of an agent employed by him to watch her movements, and the Court decided that the husband was responsible for the acts of his agent.

Sympathy.

Women are fond of sympathy. They have always little troubles of their own, to which it pleases them to see a man listen with interest and apparent compassion. Emotion, real or feigned, will put a man deep in a woman's good graces; courteous and kindly deference will woo her better than a hand some face and subtle wit.

Not Consulted.

A girl, forced by her parents into a disagreeable match with an old man whom she detested, when the clergyman came to that part of the service where the bride is asked if she consents to take the bridegroom for her husband, said: "Oh dear, no, sir; but you are the first person who has asked my opinion about the matter."

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated. a

Stop Stranger.

Don't "stop and dry the falling tear," but stop before you pass No. 101 Third street, and see whether you cannot buy your shirts, socks, neckties and underwear cheaper there than you can at any store in the city. z

AT THE LAST.

Come once, just once, dear love, when I am dead—
Ah, God, I would it were this hour to-night—
And look your last upon the frozen face
That was to you a Summer's brief delight.

The silent lips will not entreat you then,
Nor the eyes vex you with unwelcome tears;
The low, sad voice will utter no complaint,
Nor the heart tremble with its restless fears.

I shall be still—you will forgive me then
For all that have been, or failed to be—
Say, as you look, "Poor heart, she loved me well,
No other love will be so true to me."

Then bend and kiss the lips that will not speak;
One little kiss for all the dear dead days,
Say once, "God rest her soul!" then go in peace,
No haunting ghost shall meet you in your ways.

A Warning.

It is well for the girls to know the risk they run in marrying brakemen. An enthusiastic member of the guild in St. Louis the other night was awakened from a dream of an impending mishap by a cry of pain, and found himself sitting up in bed holding his wife by the ear, having almost twisted her head off.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at eight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's own invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is gen[illegible].

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

HARRY EDWARDS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOHEMIAN CLUB ROOMS,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 13, 1872.

HARRY EDWARDS, Esq.—Dear Sir: Your protracted illness has been a source of anxiety and pain to your fellow members of the Bohemian Club. They fear that you may not be able to resume your professional duties immediately, and as an earnest of their regard for you, they have directed me to convey to you a proposition which may result in relieving the irksomeness of long confinement to the sick-room. It is the desire of the Club to give a dramatic and musical entertainment for your benefit and I ask your permission to carry out this desire.

Should your reply be favorable, the Club will endeavor, with the aid of a large number of volunteers who have already expressed their wish to assist, to afford the public a pleasant evening's entertainment, and at the same time give an opportunity for evidence of that esteem in which you are universally held.

I remain, my dear sir,
Your obedient servant and friend,
THOMAS NEWCOMB,
President Bohemian Club

THE REPLY.

No. 2 6 CHESNUT STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, 1872.

THOS NEWCOMB, Esq.—My Dear Sir: Your letter proffering me a benefit has affected me very deeply. My crippled hand can as ill perform perform the office of grateful sense I have of the considerate kindness of my brothers of the Bohemian Club—a kindness all the more valued because it was so unexpected, and, at the same time, so delicately and generously displayed.

To refuse the acceptance of so noble an offer would ill-become me, and I know would be hurtful to the friendly feeling which prompted it; and therefore, without attempting thanks, which can never be adequately expressed, I leave myself wholly in your hands and those of the warm-hearted spirits who surround you, whose esteem I am proud to have gained.

Forgive this necessarily brief note, and with all good wishes for yourself and Club, believe me always your sincere friend,

HENRY EDWARDS.

The benefit performance above alluded to will be given at PLATT'S HALL, on the evening of THURSDAY, September 26th. Se16 tf

Female Clowns.

The cause is progressing. Woman is rapidly winning her way in the contest she has begun in order to emancipate herself from the tyranny of ruthless man. England is much in advance of America in the advantages it offers the strong-minded advocates of woman's rights. The position of circus clown, which has been from time immemorial the birthright of proud man, is no longer his exclusively. A lovely being of the gentler sex has adopted the bismuth and rouge of that fatuous utterer of stale witticisms, and with the appropriate allowance of spangles on her dress has bounded head over heels into the tan and sawdust of the equine arena. She fondles the stuffed baby and sits down on it and explodes the concealed air bladder with rare effect, crams her capacious pockets with every thing from a string of sausages to a leg of mutton, with irresistible grace, and executes "flip-flaps," "cart-wheels," and "jim-jams" in the highest style of art. Here is a sphere of usefulness thrown open to the oppressed and tender creatures, which, we trust, will not be neglected.

Malicious.

Those Amherst professors are fearfully malicious fellows; they have to keep awake through their own sermons and won't let anybody else sleep in peace. The other day one of them cried out in the middle of a gentle soporific discourse, "Wake up that young man!" and half the students and faculty woke up the other half, not knowing, of course, which was the young man meant, and some of them did not get any more sleep that morning.

Very Suspicious.

The Chicago Tribune suspects the editor of the Pacific, and thus expresses its suspicion:

The Pacific, a Congregationalist paper of San Francisco, excitedly remarks: "We are afflicted with a new excitement. This time diamonds are trumps, and rubies are the right bower." Trumps?—right bower? Can it be that the library of the Pacific office contains the "Devil's books!" Do the editors vary the task of composing leaders on "Total Depravity," or "The Doom of the Lost," or "The Fiery Furnace," by a quiet game of euchre or a well-fought battle of whist?

Progression.

The baby oyster is not bigger than a pin's head at the end of a fortnight, at three months only the size of a split pea. In a year he will become as large an ordinary halfpenny, and at the end of four years' growth he is fit for market.

Business.

Here is a good business-like epitaph:—"Here lies Jane Smith, wife of Thomas Smith, marble cutter. This monument was erected by her husband as a tribute to her memory and a specimen of his work. Monuments of the same style $250."

Have you Seen the Laurel Palace,

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street.

Do You Know

That with BUTTERICK'S PATTERNS you can cut and make any garment to fit perfectly? Send postage stamp for an illustrated catalogue. H. A. Deming, agent, office of the Howe Sewing Machine, No. 113 Kearny street, between Sutter and Post, San Francisco.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Chemical Treatment of Diseases.

Dr. Cook, No. 55 Second street, treats all chronic diseases chemically, the only successful mode of curing disease. The afflicted, by all means, should consult the Doctor without delay. His experience ample and his remedies sure. V

The "Acrobatic" Bill.

A bill with the above title has been of late before the British House of Lords, but was not successful in passing. It was an attempt to legislate for the protection of acrobats, and specially forbade the performance in that line of children under twelve years of age. Lord Romilly remarked that if they put an end to the employment of children in the performances objected to, they would also put an end to the preparatory training which they underwent. He thought that the definition of acrobatic performances in the bill, viz.: "muscular performances involving danger to life and limb for gain," was both intelligible and sufficiently precise. Whereupon the Marquis of Salisbury inquired whether a jockey would not come under the bill. He certainly went through muscular performances for gain. Lord Romilly said that when the derivation of the word was consulted, it would be found that an acrobat was a person who went aloft. Lord Chelmsford said that in this case he had gone through an acrobatic performance. Lord Salisbury said that even if the bill did not apply to a jockey, it certainly must apply to a sailor, according to the last definition of the learned lord. A sailor certainly went aloft for gain, and his life and limb were endangered. The bill would also apply to a miner, who, if he did not go aloft, went down below, exercised his occupation for gain, and did it at the risk of life and limb. Hereupon the Duke of Manchester wished the bill could be made to apply to those who risked life and limb in Rotten Row. The debate was closed by the withdrawal of the bill for the present.

He Took It.

An honest, thrifty, well-to-do German in a Connecticut city applied to a wealthy landlord who rents a great many houses. "The house is to let, certainly," said the owner, "and if on inquiry, I find you to be a responsible and suitable man for a tenant, you shall have it." "Vare goot, Mr. H———, you makes just as many questions as you mind, I takes the house when you gets ready." Two days afterward the house owner called upon the German. "Well," he said, "I've inquired pretty generally respecting your character and means, and as everybody speaks of you as an honest, respectable man of abundant property, you can have the house." "Vell den," said Hans, "I takes the house. And I wants to tell you I've asked all about you among the peoples, and dey all say that you is de meanest landlord in de town. But I takes the house all the same."

Ancient Slang.

Sometimes we think that Americans invent their own slang, but some of it is very old. We suppose Freemasons imagine that "on the square" belongs to them, but it seems that the square has always been an emblem of perfection. Nearly twenty-four hundred years ago, the old Greek Simonide, the first poet who the wit to make people pay for his verses, speaks of a man who was "square in feet and hand and intellect." So people were "on the square" then, and the man praised by Simonides must have been a regular "old square-toes." But we do not believe anybody but the universal Yankee ever described a good dinner as a "square meal." But the ancients did not think the square the most perfect form, for no less than three of the most eminent philosophers argued that God was a sphere, alike on all sides.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. U

THE LADY'S YES.

BY ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

"Yes?" I answered you last night;
"No!" this morning, sir, I say.
Colors, seen by candle-light
Will not look the same by day.

When the tabors played their best—
Lamps above, and laughs below—
Love me sounded like a jest,
Fit for yes or fit for no.

Call me false or call me free,—
Vow, whatever light may shine,
No man on thy face shall see.
Any grief for change on mine.

Yet the sin is on us both—
Time to dance is not to woo;
Wooer light makes fickle troth;
Scorn of me recoils on you.

Learn to win a lady's faith
Nobly, as the thing is high;
Bravely, as for life and death,—
With a loyal gravity.

Lead her from the festive boards,
Point her to the starry skies,
Guard her by your faithful words,
Pure from courtship's flatteries.

By your truth she shall be true,—
Ever true, as wives of yore;
And her Yes, once said to you,
Shall be Yes forevermore. A

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller,

THE POETESS.

WIFE OF JOAQUIN MILLER, AUTHOR OF

"Isles of the Amazons,"

WILL LECTURE ON

JOAQUIN MILLER

The Poet and the Man.

PARTIAL SYNOPSIS.

Courtship by correspondence... ..Lord Byron as a model for a young man commencing business in the poetic line; his foibles copied as a necessary means to poetic development...... The poetic diet—regimen enforced.... .How Joaquin Miller became a poet .How far "Poeta nascitur non fit" is true ... .THE POET'S WORKSHOP—His tools and materials...... Love, Law and Poetry. ...The journey to the Blue Mountains . ...A novel baby carriage . Joaquin as a sentinel. .. .The Poet's Wife ."Don't talk, Kitty; say nothing, and look pretty". . Byronics MARIANA IN THE MOATED ORANGE... ..Affection's offering—The father's love—The locket and picture sent across the Continent 3,000 miles—Alas! Brass, value 25 cents. ....The scrap of paper......Feasting in London—Starving in Portland......The Song of the Shirt and the Songs of the Sierras......Joaquin Diamonds—Little Maud's Shoes!

"If but the world beheld the sacrifice,
And men took note and told my fame to her,
That she might weep for spila and envy me
My sweet applause and dignity of death,
I'd write a song eternal as the sun."

... .The latter-day Byron......Critical analysis of the character of Joaquin Miller—His future prospects... THAT HORSE!

"He reined his steed and looked down in the canyon
To where she dwelt, with a heart of fire:
He kissed his hand to the smoke slow-curling,
Then bowed his head in devoutest blessing.
His spotted courser did plunge and fret him
Beneath his gay and silk-fringed carons.
And tossed his neck, in a black mane bannered;
Then all a-foam, plunging iron-footed,
Dashed him adown with a wild impatience."

... ..Sad fate of the poetic horse—not sold to the circus to become an equine star of the arena (a distinction to which his spots should have entitled him), but sold, alas! to work in a pack train—Proceeds of the sale, $34 75......"If I am Byron you must be Lady Byron".. ...Rather hard.

Maxim followed throughout the Lecture—Nothing extenuate, nor set down aught in malice.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan.

The metaphysical drama of "Illusion, or, the Dream of Life," with its very effective and thrilling tableaux and exciting duel scene was performed again last night and the audience followed the fortunes of Leon, the Fatalist, through five acts with much interest. This play will be repeated to-night for the last time. To-morrow J. J. McCloskey's latest and most successful sensational drama entitled "The Fatal Glass; or, Dreaming and Waking," which has been some time in preparation will be produced.

Alhambra Theatre.

Everyone goes to the Alhambra Theatre and everyone is pleased. The new finale entitled "Arizona Oismonds," in which Bob Hart, M. A. Scolt, Charles Sutton and others appear, is a most amusing production and draws much applause and laughter. Mme. Fancy Simonson, the vocalist, and Martin Simonsen, the talented violinist, are immense favorites. Delehanty and Hengler are great in song and dance, and when their engagement closes it will be long ere we look upon their like again.

Maguire's Opera House.

Each succeeding night of the opera since the opening, has been an improvement on the first, and now the company may be said to be in thorough order. Certainly few representations of opera in San Francisco have excited an audience to a display of enthusiasm equal to that manifested last night. Jacob Muller roused the audience to a pitch of the wildest excitement by his magnificent singing; a perfect tempest of applause followed his performances in every act. Signora Inez Fabbri gained a hearty encore for Ernani involami, and with L. Eisenbach and Jacob Muller in the grand final of the third act sang splendidly. The green curtain had to be rung up again after the close of the opera, the audience insisting on the performers once more, receiving an acknowledgement of the pleasure they had afforded all present. "La Traviata" will be produced on Saturday, with Signora Fabbri as Violetta, Jacob Muller as Germont, Miss Anna Elzer as Flore, and Mr. Eisenbach as Alfred. "Ernani" will be repeated on Sunday night.

Bella Union.

Comic songs, popular ballads, funny negro acts, burlesque opera and thrilling melo drama are all comprised in the programme performed at this lively variety theatre. Among the company are such popular artists as Mrs. Charles Coriell, J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, Miss Josephine, Carrie Chapman, Johnny Toers, Minnie Fillmore and Harry Sinclair, all of whom are excellent in their respective lines. The full programme for to-night appears on our first page.

American Theatre.

"Ireland and America vs. China and Africa" is the taking title of the latest production at this theatre. A good first part and attractive and varied melange of songs and dances are also given.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The new star quadruped performers—General Grant, Othello and Gazelle, are great favorites and perform their acts with wonderful skill. The new programme is quite a success, and the pantomime winds up the evening's entertainment very pleasantly.

Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller, the poetess, wife of Joaquin Miller, whose last poem "Isles of the Amazons" is appearing in the Overland Monthly, will deliver a lecture bearing the above title on Tuesday next at Pacific Hall. Mrs. Miller, though she undoubtedly met with the most heartless treatment at the hands of her poetic spouse, does not intend to bore the public with a recital of her troubles, but to give a critical analysis of the character of Joaquin Miller as a poet and a man, with amusing incidents illustrative of his idiosyncrasies. Mrs. Miller has a charming personal appearance, a sweet voice, much poetic fancy, and a disposition which leads her to view the faults of Joaquin Miller with the coolness of a philosopher, and to attempt rather to make them the subject of amusement than a text for a lugubrious sermon on unkind husbands. A partial synopsis of the lecture appears on our first page.

Harry Edward's Benefit.

Bohemia is aroused, and active brains are at work to make Harry Edward's benefit, which is to take place on the 26th, at Platt's Hall, a tremendous success. Everyone intends to go, and it seems likely that tickets will command a premium.

Woodward's Gardens.

Miss Frances Hale, the queen of skates, appears on Sunday; also, Jenny Bishop, Ally Peplow and other performers. Performances and free skating Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Third grand skating carnival, October 12th; admission 25 cents.

California Theatre.

The stock company are notified in another column to meet in the green room of the theatre on Saturday at 12 o'clock, to make preparations for the opening night, Monday, September 30th.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Lost his Way.

One day last week a man ran through the streets of Detroit shouting that he was "hunting the road to heaven." The general opinion was that he was insane, otherwise he would never have gone to Detroit on that hunt.

A reporter, in depicting a wreck at sea says that "no less than thirteen unfortunates bit the dust."

LADIES, PLEASE NOTICE, that the finest Millinery Fall Fashion exhibition of this season will take place at the establishment of MADAME E. SCHLOSS, 476 Kearny street, between California and Pine, commencing Thursday next, the 19th instant. B

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

"THE DAY WHEN YOU'LL FORGET ME."

[We publish by request the words of this, the latest popular song of the day. Thousands have listened with pleasure to the singing of it at the Alhambra, by James G. Russell, the gifted baritone, whose beautiful rendition of the song has done so much to popularize it. The words are by George Cooper, and are worthy of the musical setting that the composer, J. K. Thomas, has given them.]

I.

You call me sweet and tender names,
And softly smooth my tresses;
And all the while my happy heart
Beats time to your caresses.
You love me in your tender way,
I answer as you let me;
But ah! there comes another day—
The day when you'll forget me.

II.

I know that every fleeting hour
Is marked by thoughts you bring me;
I know there dwells a subtle power
In the sweet songs I sing you.
I do not fear the darkest way
With those dear arms about me;
Ah! no, I only dread the day
When you can live without me.

III.

And still you call me tender names,
And softly smooth my tresses;
And still my happy answ'ring heart
Beats time to your caresses;
Hush! let me put that touch away,
And clasp your hands above me,
So; while I ask to die that day—
The day when you'll forget me.

IV.

You need not check the thoughts that rise
With darkness wrapt about them
For gazing in your anxious eyes,
My heart can almost doubt them.
Yet hush my whispers as you may,
Such chidings do not fret me;
Ah, no! I only fear that day—
The day when you'll forget me!

Curious Ceremony.

Letters from Ostend, in Belgium, bring us accounts of a curious ceremony that has just been solemnized there, as it takes place every year—the benediction of the sea. A richly adorned altar was erected on the sea shore, and down to this, at the right hour, came in grand procession the cure and his vicars, young girls dressed in white and carrying images of saints and banners, little children in white robes meant to represent angels, and lines of choristers singing as they went, and accompanied by a full band of music. The crowd of people on the passage of the procession and about the altar was very great, and the ceremony of blessing the sea bore a picturesque character. It seemed harshly dissonant to the religious and mediæval tone of the whole that military clamor should be mixed up with it; as the service terminated a salvo of artillery was heard, and all that was quaint and solemn in the scene seemed scattered to the winds.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Too Much Widowered.

A Western showman was exhibiting a giantess who kept the scales in the vicinity of six hundred pounds. She was "like heavenly pastures, large and fair," and proved a very profitable card. In order that these voluminous and profitable charms should not be sequestered from him, the showman secured a life interest in them by marriage. Unfortunately the bride sickened even unto death, and a council of physicians declared her recovery impossible. The disconsolate showman wandered out of the village where "unmerciful disaster" had overtaken him, and leaning over a fence, gave way to a flood of tears. A sympathetic bystander, learning the cause of his grief, attempted consolation by depicting what the future might have in store for him. "Oh," exclaimed the pseudo widower, "that is all very well, but the thing that worries me is what I am to do now. You see she's so big that I'm pestered to know whether I'd better coax her into a graveyard to die, or get up two expensive funerals."

Plot for a Sensation Drama.

There is a ghastly story told by Le Figaro: A Bernese gentleman made a present to his wife of a fauteuil, which, when sat upon, played "La donna e mobile." It amused for a while, and was then consigned to the lumber room by the husband, who had taken a strong objection to it in spite of his young wife's entreaties. M. Berchod having occasion to leave the city, madame bethought her of the toy, and it was installed in the drawing room, where her husband returning unexpectedly, found it. A scene followed, M. Berchod becoming more enraged, till seizing a weapon, he struck his wife dead. The body fell across the fatal chair, which, answering the pressure, played "La donna e mobile." Horror struck, M. Berchod threw himself from the window, and his corpse was carried upstairs just as the last strains of Verdi's air were heard.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOHEMIAN CLUB ROOMS,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 13, 1872.

HARRY EDWARDS, Esq.—Dear Sir: Your protracted illness has been a source of anxiety and pain to your fellow members of the Bohemian Club. They fear that you may not be able to resume your professional duties immediately, and as an earnest of their regard for you, they have directed me to convey to you a proposition which may result in relieving the irksomeness of long confinement to the sick-room. It is the desire of the Club to give a dramatic and musical entertainment for your benefit, and I ask your permission to carry out this desire.

Should your reply be favorable, the Club will endeavor, with the aid of a large number of volunteers who have already expressed their wish to assist, to afford the public a pleasant evening's entertainment, and at the same time give an opportunity for evidence of that esteem in which you are universally held.

I remain, my dear sir,
Your obedient servant and friend,
THOMAS NEWCOMB,
President Bohemian Club

THE REPLY.

No. 2 6 CHESNUT STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, 1872.

THOS NEWCOMB, ESQ.—My Dear Sir: Your letter proffering me a benefit has affected me very deeply. My crippled hand can as ill perform perform the office of grateful sense I have of the considerate kindness of my brothers of the Bohemian Club—a kindness all the more valued because it was so unexpected, and, at the same time, so delicately and generously displayed.

To refuse the acceptance of so noble an offer would ill-become me, and I know would be hurtful to the friendly feeling which prompted it; and therefore, without attempting thanks, which can never be adequately expressed, I leave myself wholly in your hands and those of the warm-hearted spirits who surround you, whose esteem I am proud to have gained.

Forgive this necessarily brief note, and with all good wishes for yourself and Club, believe me always your sincere friend.

HENRY EDWARDS.

The benefit performance above alluded to will be given at PLATT'S HALL, on the evening of THURSDAY, September 26th. Se16 tf

....FOR...

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's own invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. W.'s residence, No. 436 Sutter street.

THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

G. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor California and Davis sts.

E. G. Mathews, Grain Merchant, 26 Davis st.

Systematic Dogs.

An editor who is troubled with dogs in his neighboroood gets off the following: "To-day is the day for them to be run over, Mondays they fight among themselves, Tuesdays they fight visitors, Wednesdays, they are run over by passing teams, Thursdays people throw stones at them, Saturday they chase teams, and on Sunday they observe the higher law, and stay in doors killing fleas. If they did'nt have a system and a classification of duties those ten or twelve dogs would have a hard time of it any way. Two of the number have been run over already to-day—a dark brown spaniel, and a long, lean, white dog. They took opposite sides of the street, as soon as the wagon got off from them, and set up business at once. Then the other dogs came out and took a hand in, through sympathy, and the next two minutes were crowded with memories of Babel. For clearness of diction and brilliancy of expression the dogs are unrivalled."

Prejudiced.

A Brooklyn gentleman a few days since consented to give a week's lodging to any clergyman who might be sent him by the Young Men's Christian Association. He was about leaving the city for a few day's and calling his wife said: "My dear, I expect a clergyman here to morrow. I don't know what he'll be, but you can easily ascertain. If he's an Episcopalian, put a bottle of rum and a prayer book in his room; if a Presbyterian, put a Bible and a pitcher of ice water; but if he's a Methodist, lock up your drawers and telegraph me immediately."

Father and Daughter.

A charcoal peddler, not far from Hartford, had a Newfoundland dog which he taught to jump into his basket and lie down while he filled in the charcoal. When the peddler carried the basket full into the cellar, the purchaser looking out of the window and checking the basket was quite satisfied. The dog, well trained, walked out with his master as if nothing had happened. The daughter of this old charcoal peddler has spent several summers at Saratoga, with two large solitares on her person.

Had a Hard Time.

A Troy urchin would be a Mexican vaquero, so he got a rope, tied one end of it around his body, and then lassooed a cow with the other end. A short time afterward a kind-hearted passer-by untied from the end of the rope a mud-bedaubed, tatter-encased bleeding specimen of humanity, who claimed he was the boy who started with the cow at the other end of the course.

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 420 Pine street, furnishes from own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

To "Phase."

The Washington Critic says:

The Nation, following the Hoosier schoolmaster, cites "brash" as meaning rash, impetuous. So it does, but its primary significance is brittle, and both meanings are found in Worcester. There is a Western word for which we can find no etymology, and of which we do not know the orthography. It is used in widely different senses. "I threw a rock and just phesed the bird's tail," says a Western boy, by which he means that he threw a stone and grazed its tail. But the more common use is this: "He struck the rock three times and never phased it," that is, did not break or affect it. Yet we think the second a corruption from the first use of the word. Will somebody tell us what the derivation of this word is? We do not know that it has ever been mentioned before.

It seems to us that the manner in which "phase" came into use as a vulgarism for to discompose, disconcert, change or shake, is easy of explanation. The common use of the word as a substantive—a "phase" of the moon—might lead to its use as a verb by the uneducated, as "the moon was phased last night." It is now used in the sense of visibly affecting, as "the man was not phased"—that is, his face did not change color, he did not tremble, he appeared the same as he was before the attack was made on him. This is, we think, about as good a derivation of the word "phase," used as a verb, as can be given.

Concurs with Figaro.

The Boston Courier agrees thoroughly with us on the subject of Joaquin Miller's "Isles of the Amazons." It says:

Joaquin Miller's new poem, "The Isles of the Amazons," is the leading feature in the Overland Monthly for September, and will continue to be of interest for the readers of that magazine for the next four or five months. It is a poem of undisputed originality, and, in certain passages, of great beauty and power, but it is marred by weak and prosaic lines, a disagreeable repetition of rhymes and images, and unpardonable liberties with the English language—as where he makes strophe and hades words of one syllable. A poet should conserve the tongue he sings in, not corrupt and weaken it.

That is precisely what FIGARO said.

A Strange Story.

Here is a pathetic story which comes from Saratoga: On Thursday last, an honest chambermaid in Congress Hall, Saratoga, found a lady's beautiful solitaire diamond earring in an old bachelor's room—found it near the pillow, as she was making the bed. She took it to the hotel office, and the clerk posted up this notice: "Found—a lady's solitiare earring. The ring was found in a gentleman's room by the chambermaid. The lady who lost it will find it at the office." Singular to relate, no one appeared to claim the earring, which is worth about four hundred dollars.

An Obstinate Fowl.

A Hinsdale (Mass.) farmer recently took his usual marketing trip to the village, and after he had made his purchasing, the salesman attempted to shove the bundle under the wagon seat, but met with such fierce and determined opposition that he withdrew his hand in great haste. The cause was found to be an old hen that was sitting there upon a nest of eggs, and which, with the pertinacity of fowls at the period of incubation, had stuck to her nest throughout the two-mile ride from the farmer's wagon shed.

Stop Stranger.

Don't "stop and dry the falling tear," but stop before you pass No. 101 Third street, and see whether you cannot buy your shirts, socks, neckties and underwear cheaper there than you can at ny store in the city. z

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Washing Returned in One Day

And we never disappoint at the What Cheer

Appreciative.

The Calavaras Mountaineer published a Angels, has a San Francisco correspondent who writes a capital letter couched in grammatical English, and who can appreciate a good thing. In proof of this we publish what he says of FIGARO in his last letter:

We have in this city a small—that is in size—daily paper called FIGARO. It is devoted principally to theatrical and literary news, and is circulated gratuitously. Although diminutive, like a mosquito, its capacity for annoyance is very great. It buzzes and sings around the journalistic ears of the other city papers, and they never so much as slap (?) at it. FIGARO, though very critical, is as quick to discover literary merit, and acknowledge the same, as it is to mercilessly condemn pretenders. Its criticisms on the Overland Monthly are characterised by so much candor and fairness that it is really a pleasure to read them.

Co-opperation.

Little Willie F., of Greenfield, was recently presented a toy trumpet to which he became greatly attached. One night when he was about to be put to his "little bed," and was ready to say his prayers, he handed the trumpet to his grandmother, saying: "Here, grandma, you blow while I pray."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan.

To-night, one of J. J. McCloskey's latest and most sensational drama, entitled "The Fatal Glass, or Dreaming and Waking," will be presented. The Dashaways, Good Templars, Sons of Temperance, Father Mathew and other temperance societies in this city ought to see to it that the Metropolitan Theatre is crowded while this play is running. The cast appears on our first page.

Alhambra Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Simonsen, the operatic vocalist and talented violinist, are prime favorites with the audience; "The Arizona Diamonds" is a decidedly good act; the fine singing of W. F. Baker, Benjamin Clarke, J. G. Russell and G. G. Rockafellar in the first part is much admired; Delehanty and Hengler continue to delight the audience with their inimitable songs and dances and the amusing Ethiopian farce of "Nip and Tuck" winds up a capital bill.

Bella Union.

Jennie Johnson in serio-comic songs; J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong in Dutch acts; Harry Sinclair, Mat Kelly and Tommy Bree in their great "Decapitation Act;" Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gorlell and others in burlesque opera; Johnny Tuers in song and dance, and Lou McCarty, Carrie Chapman, R. G. Marsh, Will Bark and others in the "Brigand's Oath," are among the attractions offered this evening. Miss Lotta, the ever-pleasing balladist, will make her reappearance at this house to-night.

American Theatre.

"Ireland and America vs. China and Africa" is the taking title of the latest production at this theatre. Clara Starr, Harry Howard, Fan Lowery, Harry Devoe Fanny Webster, Josie, Mayfield, and others mentioned on our first page appear in the cast.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The new star quadruped performers—General Grant, Othello and Gazelle, are great favorites and perform their acts with wonderful skill. The new programme is quite a success, and the pantomime winds up the evening's entertainment very pleasantly.

Pacific Hall.

Pacific Hall will be thronged this evening with the fashion of the city. Miss Minnie Walton will take a benefit and an entertainment of an extraordinarily attractive nature will be given. We have already given the names of those who have volunteered to assist in this testimonial to the popular and talented young actress and vocalist, and refer our readers to the first page of Figaro for the very full and interesting programme to be performed on this occasion. Among the many attractive features we may mention an Irish ballad by Miss Minnie Walton; Lester's song, "The Blue and the Gray," by Vernon Lincoln; ballad "Thou Art so Near," by Miss Mary E. Wadsworth; and a violoncello solo by A. Hartdegen. John O. Williams, a vocalist of whom report speaks well, will make his first appearance on this occasion. Tickets for reserved seats can be obtained to-day at the hall without extra charge.

Italian Opera.

Signor Bianchi announces that his season of Italian opera will commence on Monday evening, September 30th, at the Metropolitan Theatre. "Il Trovatore" will be presented, with M'lle Anna Sonntag as Leonora, Signora G. Bacosias Azucena, Signor Bianchi as Manrico, Signor Sylvas Rossi as Count di Luna, Signor Fulvio Rigo as Ferrando, Mme. G. T. Evans as Inez, M. Charles as Ruiz, and M. Boncovieri as the Gipsy. The chorus will consist of twenty-eight vocalists. Nicolo Ravera and Geo. T. Evans will be conductors of the season. The sale of tickets for single nights will commence on Wednesday next, at the Metropolitan Theatre. Season tickets can be procured at the store of Thos. Houseworth, Lick House Block until that day.

Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller, the poetess, wife of Joaquin Miller, whose last poem "Isles of the Amazons" is appearing in the Overland Monthly, will deliver a lecture bearing the above title on Tuesday next at Pacific Hall. Mrs. Miller, though she undoubtedly met with the most heartless treatment at the hands of her poetic spouse, does not intend to bore the public with a recital of her troubles, but to give a critical analysis of the character of Joaquin Miller as a poet and a man with amusing incidents illustrative of his idiosyncrasies. Mrs. Miller has a charming personal appearance, a sweet voice, much poetic fancy, and a disposition which leads her to view the faults of Joaquin Miller with the coolness of a philosopher, and to attempt rather to make them the subject of amusement than a text for a lugubrious sermon on unkind husbands. A partial synopsis of the lecture appears on our first page.

The Wilton Troupe.

The Wilton Troupe: Miss Billie Wilton, Frank Wilton and dramatic company, who have been playing to crowded houses in Petaluma during the fair, will leave to-morrow for Eureka, Humboldt county. Wherever this company has appeared, the notices of the press have been most favorable.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Lost his Way.

One day last week a man ran through the streets of Detroit shouting that he was "hunting the road to heaven." The general opinion was that he was insane, otherwise he would never have gone to Detroit on that hunt.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Curious Ceremony.

Letters from Ostend, in Belgium, bring us accounts of a curious ceremony that has just been solemnized there, as it takes place every year—the benediction of the sea. A richly adorned altar was erected on the sea shore, and down to this, at the right hour, came in grand procession the cura and his vicars, young girls dressed in white and carrying images of saints and banners, little children in white robes meant to represent angels, and lines of choristers singing as they went, and accompanied by a full band of music. The crowd of people on the passage of the procession and about the altar was very great, and the ceremony of blessing the sea bore a picturesque character. It seemed harshly dissonant to the religious and mediæval tone of the whole that military clamor should be mixed up with it; as the service terminated a salvo of artillery was heard, and all that was quaint and solemn in the scene seemed scattered to the winds.

Systematic Dogs.

An editor who is troubled with dogs in his neighborhood gets off the following: "To-day is the day for them to be run over, Mondays they fight among themselves, Tuesdays they fight visitors, Wednesdays, they are run over by passing teams, Thursdays people throw stones at them, Saturday they chase teams, and on Sunday they observe the higher law, and stay in doors killing fleas. If they didn't have a system and a classification of duties those ten or twelve dogs would have a hard time of it any way. Two of the number have been run over already to-day—a dark brown spaniel, and a long, lean, white dog. They took opposite sides of the street, as soon as the wagon got off from them, and set up business at once. Then the other dogs came out and took a hand in, through sympathy, and the next two minutes were crowded with memories of Babel. For clearness of diction and brilliancy of expression the dogs are unrivalled."

Father and Daughter.

A charcoal peddlar, not far from Hartford, had a Newfoundland dog which he taught to jump into his basket and lie down while he filled in the charcoal. When the peddlar carried the basket full into the cellar, the purchaser looking out of the window and checking the basket was quite satisfied. The dog, well trained, walked out with his master as if nothing had happened. The daughter of this old charcoal peddler has spent several summers at Saratoga, with two large solitares on her person.

Had a Hard Time.

A Troy urchin would be a Mexican vaquaro, so he got a rope, tied one end of it around his body, and then lassooed a cow with the other end. A short time afterward a kind-hearted passer-by untied from the end of the rope a mud-bedaubed, tatter-encased bleeding speciman of humanity, who claimed he was the boy who started with the cow at the other end of the course.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their ohser."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Sonchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

"THE DAY WHEN YOU'LL FORGET ME."

[We publish by request the words of this, the latest popular song of the day. Thousands have listened with pleasure to the singing of it at the Alhambra, by James G. Russell, the gifted baritone, whose beautiful rendition of the song has done so much to popularize it. The words are by George Cooper, and are worthy of the musical setting that the composer, J. K. Thomas, has given them.]

I.

You call me sweet and tender names,
And softly smooth my tresses;
And all the while my happy heart
Beats time to your caresses.
You love me in your tender way,
I answer as you let me;
But ah! there comes another day—
The day when you'll forget me.

II.

I know that every fleeting hour
Is marked by thoughts you bring me;
I know there dwells a subtle power
In the sweet songs I sing you.
I do not fear the darkest way
With those dear arms about me;
Ah! no, I only dread the day
When you can live without me.

III.

And still you call me tender names,
And softly smooth my tresses;
And still my happy answ'ring heart
Beats time to your caresses;
Hush! let me put that touch away,
And clasp your hands above me.
So; while I ask to die that day—
The day when you'll forget me.

IV.

You need not check the thoughts that rise
With darkness wrapt about them
For gazing in your anxious eyes,
My heart can almost doubt them.
Yet hush my whispers as you may,
Such chidings do not fret me;
Ah, no! I only fear that day—
The day when you'll forget me!

A Strange Story.

Here is a pathetic story which comes from Saratoga: On Thursday last, an honest chambermaid in Congress Hall, Saratoga, found a lady's beautiful solitaire diamond earring in an old bachelor's room—found it near the pillow, as she was making the bed. She took it to the hotel office, and the clerk posted up this notice: "Found—a lady's solitaire earring. The ring was found in a gentleman's room by the chambermaid. The lady who lost it will find it at the office." Singular to relate, no one appeared to claim the earring, which is worth about four hundred dollars.

HARRY EDWARDS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOHEMIAN CLUB ROOMS,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 13, 1872

HARRY EDWARDS, Esq.—Dear Sir: Your protracted illness has been a source of anxiety and pain to your fellow members of the Bohemian Club. They fear that you may not be able to resume your professional duties immediately, and as an earnest of their regard for you, they have directed me to convey to you a proposition which may result in relieving the irksomeness of long confinement to the sick-room. It is the desire of the Club to give a dramatic and musical entertainment for your benefit and I ask your permission to carry out this desire.

Should your reply be favorable, the Club will endeavor, with the aid of a large number of volunteers who have already expressed their wish to assist, to afford the public a pleasant evening's entertainment, and at the same time give an opportunity for evidence of that esteem in which you are universally held.

I remain, my dear sir,
Your obedient servant and friend,
THOMAS NEWCOMB,
President Bohemian Club

THE REPLY.

No. 26 CHESNUT STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, 1872

THOS NEWCOMB, ESQ.—My Dear Sir: Your letter proffering me a benefit has affected me very deeply. My crippled hand can so ill perform perform the office of grateful sense I have of the considerate kindness of my brothers of the Bohemian Club—a kindness all the more valued because it was so unexpected, and, at the same time, so delicately and generously displayed.

To refuse the acceptance of so noble an offer would ill-become me, and I know would be hurtful to the friendly feeling which prompted it; and therefore, without attempting thanks, which can never be adequately expressed, I leave myself wholly in your hands and those of the warm-hearted spirits who surround you, whose esteem I am proud to have gained.

Forgive this necessarily brief note, and with all good wishes for yourself and Club, believe me always your sincere friend,

HENRY EDWARDS.

The benefit performance above alluded to will be given at PLATT'S HALL, on the evening of THURSDAY, September 26th. Se16 tf

....FOR....

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's new invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. W.'s residence, No. 42a Sutter street.

THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

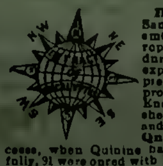
AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!



Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

Stephen Maybell's "Pome."

The Democratic Era of East Portland comes to us with the first instalment of what it calls "Mr. Stephen Maybell's great humerous poem," entitled "Blarney; or, How to Pay the rent." The Era said some days ago that this "pome" was pronounced by good judges to be superior to "Hudibras." It isn't. This sort of thing isn't Hudibrastic though it may do for Oregon editors:

> Said Ted: "You wrong our landlord there,
> To say he'd put so fine a pair
> Of lads as us into the air,
> To sleep upon the dirty mould,
> To catch consumption or a cold,
> And wander, roofless, through the land,
> A pair of hungry orphans, and
> On water and wind puddings feast
> Like the great Chamaleon beast."

Oh no, Mr. Maybell won't do, either as a comic or a sentimental poet. He'll never be a Joaquin Miller; he won't indeed. He had much better give up trying if he finds it interfere with his business. If he likes to do this kind of thing, and can get the Democratic Era to publish his effusions, we don't object. We do object however to the Era's sending Stephen Maybell's doggerel to to us marked as if it expected FIGARO to endorse such stuff. Mr. Maybell's "poetry" has no point in it. If he would ring in something about Moses' $10 pants or Fungus's Hair Invigorator; his verses might be made of practical service as an advertising medium, but as they are at present, there seems to be no apparent reason for their being written.

A Sensible Arrangement.

An Annapolis lady recently informed her husband, to whom she had been married thirteen years, that she loved another man better than she did him, offering to take all five of the children. Interviewing the object of her estranged affections, a worthy marine, the husband was informed that this sentiment was mutual, and that they were bound to live together. Receiving further assurances that the children should be kindly treated, he consented to the arrangement. Such conduct is preferable to cowhiding and revolvers.

Keeping it Up.

A resident of the northern part of Detroit bought his boy a trumpet the other day, and his neighbor, mad at the tooting, bought his boy a drum. Another mad neighbor got his boy a "Devil's Fiddle," one of those things which screech a man's hair upon end. The man across the road gave his boy an old boiler and a club, with instructions to pound as hard as he could. And thus they go on keeping it up all day. Detroit must be a nice place to live in.

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Chemical Treatment of Diseases.

Dr. Cook, No. 56 Second street, treats all chronic diseases chemically, the only successful mode of ring disease. The afflicted, by all means, should sult the Doctor without delay. His experience his remedies sure. v

The Goat Island Matter Settled.

The San Francisco papers have kept very quiet about the matter, but they know all about it East. There isn't to be any Ravenswood bridge—that's only a blind, as the following from Gear's Illustrated Mechanical Advocate, Boston, for September, plainly proves:

The railroad bridge which is to extend across the harbor of San Francisco from the main land to Goat Island, and to which the citizens have been strongly opposed, is to be somewhat of an architectural novelty. It is to run through an immense tube of boiler iron, which supports itself by its own buoyancy, and is held thirty feet below the surface by a complicated system of cables, anchors and buoys. The tube is twenty feet in diameter and is strenghened by an internal frame-work of iron beams. The principal problem with the engineer was to have the buoyancy of the tubes equal the weight of a train of cars, so as to require the minimum of anchorage or support. Should the bridge prove a success submarine railroad tubes may be used where regular tunnels would be impracticable, or at least very expensive.

So it seems that though "the citizens have been strongly opposed" to this bridge it is to be built after all. We should'nt wonder if it has already been commenced. Will the Alta, Bulletin, or some paper, be kind enough so send down a reporter to the city front to see if there is anything doing there in the way of building a bridge? We are sure if a search were made that tube of boiler iron could be found somewhere. Can't a search warrant be issued? Let Stanford be searched. Somebody do something. We are not opposed to that bridge. We don't want it to to be half finished though before the papers say anything about it. We have our suspicions that the end of that submerged tube is to run under ground to that spot where the workmen are excavating under pretense of digging up the Niantic. That is to be the railroad depot. It is central enough, isn't it? Now we hope Mr. Pickering and other people who have been abusing Mr. Stanford will feel ashamed of themselves.

Just So.

The Oakland News says:

Minnie Myrtle Miller intends delivering a lecture in San Francisco on "Joaquin Miller as a poet and a man." As Minnie is something of a poetess, she ought to be able to speak of him as a poet, and as Joaquin is her husband, she ought to be qualified to speak of him as a man.

The subject could not be in better hands. Joaquin Miller as a poet and Joaquin Miller as a man are two distinct individuals, and Mrs. Miller has had opportunities for studying the character of both.

Sad Disappointment.

"I declare," said an old lady, reverting to the promise made on her marriage day, by her liege lord, "I shall not forget when Obadiah put the nuptial ring on my finger, and said, 'With my worldly goods I thee endow.' He used to keep a dry goods store then, and I thought he was going to give me the whole there was in it. I was young and simple then, and did not know till after ward, that it meant one calico gown a year."

Still the Prevailing Theme.

Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, is still the theme of conversation in all circles. The Lakeside Monthly has a long article, giving an account of his Indian life.

Stop Stranger.

Don't "stop and dry the falling tear," but stop before you pass No. 101 Third street, and see whether you cannot buy your shirts, socks, neckties and underwear cheaper there than you can at any store in the city. Z

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

And we never disappoint, at the What Cheer Laundry.

A Failure.

At a certain school in Green county, Iowa, the scholars caught a skunk and put it in the schoolmarm's desk, thinking that she would smell something and give them a holiday. She wasn't one of that kind. She took a spring clothes pin, fastened it on her nose, went on with the exercises, and let the scholars enjoy the perfume.

A broom with a heavy handle was sent as a wedding gift to a bride, with the following sentiment:

> This trifling gift accept from me,
> It's use I'd recommend:
> In sunshine use the bushy part,
> In storm the other end.

The man who popped the question by starlight got his sweetheart's consent in a twinkling.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan.

A good house witnessed the first representation of McCloskey's drama entitled "The Fatal Glass: or, Dreaming and Waking," and enjoyed it much if applause may be taken as a proof of satisfaction. The play has a strong moral running through it; its nature may be gathered from the title. Ambrose Verney, a young man of social habits, is engaged to be married to Mabel Grey. Joseph Bennett loves Mabel and encourages Verney in order that Mabel may become disgusted with him. He tempts him to take a parting glass with him on his wedding morn before plunging into matrimony; he does so and becomes insensible. Then the cloud flats are drawn and the Spirit of Temperance appears and explains that the drama which follows will show what the result of Ambrose Verney's persisting in drinking was lead to. Verney sinks lower and lower, and becomes a beggar, and at last is in jail for murder. Just as he is about to be led forth to execution the cloud flats are again drawn, the Spirit of Temperance reappears, explains that all that has happened is but a dream and the flats reopen on the first scene. Verney realizes that the dream which he has had has been sent as a warning, swears never to touch another drop, and cuts the acquaintance of Joe Bennett. The character of Ambrose Verney was done full justice to last night by E. T. Stetson, who gained much applause, and electrified the audience by his powerful acting in the mad scene in the jail. The part of Mabel Grey is one which suits Miss Henrietta Osborne well, and she played it with much feeling, quite enlisting the sympathies of the audience for the sorely tried wife. In the underplot Miss Maggie Moore did some charmingly natural acting as Fanny Shivers, and W. Simms, as the drunken Joe Shakes, did much to enliven the piece. W. J. Coggswell, as Joe Bennet, the villain of the play, was all that could be desired, and the other characters were generally well played. "The Fatal Glass" will be played to-night, at the matinee to-morrow, to-morrow night, and on Sunday night for the last time. "Daring Dick, the Detective; or, High, Low, Jack and the Game" is to be produced on Monday.

Alhambra Theatre.

All should go to the Alhambra before the very amusing act entitled "Arizona Diamonds" is withdrawn. The acting of Bob Hart, M. Ainsley Scott, Charles Sutton and others in this piece calls forth peals of laughter and applause nightly. Mr and Mrs. Mat in Simonsen, I. McAndrews, G. D. Rockafeller, the famous song and dance men Delehanty and Hengler, and a host of others, will appear at the matinee to-morrow in the excellent programme published on our first page.

Maguire's Opera House.

To-morrow night, Verdi's beautiful opera of "La Traviata" will be produced with the cast which appears on our first page. Signorina Inez Fabbri will do full justice to the part of Violetta.

Bella Union.

Mrs. Charles Coriell gains much applause for her sweetly sung ballads and also in burlesque opera. Johnny Tuers is great in song and dance and negro acts. J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong shine in Dutch acts, and altogether a most entertaining programme is performed. A great bill is in preparation for Saturday night, and on Monday, Madame Therese, premiere danseuse with M. Schmidt in a "pas de deux."

American Theatre.

The new local sketch entitled "Ireland and America vs. China and Africa" has proved quite a success, and with other pieces and a melange of songs, acts and dances affords a pleasing evening's entertainment.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The new acts and new horses introduced in the entertainment given in the pavilion on Jackson street have proved very popular. The full programme will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's Lecture.

The forthcoming lecture, entitled "Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man," to be delivered by Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller at Pacific Hall on Tuesday next, is the subject of general conversation in all circles, and there is much speculation as to how the subject will be treated. As we have seen the lecture, we are able to say authoritatively—in the best possible taste. There will be no revelation of "an unhappy life," as stated in the Alta, but on the contrary a most entertaining analysis of a poetic character. Mrs. Miller has not the least intention of thrusting her griefs on the public in a lecture. Her object is to entertain, instruct and amuse, and give them the full worth of their money. If Joaquin Miller does not appear in an altogether amiable light it cannot be helped.

Pacific Hall.

One of the best musical entertainments of the season was given at Pacific Hall last night for the benefit of Miss Minnie Walton, who is deservedly a great favorite with the public both as an actress and a vocalist. Almost everything in the long programme was encored. The beneficiary sang in the first part an Irish ballad, "The Pretty Girl Milking her Cow," and in response to an enthusiastic encore a charming Spanish song which was much applauded. Miss Mollie Bradford was in fine voice and sang splendidly. John O. Williams, who made his first appearance on this occasion is a fine tenor robusto, and sang two songs in good style. Miss Mary E. Wadsworth sang both in the first and second part, and was much applauded. Altogether the entertainment was worth twice the money charged for admission.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Special to the Ladies.

MRS. SCHLOSS begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—426 Kearny street, near Pine. B

Stop Stranger.

Don't "stop and dry the falling tear," but stop before you pass No. 101 Third street, and see whether you cannot buy your shirts, socks, neckties and underwear cheaper there than you can at any store in the city. 2

Jealousy.

Jealousy, says Arthur Helps, the well-known English essayist, is at once the meanest and the most unaccountable of vices. What belongs to us we shall have inevitably and what we want and have not we shall never win by unreason. If we are lovely we shall be loved; and if we are unloveable we shall not be loved. Jealousy of the wealth, the social importance, or the happiness of others, is alike unaccountable and absurd. Your own house is not the lowlier because your neighbor's is four stories high and brown stone. If he should fail, and have to give up his carriage, it would only crowd the horse cars a little more, and by no means provide you with chaise and buggy. What is it in human nature that makes us poorer because our neighbor is eating roast duck and drinking champagne? To envy the love seems equally idle. Hearts keep their accounts, usually with very tolerable fairness. We shall receive that of which we are worthy, no more—and what is our own by virtue of our desert no fate can take away.

Is it Possible?

We find the following advertisement in a London paper:

GOOD TEETH, 3s. 6d.: BEST 5s.: MADE BY the ONLY LADY DENTIST. MRS HARDINGE, 41, New North-road, Hoxton. Every speciality of Artificial Teeth made and repaired. Toothache instantly cured, without without extraction. Teeth stopped and sealed. See Testimonials. A set of Teeth from £1 to £10.

Can it be the wife of Wylde Hardinge, (formerly Miss Belle Boyd, the Rebel Spy), has settled in London and gone into the tooth business? It seems likely. "The only lady dentist!" Perhaps she is doing a good business, having the field to herself. If this is the case, Wylde Hardinge will soon find her out with the hope of by her means getting his teeth set occasionally—in a beef steak.

Rough on a Sport.

Allen, one of the Melbourne betting men, illegally convicted of fraud, and tried at last Denliquin Court of Quarter Sessions, has been released from Denliquin gaol. The Pastoral Times says he soon made tracks across the Murray into Victoria. He was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment with hard labor, and would have soon been sent to Sydney in irons, had not the Supreme Court discharged him on technical grounds. He was imprisoned for about two months. The Melbourne ring men stuck to him well in his troubles.

Imprudent.

The Methodist Episcopal Conference of California in session at San Jose passed the following resolution: "Resolved that the use of tobacco—except as a medicine is unbecoming a Christian minister." As tobacco is not very much used as a medicine, this puts the Methodist minister's pipe out and may perhaps drive him to drink.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance old stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrepins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeling is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. E. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. E

SOMETIMES.

I wish to lead a pleasant life,
Avoiding dune and debt,
To keep aloof from care and strife,
And neither game nor bet.
Yet somehow it would be a cram
To say I'm blest in lot;
Because you see sometimes I am—
But then sometimes I'm not.

It's very nice, when in a shop,
To buy whate'er you view,
Provided want of cash won't pop
'Twixt purchases and you.
I wish I were a wealthy man
To buy things that enchant;
Because you see sometimes I can—
But then, sometimes I can't.

It's quite delightful—truly fun—
To act as things may strike;
And pleasant, too, to leave undone
The things one doesn't like.
I often wish to have my way,
Thus free from all restraint;
Because you see sometimes I may—
But then, sometimes I mayn't.

An even temper to possess—
A mind that's balanced well—
Must be a bliss I can't express,
That tongue may never tell.
My temper's pretty fair, but still
Not tranquilly I don't;
Because you see sometimes I may—
But then, sometimes I won't.

Well, well! The best a man can do
Is not to growl at fate,
Not too depressed when ills accrue,
At bliss not too elate;
That I may so behave, old pal,
I would the heavens would grant;
Because, although sometimes I shall,
I know, sometimes I shan't.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experiences, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

HARRY EDWARDS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOHEMIAN CLUB ROOMS,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 13, 1872

HARRY EDWARDS, Esq.—Dear Sir: Your protracted illness has been a source of anxiety and pain to your fellow members of the Bohemian Club. They fear that you may not be able to resume your professional duties immediately, and as an earnest of their regard for you, they have directed me to convey to you a proposition which may result in relieving the irksomeness of long confinement to the sick-room. It is the desire of the Club to give a drama to and musical entertainment for your benefit and I ask your permission to carry out this desire.

Should your reply be favorable, the Club will endeavor, with the aid of a large number of volunteers who have already expressed their wish to assist, to afford the public a pleasant evening's entertainment, and at the same time give an opportunity for evidence of that esteem in which you are universally held.

I remain, my dear sir,
Your obedient servant and friend,
THOMAS NEWCOMB,
President Bohemian Club

THE REPLY.

No. 226 CHESNUT STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, 1872

THOS NEWCOMB, ESQ.—My Dear Sir: Your letter proffering me a benefit has affected me very deeply. My crippled hand can ill perform perform the office of grateful sense I have of the considerate kindness of my brothers of the Bohemian Club—a kindness all the more valued because it was so unexpected, and, at the same time, so delicately and generously displayed.

To refuse the acceptance of so noble an offer would ill-become me, and I know would be hurtful to the friendly feeling which prompted it: and therefore, without attempting thanks, which can never be adequately expressed, I leave myself wholly in your hands and those of the warm-hearted spirits who surround you, whose esteem I am proud to have gained.

Forgive this necessarily brief note, and with all good wishes for yourself and Club, believe me always your sincere friend,

HENRY EDWARDS.

The benefit performance above alluded to will be given at PLATT'S HALL, on the evening of THURSDAY, September 26th. Se16 tf

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that wh[illegible] prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity [illegible] Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is [illegible].

FRIDAY............SEPTEMBER 20, 1872

Oh! For the Olden Times

We learn from an exchange that "Ptolemy Philadelphus of Egypt was worth $350,000,000; that Cicero, who was a poor man, gave $200,000 for his house, and Clodius paid $750,000 for his establishment on the Palatine, while Messala gave $2,000,000 for the house of Antony. Seneca, who was just a plain philosopher, was worth $12,000,000. Tiberius left a property of nearly $120,000,000. Cæsar, before he entered into office, owed $15,000,000." The reflections excited by these figures are painful. When we think of the unparalled chances which then existed for borrowing money, we cannot but regret that we were born so late in the world's history. Our respect for Cæsar, however, is somewhat decreased. We never thought that we could accomplish as much in any direction as he did; and yet, with all his greatness, he could only owe fifteen millions, while we feel absolutely certain that we could succeed in owing fifteen billions, if it became necessary. Men must judge of their capacity for great things by their success with small things. And, when we find that we are capable of owing $100 without wetting a hair, or suffering from indigestion, or feeling at all overburdened, we are certain that we could owe billions of dollars with a happy cheerfulness which would make those old Romans' hair stand on end.

A Sad Warning.

In the crop of a rooster which was killed in Georgia, a few days ago, was found a handful of brass buttons. The discovery, painful as it was, still was interesting to the parents of a charming little boy who disappeared mysteriously about six months ago. The only doubt that now exists is as to whether that rooster killed that little boy and hid him away, so that he could be eaten piecemeal, or whether he swallowed him at one gulp? If the latter was the case, it is thought by connoisseurs that the rooster must have required much more exercise than usual, in order to avoid indigestion. The whole sad incident supplies a warning to little boys with brass buttons never to go near a rooster without wearing a hoop-skirt or something to make ingress to the rooster's maw impossible, and to parents to keep their untamed roosters chained securely.

Dust.

A young woman once married a man by the name of Dust against the wishes of her parents. After a short time they began to quarrel, and she attempted to return to her parent's house, but they refused to receive her, saying—"Dust thou art, and unto Dust thou shalt return." And she got up and dusted.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

MARRIAGES OF GREAT MEN.

Byron married Miss Milbank to get money to pay his debts. It turned out a bad shift.

Robert Burns married a farm girl with whom he fell in love while they worked together in the plow-field. He was irregular in his life, and committed the most serious mistakes in conducting his domestic affairs.

Milton married the daughter of a country squire, but lived with her but a short time. He was an austere, exacting recluse, while she was a rosy, romping country girl that could not endure the restraint imposed on her, so they parted. Subsequently, however, she returned, and they lived tolerably happy.

Queen Victoria and Prince Albert were cousins, and about the only example in the long line of English monarchs wherein the marital vows were sacredly observed, and sincere affection existed.

Shakspeare loved and wedded a farmer's daughter. She was faithful to her vows, but we could hardly say the same of the great bard himself. Like most of the great poets, he showed too little discrimination in bestowing his affections on the other sex.

Washington married a woman with two children. It is enough to say that she was worthy of him, and they lived as married folks should—in perfect harmony.

John Adams married the daughter of a Presbyterian clergyman. Her father objected on account of John's being a lawyer. He had a bad opinion of the morals of the profession.

John Howard, the great philanthropist, married his nurse. She was altogether beneath him in social life and intellectual capacity, and besides this, was fifty-two years old while he was but twenty-five. He would not take "No" for an answer, and they were married and lived happily together until she died, which occurred two years afterwards.

Peter the Great, of Russia, married a peasant girl. She made an excellent wife and a sagacious Empress.

Humboldt married a poor girl because he loved her. Of course they were happy.

It is not generally known that Andrew Jackson married a lady whose husband was still living. She was an uneducated, but amiable woman, and devotedly attached to the old warrior and statesman.

John C. Calhoun married his cousin, and their children, fortunately, were neither diseased nor idiotic, but they do not evince the talent of the great "State Rights" advocate.

Edward Bulwer Lytton, the English novelist and statesman, married a girl much his inferior in position, and got a shrew for a wife. She is now insane.

Decidedly Wrong.

We shall stop praising the Boston Courier if it neglects to give credit. A note from the office of the Overland Monthly calls our attention to the fact that the Boston Courier, received this week, republished Miss Ina Coolbrith's beautiful lines headed "Loneliness," and while it gives the author's name, omits to credit it to the Overland Monthly. This is bad. We are anxious to see all articles of merit, taken from the Overland Monthly by Eastern papers duly credited to that magazine in order that its publishers may be thereby encouraged in paying for compositions that will raise our California magazine to the standard of excellence we wish it to reach.

Railroad Mass Meeting.

It will be seen by refering to our advertising columns that a mass meeting of citizens is called to meet at Pacific Hall, California Theatre building, to-morrow evening, to take in consideration the action of the Hon. Board of Supervisors last Monday night on the Railroad question. The meeting will doubtless be a monster one. Judge Heger, M. M. Estee, and other able speakers will address the people on the subject.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—McCloskey's moral drama entitled "The Fatal Glass, or, Dreaming and Waking," a synopsis of the plot of which was given in yesterday's issue, was presented again last night. There were evidently many in the audience who know how it was themselves, and it may be hoped that the applause which followed the virtuous sentiments so feelingly uttered by E. T. Stetson, Miss Henrietta Osborne, and others filling parts in the play, will confirm good resolutions formed while listening to them. This play will be performed at the matinee, this evening and to-morrow night for the last time. On Monday another of McCloskey's dramas entitled "Daring Dick, the Detective; or, High, Low, Jack and the Game," will be produced.

THE ALHAMBRA.—Well-pleased audiences have attended the bright and sparkling entertainment given by Maguire's California Minstrels every night during the present week. The programme which has proved so popular on these occasions, will be performed at the matinee to-day, when a large audience of ladies and children will enjoy the dry humor of Bob Hart, laugh at Charles Sutton's extravagant jokes, listen to the sweet singing of Benjamin Clarke, W. F. Baker G. D. Beckafeller and J. G. Russell, and admire the neat and artistic dances of Delehanty and Hengler. The new feature of English opera will be introduced in the programme next week.

BELLA UNION.—To-night, another of those dramas which have become as popular a feature of the performances at this house as they used to be at the old Bowery, New York, will be produced. It is entitled "The Baronet Abroad; or, the Smuggler's Den." The operatic extravaganza of "Oh Bosh," arranged by Charles Oerieli, will be given, and the rich programme of songs, acts and dances published on our first page will be presented in full. On Monday evening Mme. Therese, premiere danseuse, and M. Schmidt will appear in the ballet divertissement, "Lo Zingara."

NEW AMERICAN THEATRE.—Three local sensational plays, pleasing tableaux, graceful dances, popular ballads, amusing comic songs, and side-splitting negro acts make up a programme that is very popular with the visitors to this place of amusement for the million.

CHIARINI'S ROYAL ITALIAN CIRCUS.—The splendid programme performed nightly by the brilliant combination of equestrian and gymnastic talent known as Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus Troupe, continues to draw thousands of spectators every night. It will be presented in full at the matinee, to-night and to-morrow night. Novelties are in preparation for next week.

MAGUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—To-night will be the fourth of the highly successful season of Italian opera given by the Fabbri Troupe. On each night Maguire's Opera House has been crowded by a fashionable audience, and the performance has been accepted as presenting so many beauties as to disarm criticism. To-night, Verdi's ever-popular opera of "La Traviata" will be presented. Signorina Inez Fabbri has an European reputation in the role of Violetta, the splendid baritone voice of Jacob Moller will be heard to advantage in the character of Germont, Miss Anna Elzer, always charming, will play Flora, L. Eisenbach, Alfred and the other roles will be filled by Miss Mora, Mons. Charles, Mons. Bretshina and Mons. Roncovieri. On Sunday, by request "Ernani" will be performed, and on Wednesday of next week the grand opera of "Norma," which has long been in preparation, will be produced with Signorina Inez Fabbri in the title role.

THE BIANCHI OPERA SEASON.—The season of Italian Opera at the Metropolitan Theatre, under the management of Signor Bianchi, will commence on Monday 30th, when "Il Trovatore," will be presented with M'lle Anna Sonntag in the title role; Signora G. Bianchi in her favorite character of Azucena, Signor P. Baccei as Manrico, Signor Sylves Rossi as Conti di Luna, Signor G. Rigo as Ferrando, Madame G. T. Evans as Inez, Mons Charles as Ruiz, and Mons. Roncovieri as the Gipsy. During the season among other operas, "William Tell," "La Juive," and "Moses in Egypt" will be presented. Signor Bianchi promises the public the grandest season of Italian Opera ever presented in California, and will certainly leave nothing in his power undone to secure this result. The sale for tickets for single nights and parts of the season will commence on Wednesday next at the Metropolitan Theatre Subscription for the season will be received until that date at the store of Thomas Houseworth & Co, Lick House Block.

MRS. MINNIE MYRTLE MILLER'S LECTURE.—The forthcoming lecture, entitled "Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man," to be delivered by Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller at Pacific Hall on Tuesday next, is the subject of general conversation in all circles, and there is much speculation as to how the subject will be treated. As we have seen the lecture, we are able to say authoritatively:—in the best possible taste. There will be no revelation of "an unhappy life," as stated in the Alta, but on the contrary a most entertaining analysis of a poetic character. Mrs. Miller has not the least intention of thrusting her griefs on the public in a lecture. Her object is to entertain, instruct and amuse, and give them the full worth of their money. If Joaquin Miller does not appear in an altogether amiable light it cannot be helped.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—There will be extraordinary attractions at this popular pleasure gardens to-morrow. Miss Frances Hale, the Queen of Skates, will make her first appearance. R. W. Kohler, the famous cornet soloist, will perform and a fine concert will be given. In addition to this the Curtis Brothers will appear in character acts on skates; Senor Rosa will go through his wonderful feats of contortion, and the wonderful infant skaters, Jenny Bishop and Abby Peplow will appear.

BADGER'S CENTRAL PARK, OAKLAND.—Charles Aloer's Metropolitan Band will give an instrumental concert at these gardens to-morrow, in addition to the many other attractions of these beautiful gardens.

FRED LYSTER.—This gentleman, long associated in the management of the Lyster Opera Troupe, and more recently business manager of the California Theatre, has been secured as manager of the season of Italian opera at the Metropolitan Theatre.

SHERIDAN CORBYN.—Sheridan Corbyn so long connected with the profession as theatrical agent, both in this State and in the Eastern States, has made application to be admitted to practise law in the County.

HENRY EDWARD'S BENEFIT.—Tickets for Henry Edwards's benefit, to come off on Thursday next at Platt's Hall, are in great demand, and the prospect is that they will all be bought up before the night of the performance. Bohemia is a power in the land. The Bohemian Club tendered this benefit, Bohemians are managing it, and Bohemians will take part in the the entertainment. The very full and excellent programme to be offered will be published shortly. A feature will be an original farce by McCracken Bungletos, acted by Owen Marlowe and other members of the Bohemian Club. The other members will make their "first appearance on any stage." The public are requested to refrain from Greeleyish tributes in the shape of vegetables, as if they get off with their lives this time they will never appear again. The name of the farce is "Diamond Dividends."

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—This theatre will reopen in a reconstructed form on Monday, Sept. 30th. The opening piece will be "Look Before You Leap," a standard comedy by George Lovell, author of "Love's Sacrifice." The box office will be open on Tuesday at 9 o'clock for the sale of reserved seats for the opening night. To prevent tickets falling into the hands of speculators and being afterwards sold at a premium each purchaser will be limited to six seats.

CITY GARDENS.—On Sunday, the Buislay Family, nine in number, will give an entertainment in the Pavilion. E. Buislay will make the Spiral Mountain Ascension; Mme. Stacy will do a daring act on the Swinging Trapeze, and full performance will be given; after which G. Buislay will make his grand ascension in the new balloon, weather permitting.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Now, when we are at length enjoying a little summer weather, the Cliff House road is crowded with fast teams conveying people to Captain Foster's ne plus ultra of seaside hotels. Hundreds will visit this beautiful resort to-morrow, and those who have no team can get out by cars and omnibus at small expense.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The Metropolitan Theatre was opened for the season by Proctor's company on Monday. "Eileen Oge" was played with Miss Minnie Walton, Mrs. Proctor, Kate Denin, John Wilson, J. J. C. Williamson, U. Edmonds, Miss Jennie Reiffarth, and others in the cast. It was repeated on the following evening On Wednesday "The Serious Family," was played on Thursday "Miriam's Crime." John Wilson's Circus with new performers, new horses, and new collection of wild beasts, opened on the plaza on the 16th. The Conklin Brothers' Circus and Yankee Robinson's show exhibited on the 19th. The Academy of music is running under the management of W. E. Rogers, with the Reynolds Brothers, Ida Fisk, Harry Kelly, Cogill and Cooper, and other variety performers, The Child American Troupe, consisting of the boy violinist, aged five years; Miss May Leslie, the accomplished vocalist and pianista; Edgar Stanley, tenor; and Prof. Speight, violinist and conductor, are giving concerts day and evening in a building on K street.

SAN LEANDRO.—Professor Plummer, the humorous elocutionist, gave an entertainment at the Rink last night.

STOCKTON.—A concert was given at Hickman's Hall for the benefit of St. Mary's Church on Monday last.

GRASS VALLEY.—Conklin Brothers Combination Circus and Yankee Robinson's great show exhibited on the 18th. The Union says:

> The circus performance last evening attracted a large crowd to the monster tent, and everybody seemed to enjoy the fun.

NEVADA CITY.—Conklin Brothers' Circus on the 17th.

GOLD HILL.—John Maguire has established a new branch of industry; it is taking benefits. He had a benefit at Virginia City only a short time ago, and on Wednesday he had another at Gold Hill. That man would try to get up a benefit in San Jose.

SALEM, O.—G. B. Waldron and dramatic troupe opened at Reed's Opera House on the 16th, in Macbeth.

WALLA WALLA.—Charles Vivian, Marie Gaugain, and others are performing at the theatre.

SALT LAKE.—Geo. D. Chaplin and Jean Clara Walters are playing at the theatre supported by the regular company. On Sept. 10th a great bill was performed, such a bill as we suppose was never presented before at any theatre on the face of the earth. The evening's entertainment commenced with "Nick of the Woods," and ended—ye gods! with "Norma." This was announced on the bills as follows:

> After the play will be produced the grand tragic opera of "Norma" under the immediate superintendence of Prof. Thomas, who, having been the favorite pupil and bosom friend of Bellini, is eminently qualified to conduct so important a work. the chorus has been increased to six, and the principal characters distributed as follows: Norma, Grand Prima Donna. Mr. G. D. Chaplin; Adelgisa, her Grand Rival, Miss Jean Clara Walters, etc.

We suppose this must have been a burlesque, but it reads funnily. The Maxim gas with which this theatre was lighted, and about which so much was said has proved a most lamentable failure as may be seen by the following, which we take from the house bill:

> NOTICE.—The Theatre will be lighted up with coal oil, every night in future, until the Maxim Gas shall prove a success.

Under these circumstances we think the Salt Lake Theatre will be lighted with coal oil for a long time. The Maxim Gas Company may add this to its long list of failures.

EASTERN DRMATIC NEWS.

Mr. Frank Mayo is very popular at the Opera House, Rochester.

W. J. Florence has returned with several new plays. He is much improved in health and strength

John T. Raymond has withdrawn from his engagement at Wallack's Theatre, to play Asa Trenchard to Mr. Sothern's Dundreary. Charles Wheatleigh will likely be engaged to play Asa Trenchard.

Miss Charlotte Thompson opened at the Holliday Street Theatre, Baltimore, on the 9th.

The regular season of the Globe Theatre, commenced on the 17th.

Mrs. Caroline Richings Bernard, made her first appearance this season at a concert in Philadelphia, on the 5th.

Philadelphia papers assert that Mr. Augustin Daley is not managerially connected with the Chestnut Street Theatre.

The New York Critic says:

> Mr. Creswick, who was very courteously treated. when here, has been heard by several American actors to abuse this country and its theatres ferociously since his return to London.

This is shocking. Why does'nt some one put a head on him?

Joseph Jefferson, on account of his eyes, has been compelled to retire temporarily from the stage, and all of his immediate engagements have been cancelled.

At Ford's Grand Opera House, Baltimore, Md., the season will be inaugurated on Sept. 23d, instead of the 19th, as heretofore stated. Mrs. Chanfrau, supported by Frederic Robinson and a company will be the attraction.

The last New York Clipper, received chronicles the following arrivals;

> D. C. Anderson has returned from England, looking much improved in health.
>
> Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault, Miss Geraldine, Stuart, and Mr. C. Alexander, who are to play at Booth's; W. J. Florence, and Geo. C. Boniface, arrived from Europe during the past week.
>
> Signor Mario, the renowned tenor, arrived in this city Sept. 3d. He made his first appearance in this city at Castle Garden, with Giulia Grisi, opening in "Lucrezia Borgia," on Sept. 4th, 1854, When the Academy of Music was opened, on Oct. 2d, of that year, these artists sang in "Norma."

The Clipper speaking of the performance of Emerson's California Minstrels, at 720 Broadway, says:

> The witticisms of the first part were mostly fresh and enjoyable. Among these Billy Emerson introduced a novel idea. First telling a story that a number of persons, travelling in a railroad car, to relieve the monotony of the journey, agreed to sing each a verse of a song; he then acted the scene, impersonating a lisping dry goods clerk, a stalwart Irish rough, a portly Dutchman, and an elderly man of some three score years of age. The various dialects, both while singing and speaking were well portrayed, and his simulation of old age took the audience by surprise. Each impersonation was lavishly applauded. Mr. Emerson may be regarded as one of the best end men in the country, and those who had hitherto seen him only in songs and dances could form no idea of his great and varied abilities. Later in the evening, when he performed several songs and dances, he failed to rouse much enthusiasm, not for lack of ability, but chiefly because that his selections were old, and that branch of the business had been so well worn, and lacks novelty, that it wearies rather than pleases the auditor. So excellent an artiste as Mr. Emerson can afford to give up a department of the profession in which years since he ranked among the first.

It also says;

> The business of the week was excellent, and the prospects of a successful season are good. T. Maguire and Billy Emerson are the proprietors and managers; J. A. Palmer is director of amusements and J. S. Cox, musical director.

Sergeant Burke, the zouave drill performer, was in Philadelphia on the 6th inst., en route for Louisville, Ky., where he commenced an engagement on the 8th inst.

Dion Boucicault's impersonation of an old Irish valet in his new play of "Night and Morning," is said to be a remarkable fine piece of character acting.

The Red Pocket Book was running in New York and Boston at the same time, and was roughly handled by the critics in both cities. We gave the opinion of the New York press last week The Boston Saturday evening Gazette says;

> It is a somewhat bald translation of a French melo-drame, and a very wearisome and improbable affair. When we add that the dialogue is stilted and "twaddlesome," that the sentiment is dismally maudlin and the humor painfully forced and cheerfully sad, we have said all that is necessary about the intellectual qualities of the production.

The Courier says:

> It would be idle to criticise the play from an artistic standpoint, for every law of art is either violated or ignored.

Mr. Charles Pope, the leading man, has made a hit at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, as Badger.

Mr. L. P. Barrett is playing "Julius Cæsar on the New England route, supported by a selected company.

The Rand Sisters have made a hit in "The Field of the Cloth of Gold" at the Holliday Street Theatre, Baltimore.

Miss Leo Hudson opened at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, on the 16th, under the management of Mr. J. P. Smith.

Mr. Albert Aiken has appeared in "The Witches of New York" at the St. James Theatre, Boston. The Gazette says;

> The cry is, still they come! The ST. JAMES THEATRE presented another of those fearful inflictions of which "On Hand," "Dollars," "On the Track," "Across the Continent," and "the Female Detective," are the prototypes. This time it is called "The Witches of New York," and Mr. Albert Aiken is the perpetrator. It is the old, old story. A WILL—shall we ever be released from this well-worn cause of so much dramatic woe?—is at the bottom of the plot. A villain steals and withholds it from the rightful possessor; he is brought to grief, the wrong is made right, virtue triumphs;—Ozing!—boum!—red fire!—huzza! This play is a fearful and wonderful affair. Society is satirized with remorseless bitterness, the dramatic critic held up to withering scorn, and the ballet girl brought forward for admiration with a chivalry that calls for the most unqualified praise. The dialogue is drivelling dribble-drabble from beginning to end. Its only redeeming points are its rapid action and its spirited tableaux.

Mr. Edward Thorne will ere long make his appearance as a star in a new sensational drama.

Mr. Sothern's Dundreary attracted crowded houses at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

The late report regarding Edith Challis's sudden accession to fortune originated with Sothern and the English play-wright, Addison. They are old friends of the lady, and inserted the story in a London paper by way of a joke, and in order to give her a professional lift by making her talked about.

James E. Nixon has engaged the Yeddo Japs for a year, and will travel with them

The New York Mercury says: Mr. P. Spaulding is playing a small troupe of bell ringers in the towns around Boston, but will again unite with Delehanty and Hengler on their return from California, after the Presidential election.

The New York Programme has consolidated with with the Critic, and comes to us very much improved. It is full of news of which we have freely availed ourselves in our Eastern summary.

A new theatre is proposed for the south end of Boston, at the junction of Tremont, Berkely and Appleton streets. The owner of the land will be the chief shareholder.

In Richmond, Va The Concordia Sociale, a Jewish Dramatic and Ethiopian Association, gave an entertainment for the benefit of the Sothern Cross Brotherhood, towards enabling them to remove the Richmond dead at Gettysburg to Hollywood Cemetery, near Richmond. Regular season of theatre commences 23d.

The New York Mercury says:

> Mrs. James A. Oates' burlesque company opened season at Cleveland 16th. Among the company will be John Howson, eccentric and character actor; Wm. H. Crane, low comedian, H. H. Pratt, J. H. Jones. Howson will also be female impersonator. On coming from Australia, Howson stopped at a number of Pacific islands. He is enthusiastic over the women of Otaheite. He says they are the color of a new saddle, have rich, dark-brown hair, and figures willowy and graceful. Their babies, he observes, when married to French settlers, are often wonders of beauty. Howson, notwithstanding that he often disguises his face in old men, is a very good-looking young fellow, and a gentleman. We recommend him to the girls.

Fayette Welch commenced a four weeks' engagement at the American Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Sept. 16th.

The receipts of the Grand Opera House for the first week, amounted to $21,500 for the seven performances, the Saturday evening realizing $3,4'2—the heaviest week in the career of that theatre. The first week of "Lalla Rookh" gave $17,9.9; that of the "Twelve Temptations" $16,406.

At the Olympic Theatre, "The Red Pocketbook" has been withdrawn and was succeeded on Monday evening, Sept. 16th by Miss Charlotte Thompson, in "One Wife."

The New York Home Journal says of the new play by the author of "Saratoga," with which the Fifth Avenue Theatre opened:

> Modelled upon the Sheridan type of society comedy, which shoots folly as it flies, but has no special relation to the deeper current of humor illustrated in the comedy of Shakespeare. Mr. Howard's "Diamonds" is defective in invention; presents none of those novel and witty situations in which the old comedies excel; and is by no means happy in its dialogue, except in the small way of floral decoration which parades in wreathing the hackneyed and threadbare with puns and bon mots instead of inventing or originating. All this is clever; but, like Mrs. Plunkett in the play, it is paste.

Edwin Forrest has engaged to deliver a series of Shakespearian readings at Steinway Hall, New York, in November.

The Berger Family Bell Ringers intend visiting Cuba and Mexico during the coming season. A concert on a grand scale will be given by them at Jackson, Mich., previous to starting on their next tour.

G. F. Orrin and three of his children are travelling in the interior of Cuba with the Grand Circo de Gonzales.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Boucicault's extravaganza, "Babil and Bijou," has probably been produced before this at the Covent Garden. The piece is to be the grandest spectacle of modern days. In the acting parts the lucky Londoners are to see Mrs. Howard Paul, Mrs. Billington, Mrs. Sinclair and Lionel Brough. Mrs. Paul is to sing a song calculated to take the town by storm; the words are by Planche and the music by Fred Clay. Something like 800 employes altogether will be engaged in the production of the piece. The River of Life will be one of its great scenes, embodying an idea far beyond those of modern extravaganza or faerie.

At Drury Lane, "The Lady of the Lake" is to eclipse in scenery and fustian, in upholstery and anpere, in armored knights and ladies in false hair, all that has yet been seen under the Prospero-like wand of the successful Chatterton.

There is a pretty patriotic moral attached to a drama now performing at Vincennes. It is called "Vengeance and the Wooden Leg." The Marquis de Solanges, who lost his leg at Solferino, finds a stranger at the feet of his fiancee. The stranger draws his sword. "No matter," says the marquis; "mine was left in the body of an Austrian general. No matter!" And he unscrews his wooden leg, with which he strikes his adversary dead, crying Vive la France! while the orchestra strike up the "Marseillaise, and the fiancee, touched by this act of patriotism, substitutes the support of her arm for that of the missing limb, and leads the marquis back to the chateau.

Sir Michael Costa will have the management of one of the London opera houses next season.

HARRY EDWARDS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOHEMIAN CLUB ROOMS,
AN FRANCISCO, September 12, 1872

HARRY EDWARDS, ESQ.—Dear Sir: Your protracted illness has been a source of anxiety and pain to your fellow members of the Bohemian Club. They fear that you may not be able to resume your professional duties immediately, and as an earnest of their regard for you, they have directed me to convey to you a proposition which may result in relieving the irksomeness of long confinement to the sick-room. It is the desire of the Club to give a dramatic and musical entertainment for your benefit and I ask your permission to carry out this desire.

Should your reply be favorable, the Club will endeavor, with the aid of a large number of volunteers who have already expressed their wish to assist, to afford the public a pleasant evening's entertainment, and at the same time give an opportunity for evidence of that esteem in which you are universally held.

I remain, my dear sir,
Your obedient servant and friend,
THOMAS NEWCOMB,
President Bohemian Club

THE REPLY.

No. 2 6 CHESNUT STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, September 14, 1872

THOS NEWCOMB, ESQ.—My Dear Sir: Your letter proffering me a benefit has affected me very deeply. My crippled hand can as ill perform perform the office of grateful sense I have of the considerate kindness of my brothers of the Bohemian Club—a kindness all the more valued because it was so unexpected, and, at the same time, so delicately and generously displayed.

To refuse the acceptance of so noble an offer would ill-become me, and I know would be hurtful to the friendly feeling which prompted it; and therefore, without attempting thanks, which can never be adequately expressed, I leave myself wholly in your hands and those of the warm-hearted spirits who surround you, whose esteem I am proud to have gained.

Forgive this necessarily brief note, and with all good wishes for yourself and Club, believe me always your sincere friend,
HENRY EDWARDS.

The benefit performance above alluded to will be given at PLATT'S HALL, on the evening of THURSDAY, September 26th. Se16 tf

THE GREAT REMEDY

FOR

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

[illegible]

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Organs, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

O. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, [illegible] California and Davis sts.
E. G. Mathews, Drain Merchant, 208 Davis st.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
White every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

Fresh and Sweet.

For the best confectionery, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St. near Sutter. N

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. N

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. a

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which

LETTER FROM PORTLAND.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

PORTLAND (Oregon), Sept. 13th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—Manager Geo. B. Waldron inaugurated his present season on Saturday last, the 7th inst., with "Macbeth," to the largest audience ever assembled in the Oro Fino Theatre. Preparations for more than a month had been made for the successful production of the play, at an enormous expense, but the attendance on the opening and ensuing nights up to the present has more than assured Mr. Waldron that his outlay has not been made in vain. The new scenes painted by Petzgold for "Macbeth" are as follows: Dark Wood, Palace at Fores, Witch's Heath, Macbeth's Castle at Inverness, Banqueting Room in the Palace at Fores, Witch's Cavern, and Hall in Dunsinane. As a work of art the drop curtain will compare very favorably with any in the country. It represents the well-known Castle le Mare in Italy at the close of a summer's day, encircled amidst fragrant foliage, a halo of ephemeral hues giving a transparent semblance to the waters in the foreground, to the left of which stands the ruins of the feudal berry and outlook, the flocks grazing in miniature oases encircled by ruined facades and dilapidated monuments of the past, while the lazy shepherd watches with lethargic indifference the sun sinking behind the venerable mountains that tower in fantastic disorder in the background. It is without doubt an ornament to the establishment. The cast of the opening piece was as follows: Macbeth, G. B. Waldron; Lady Macbeth, Mrs. E. F. Stewart; Macduff, Robert Fulford; Banquo, R. H. Cox; First Witch, W. C. Crosbie; Second Witch, Mrs. G. B. Waldron; Malcom, S. Piercy; Duncan, W. R. Fortier; Rosse, E. Lipsis; Bleeding Sergeant, J. Barrows; Hecate, Miss Pixley; Singing Witch, Mrs. Fulford; Gentlewoman, Mrs. Lipsis. The remainder of the cast was most admirably sustained by the other members of the company. Mr. Waldron's very masterly portraiture of the title role more than surprised his warmest friends; none doubted his ability to render passably the above most difficult of Shakspearean characters, but few expected to witness the really artistic acting displayed by him on Saturday night.

The dagger soliloquy delivered in Mr. Waldron's distinct voice was all that could be desired. "Hear it not, Duncan; for it is a knell that summons thee to Heaven or to Hell"—at its termination, with thunder and lightning, terribly impressed our Portlanders who are unaccustomed to such heavy tragedy. Mrs. Stewart's Lady Macbeth called forth the highest encomiums from both press and public, her acting of Lady Macbeth was artistic in every particular. It is well known Mrs. Stewart has few if any equals on the stage in intensity and perfection of rendition of Lady Macbeth. Mr. Vinson, Mr. Fulford, Mr. Cleaves, and Mr. Fortier, very ably sustained their allotted roles. "The Lion of St. Mark" and "The Hidden Hand," will hold the boards the present week, up to to-morrow evening, and on Sunday the entire company will open a three weeks' season at Salem during the Fair and session of the Legislature. The theatre Comique with its new company opens to-morrow. CORNUCOPIA.

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Oracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beere & Maynard, 338 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Special to the Ladies.

MRS. SCHLOSS begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night after a capital first part terminating with Bob Hart's new finale "Arizona Diamonds," and an interlude in which Martin Simonsen, Detchanty and Hengler, and others will appear, the burlesque opera of "The Bohemian Girl" will be presented with Mme Fanny Simonson as Arline, Miss Fanny Gibson as the Gipsy Queen, W. F. Baker as Thaddeus, J. G. Russell as Count Anheim, M. A. Scott as Devilshoof, G. D. Rockafeller as Florenstein, Add Ryman as Mr. Simpson, manager of the Opera, and Bob Hart as Sambo, a colored servant. On Monday, October 7th, the ever-popular protean artist, Miss Ella Wesner, will commence an engagement.

Metropolitan.

To-night E. T. Stetson, the popular tragedian, will enter upon the last week of his engagement. McClosky's four-act sensational drama entitled "Daring Dick, the Detective; or, High, Low, Jack and the Game," will be presented for the first time in this city. In the course of the play many scenes of life in New York are shown, and there are several fine tableaux. Next Friday evening Mr. Stetson will take his farewell benefit.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

There will be a new programme to-night. Among the many new features may be mentioned the introduction of the trick horse Montesuma, the trained ponies Harlequin and Mosca, and the reappearance of Duke and Prince.

Maguire's Opera House.

There was a splendid audience present last evening and the opera of "Ernani" was performed in fine style. Wednesday will be the next opera night. when the grand opera of Norma will be produced. The Fabbri Opera Troupe have made an immense hit, and deservedly.

Bella Union.

The new bill presented at this house on Saturday night and repeated last night, was quite a success. The operatic extravaganza entitled "Oh! Hush" arranged by Charles Coriell was capitally performed: Mrs Charles Coriell sang charmingly in the character of Rose, Johnny Tuers was immense as Cuff, and was ably assisted by Lon McCarty as Pete, and Tommy Bree as Joe. J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong gave some very amusing Dutch acts. To-night Mme. Theresa premiere danseuse, and Mons. Schmidt will make their first appearance in the ballet of "La Zingara"

American Theatre.

Sensational plays, pleasing tableaux, graceful dances, popular ballads, amusing comic songs, and side-splitting negro acts make up a programme that is very popular with the visitors to this place of amusement for the million.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's Lecture.

It is anticipated that Pacific Hall will with difficulty hold the persons anxious to hear Mrs. Miller's lecture on "Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man," which she will deliver to-morrow night. The city editor of the Bulletin, with admirable good taste, set Mrs. Miller in a proper light before the public, in Saturday's issue of that paper. He said:

> There is naturally much excitement in the social and literary circles of this city over the announcement of Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's lecture on "Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man," to be given at Pacific Hall on Tuesday evening next, by one whose genius has secured her recognition by the leading litterateurs of the coast, and to suppose that she would retail family scandal is manifestly absurd. She lectures as an honorable method of obtaining a livelihood, and chooses Joaquin Miller for her subject because she knows him thoroughly, and can draw interesting and instructive pictures of his peculiar characteristics. We have no hesitation in predicting a large and intelligent audience for the lady.

Harry Edward's Benefit.

An immense bill will be presented at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening next, when the testimonial benefit tendered by the Bohemian Club to Henry Edwards, the popular actor, will take place. The full list of volunteers appears on our first page.

The Coming Season of Italian Opera.

Signor Bianchi has in Fred Lyster an invaluable coadjutor in his endeavors to render the coming season of Italian Opera, at the Metropolitan Theatre the finest and most successful ever given. The chorus and orchestra will be formed on a more liberal basis than hitherto and the dressing and mounting of the operas will be especially attended to. The subscription list is filling fast.

On His Way.

A dispatch was received on Saturday from Signor Becosi, by the management of the Italian Opera, stating that he would leave New York that day for San Francisco.

Woodward's Gardens.

This delightful resort was crowded yesterday and all enjoyed the varied entertainment presented. Next Sunday, M. Perrier, the French Hercules, will make his appearance.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

A "LIGHT-WASTED" CIRCUS.

The Buffalo correspondent of the New York Mercury having spoken of Noyse's Circus as very "light-waisted," the proprietor replied in an indignant letter denying the justice of the charge; whereupon a recent performer in the show gives vent to the following growl in the last Mercury:

> I see In your paper that that Mr. C. W. Noyes, of Noyes's Circus, speaks in regard of your correspondent of Bufflo, N. york. Well, the correspondent is right, for I Was with Noyes's Circus at the time and Half his show quit as He Refused to give them there Sallerys or any at all. The Leslies Bros. 3 In Number, Who was his Gymnasts & done Harisontal Bar & Hat spinning, Went in the Leaps & Entry & objects, &c.; also Julius Ball, who Was a partner with Miacco & performed on the Troppeze and Leap for life, and also went In the leaps all 4 Quit after the 2 day in Buffalo. Mr. Noyes owes the Leslies over fifteen Hundred dollars and would not give them any Money. & when 4 good performers are taken out of the Ring & 3 no. 1 acts are taken and Besides 4 men taken out of the Leaps & only 4 left to Leap and only 1 of the 4 left can git over Barres, you Bet it makes a show Light Wasted. His last 3 days in Buffalo he didn't do anything and since then his Big Show Quit him, 4 in number. Sprague and Mack Go Burges & J. C. Murphy. We asked for some Money and Could not git a dollar, and as he owes the 4 of us a Nice sum we offered to take Half the Nig show till we got enough to git Some clothes & Boots for ourselves, & he refused to do this. He told us to go to Hell and we Quit, as we see no Chance to git a cent, as his show or ticket Wagon would be attached every day, & When he Quit he called us all sorts of names. Names which Gentlemen as he (C. W. Noyes) Challs himself Should be ashamed to use & Ladies With in ten 10 feet of him of the time. you Bet your Correspondent spoke the truth, we Was Light Wasted, & the company knowed it as well as the correspondent. Your correspondent don't tell A very many leis for sum of the Shows out this way aint worth looking at, & if the correspondents tell the truth they'll say so. This of course is of not much use to you, but I Want to show you that your correspondent whoever he is Was rite & not Rong as Mr. C. W. Noyes tries for to make him in your issue of the 7th of Sept. The Nig Show 4 in number Quit his forsaken show at Titusville, Pa., & he didn't give us a cent to git home.

Returned from the Chase.

William H. Bunker who has been in the country on a bear hunt has returned to this city reinvigorated by his holiday, and is filling the position of city editor of the Evening Bulletin with tact and discretion.

The California Horse "Occident."

A correspondent writing from Sacramento says:

> Most everybody talks "Horse." I believe that "Occident" will beat "Goldsmith Maid." Jockeys declare that the former horse will beat the fastest time on record—say 2:12, 2:14, 2:16. Should this remarkable time be made (which is doubtful), the laurels of Bonner will pass to Leland Standford.

Wasting Children.

It is a poor use to put small boys to tying them to the caudal appendage of a cow while an older brother milks. It was tried out West recently and killed the boy; but not only that, it spilled the milk.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

A SUMMER FRIEND.

My early friend, now is it well
To smile when fortune smiles,
And frown when fortunes sound the knell
Of all my bravest toils?
Come, is it well to cloud thine eye,
And turn thy face from me,
And in cold silence pass me by
When all the insects see?

O for the generous morns of youth,
When fortune was no bar,
When we two, like twin souls of truth,
Flashed like a single star!
When each for each would rush to fight
Against the banded foe;
Content to know but one delight,
And own a single woe.

But, early friend, my early friend,
Some sands are yet to run;
And no man's fortune hath an end
Until his life be done.
Why, fate itself may yet relent
At mercy's strong appeal;
Will, then, thy doubting heart repent?
Thy coldness, uncongeal?

I care not for the common frown,
The common world's neglect;
No lesser man can stare me down
With fortune's grand effect
But thou to join the baser rout,
Thine ancient friend to bar!
Great God, defend me from the doubt
That there is truth in man!

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

THE GREAT REMEDY

KIDNEY DISEASES

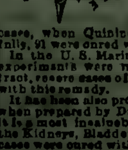
KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!



Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following [illegible] in San Francisco, who can [illegible], from personal experience and knowledge:

An evasive Answer.

"If anybody calls this morning, I cannot see him," said an Irish priest to his servant. "I shall be engaged."

"Ah, sure, your riverence would not have me tell a lie."

"By no means, Patrick. Give to anyone who calls an evasive answer."

In the evening the good priest questioned his faithful servant:

"Did anyone call this morning?"

"Yes, your riverance; a man came to the gate and said he must see you."

"And you did not tell him that I was out?"

Oh, no, your riverance, that would have been a lie; so I gave him an evasive answer."

"What did you tell him?"

"Why, I cocked my elbows at him, and I said, "Was your grandmother a monkey?" and he went off quite contented.

Ah!

At no moment of difficulty does a husband, knowing his own utter helplessness, draw so closely to his wife's side, for comfort and assistance, as when he wants a button sewed on his shirt-collar.

The Last "Straw."

The tedium of waiting for the minister at a recent funeral in Oregon, was in a measure relieved by a practical individual who canvassed the relatives and friends of the deceased with the following gratifying result: Greely, 18; Grant, 11; undecided, 8.

Suggestive.

After asking your name in the State of Arkansas, the natives are in the habit of saying, in a confidential tone, "Well, now, what were yer name afore yer moved to these parts?"

At a recent fashionable wedding in London an old custom was revived, and copies of the epithalamium printed on white satin—the production of a well-known poet—was handed around to the guests.

The smokers who ride in cars set apart for them on the Eight Avenue Railroad, New York, complain of the intrusion of ladies.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

The Right to Hiss.

In a town in the South of France at the first representation of "Rabagas," a man in the parquet hissed. A police officer retained to preserve order cried out, "What right have you to hiss?" A voice in the gallery was heard:

"It is a right which one acquires on paying for admission."

The policeman indignantly looked up at the gallery and said "Who says that?"

"Boilean," said someone in the orchestra seats.

"Then Boillean must leave the house," said the French Dogberry.

A Wholesale Business.

The paternal author of this year's belle, at the Virginia Springs, was approached by a youth who requested a few minutes conversation in private, and began: "I was requested to see you, sir, by your lovely daughter. Our attachment—" "Young man," interrupted the parent briskly, "I don't know what that girl of mine is about. You are the fourth gentleman who has approached me this morning on that subject. I have given my consent to the others, and I give it to you. God bless you."

Singular Mistake.

A religious editor, an Albanian at that, called some time ago, at the studio of Palmer, the sculptor, in New York, with the following result, as given in an Eastern paper:

The artist had just completed a charming bust of the Infant Ceres. The marble told its own story, for the symbolic corn and poppies had been used to that end. The editor, knowing little of symbols, and less of mythology, asked the name of the subject, and was told "The Infant Ceres." Imagine the artist's consternation on reading, a few days after the interview, in the art column of the religious weekly, that he was "engaged upon a series of infants, the first of which he had just completed.

What is the Matter?

There is something the matter with the Sacramento Bee. It never used to do this sort of thing:

The vividescent steam fire engine men and horses so quickly answered Saturday midnight's false fire alarm as to elicit the unbounded praise of the veteran Hinckley.

It must have engaged a vividescent idiot to write its locals.

Another Amateur Critic.

San Francisco is not the only city cursed with amateur dramatic critics, judging from the following which appears in the Baltimore Bulletin's New York letter.

As for the Olympic, I have not been there to see the "Red Pocket Book." "Que voulez-vous?" One can't see everything. Allow me therefore to refer you to a certain dramatic writer, late a coal dealer, who vaguely says, in speaking of the "Pocket Book," that the "crudities of the first night are not sufficient to cover up the deficiencies of a poorly selected cast." What does the coal dealer mean?

Detestable.

The Philadelphia Press is at its hyena work of mangling the people's English again. A short time ago it was talking about "enthusing," and now it says that Howells is writing a "Canadian-situated novel." That man should be suppressed.

Mr. Greeley has given up his vegetable diet and taken to rare steak.

> "If but the world beheld the sacrifice,
> And men took note and told my fame to her,
> There she might weep for spite and envy me
> My sweet applause and dignity of death,
> I'd write a song eternal as the sun."

.... The latter-day Byron ... Critical analysis of the character of Joaquin Miller—His future prospects ... THAT HORSE!

> "He reined his steed and looked down in the canyon
> To where she dwelt, with a heart of fire;
> He kissed his hand to the smoke slow-curling,
> Then bowed his head in devoutest blessing
> His spotted courser did plunge and fret
> Beneath his gay and silk-fringed caress,
> And tossed his neck, in a black mane bannered;
> Then silk-foam, clanging iron-footed,
> Dashed him adown with a wild impatience."

......Sad tale of the poetic horse—not sold to the circus to become an equine star of the arena (a distinction to which his spots should have entitled him), but sold, alas! to work in a pack train—Proceeds of the sale, $34 75......"If I am Byron you must be Lady Byron". Rather hard.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The programme presented at this popular theatre last night was a fine one and gave general satisfaction. First part and interlude were both good and the opera of "The Bohemian Girl," was a great success with Mme Fanny Simonsen as Arline, Miss Fanny Gibson as the Gipsy Queen, W. F. Baker as Thaddeus, J. G. Russell as Count Arnheim, M. A. Scott as Devilshoof, G. D. Rockafellier as Florenstein, Add Ryman as Mr. Simpson, manager of the Opera, and Bob Hart as Sambo, a colored servant. Mme. Fanny Simonson sang and acted her role very finely, Miss Fanny Gibson was very good as the Gipsy Queen; W. F. Baker gained great applause for "The Fair Land of Poland," and J. G. Russell delighted the audience by his rendition of "The Heart Bowed Down;" M. A. Scott made a capital Devilshoof, and the comic element was well supplied by Add Ryman and Bob Hart, G. Rockafeller, sang well in the role of Florenstein. The same bill will be played to-night.

Metropolitan.

The production of McCloskey's drama, "Daring Dick, the Detective; or, High, Low, Jack, and the Game," drew a good house last night. This is a regular old time Bowery piece and awakened the greatest enthusiasm in the portion of the audience occupying the gallery, making them fairly yell with delight. We are sure that all were amused. F. T. Stetson as the hero, Daring Dick, gained much applause. The other characters were well sustained by W. J. Coggswell, John Woodard, Pierpont Thayer, Frank Rea, Miss Henrietta Osborne, Miss Maggie Moore, Ada Shattnck and other members of the company. This play probably run through the week.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The new programme again to-night. Among the many new features may be mentioned the introduction of the trick horse Montezuma, the trained ponies Harlequin and Blesco, and the reappearance of Duke and Prince.

Maguire's Opera House.

The Grand Opera of "Norma" will be produced by the Fabbri Opera Troupe to-morrow evening. The dress circle seats are nearly all taken already. Friday and Saturday nights will be the last nights of the season.

Bella Union.

The new bill presented at this house on Saturday night and repeated last night, was quite a success. The operetic extravaganza entitled "Oh! Hush" arranged by Charles Coriell was capitaly performed; Mrs Charles Coriell sang charmingly in the character of Rose, Johnny Tuers was immense as Cuff, and was ably assisted by Lou McCarty as Pete, and Tommy Bree as Joe, J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong gave some very amusing Dutch acts. Last night Mme. Therese premiere danseuse, and Mons. Schmidt made their first appearance in the ballet of "La Zingara"

American Theatre.

Sensational plays, pleasing tableaux, graceful dances, popular ballads, amusing comic songs, and side-splitting negro acts make up a programme that is very popular with the visitors to this place of amusement for the million. "The San Francisco Bootblack" to-night.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's Lecture.

It is anticipated that Pacific Hall will with difficulty hold the persons anxious to hear Mrs Miller's lecture on "Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man," which she will deliver this evening. The city editor of the Bulletin, with admirable good taste, set Mrs. Miller in a proper light before the public, in Saturday's issue of that paper. He said:

> There is naturally much excitement in the social and literary circles of this city over the announcement of Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's lecture on "Joaquin Miller the Poet and the Man," to be given at Pacific Hall on Tuesday evening next, by one whose genius has secured her recognition by the leading literateurs of the coast, and to suppose that she would retail family scandal is manifestly absurd. She lectures as an honorable method of obtaining a livelihood, and chooses Joaquin Miller for her subject because she knows him thoroughly, and can draw interesting and instructive pictures of his peculiar characteristics. We have no hesitation in predicting a large and intelligent audience for the lady.

A mistaken idea prevails in some quarters that Mrs. Miller has lectured in Oregon on the subject of Joaquin Miller. This is not the case. She has lectured on various subjects but has never even alluded to Joaquin Miller in the lecture hall. The lecture to be delivered to-night is entirely new, and the subject was suggested by many friends who thought Mrs. Miller could give a most interesting lecture on 'Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man." Tickets will be for sale to-day at Roman's and Bancroft's book stores, at Gray's music store and at Pacific Hall from 9 till 4. An advertisement to this effect appears in another column.

California Theatre.

At 9 o'clock this morning—the time set for the opening of the box office for the sale of tickets for the first performance—there was a long line of people at the door, some of whom had stayed there all night in order to have the first choice of seats. The programme for the opening night will appear in to-morrow's issue.

Harry Edward's Benefit.

An immense bill will be presented at Platt' Hall on Thursday evening next, when the testimonial benefit tendered by the Bohemian Club to Henry Edwards, the popular actor, will take place. The full list of volunteers appears on our first page.

Woodward's Gardens.

This delightful resort was crowded Sunday and all enjoyed the varied entertainment presented. Next Sunday, M. Perrier, the French Hercules, will make his appearance.

A "LIGHT-WASTED" CIRCUS.

The Buffalo correspondent of the New York Mercury having spoken of Noyes's Circus as very "light-waisted," the proprietor replied in an indignant letter denying the justice of the charge; whereupon a recent performer in the show gives vent to the following growl in the last Mercury:

> I see In your paper that that Mr. C. W. Noyes, of Noyes's Circus, speaks in regard of your correspondent of Bufflo, N. york. Well, the correspondent is right, for I Was with Noyes's Circus at the time and Half his show quit as He Refused to give them there Sallerye or any at all. The Leslies Bros. 3 In Number, Who was his Gymnasts & done Harisontal Bar & Hat spinning, Went in the Leaps & Entry & objects, &c.; also Julius Ball, who Was a partner with Miacco & performed on the Troppeze and Lean for life, and also went In the leaps ell 4 Quit after the 2 day in Boffalo. Mr. Noyes owes the Leslies over fifteen Hundred dollars and would not give them any Money. & when 4 good performers are taken out of the Ring & 3 no. 1 acts are taken and Besides 4 men taken out of the Leaps & only 4 left to Leap and only 1 of the 4 left can git over Barree, you Bet it makes a show Light Wasted. His last 3 days in Boffalo he didn't do anything and since then his Big Show Quit him, 4 in number. Sprague and Mack Go Burges & J. C. Murphy. We asked for some Money and Could not git a dollar, and as he owes the 4 of us a Nice sum we offered to take Half the Nig show till we got enough to git Some clothes & Boots for ourselves, & he refused to do this. He told us to go to Hell and we Quit, as we see no Chance to git a cent, as his show or ticket Wagon would be attached every day, & When he Quit he called us all sorts of names. Names which Gentlemen as he (C. W. Noyes) Challs himself Should be ashamed to use & Ladies With in ten 10 feet of him of the time. you Bet your Correspondent spoke the truth, we Was Light Wasted, & the company knowed it as well as the correspondent. Your correspondent don't tell A very many lies for sum of the Shows out this way aint worth looking at, & if the correspondents tell the truth they'll say so. This of course is of not much use to you, but I Want to show you that your correspondent whoever he is Was rite & not Rong as Mr. C. W. Noyes tries for to make him in your issue of the 7th of Sept. The Nig Show 4 in number Quit his foresaken show at Tilnsville, Pa., & he didn't give us a cent to git home.

The California Horse "Occident."

A correspondent writing from Sacramento says:

> Most everybody talks "Horse." I believe that "Occident" will beat "Goldsmith Maid." Jockeys declare that the former horse will beat the fastest time on record—say 2:12, 2:14, 2:16. Should this remarkable time be made (which is doubtful), the laurels of Bonner will pass to Leland Standford.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double it's former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

A SUMMER FRIEND.

My early friend, now is it well
  To smile when fortune smiles,
And frown when fortunes sound the knell
  Of all my bravest toils?
Come, is it well to cloud thine eye,
  And turn thy face from me,
And in cold silence pass me by
  When all the insects see?

O for the generous morns of youth,
  When fortune was no bar,
When we two, like twin souls of truth,
  Flashed like a single star!
When each for each would rush to fight
  Against the banded foe;
Content to know but one delight,
  And own a single woe.

But, early friend, my early friend,
  Some sands are yet to run;
And no man's fortune hath an end
  Until his life be done.
Why, fate itself may yet relent
  At mercy's strong appeal;
Will, then, thy doubting heart repent?
  Thy coldness, uncongeal?

I care not for the common frown,
  The common world's neglect;
No lesser man can stare me down
  With fortune's grand effect
But thou to join the baser rout,
  Thine ancient friend to haul
Great God, defend me from the doubt
  That there is truth in man!

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

NEW AND SIMPLIFIED METHOD

....FOR...

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's new invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. W.'s residence, No. 422 Sutter street.

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

N.E. cor. Jackson and Kearny sts.

THE GREAT ERADICATOR OF SPECIAL COMPLAINTS, formerly of Lock Hospital London, and the last twelve years of San Francisco. DR. TOZER informs the afflicted that after visiting all the HOSPITALS IN LONDON AND PARIS and spending one year in the most celebrated Hospital in London, the LOCK, he has reopened his old Medical Institute at the old stand, where he can always be found. DR. TOZER has for forty years met with unparalleled success in the treatment of disease generally known as CHRONIC AND SPECIAL COMPLAINTS.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

is in every way responsible, binding himself to effect a permanent CURE, or making no charges. Those who cannot afford to pay for advice and medicine will be charged for medicine only. THE MONTHLY RESTORATIVE PILLS, never known to fail in giving relief in cases for which they are recommended, are to be obtained only at my office. Price $5 per box. Full direction on each box, sent by Express or otherwise.

DR. TOZER does not imitate the advertising Quacks who make it a practice to publish false affidavits and other false references, but refers to the most respectable people in the State, whom he has CURED of diseases which others have failed to cure.

THE GREAT REMEDY

....FOR....

KIDNEY DISEASES

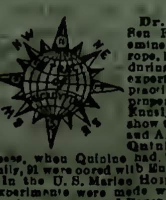
AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!



Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation since, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

G. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor. California and Davis sts.

An Evasive Answer.

"If anybody calls this morning, I cannot see him," said an Irish priest to his servant. "I shall be engaged."

"Ah, sure, your riverence would not have me tell a lie."

"By no means, Patrick. Give to anyone who calls an evasive answer."

In the evening the good priest questioned his faithful servant:

"Did anyone call this morning?"

"Yes, your riverance; a man came to the gate and said he must see you."

"And you did not tell him that I was out?"

Oh, no, your riverence, that would have been a lie; so I gave him an evasive answer."

"What did you tell him?"

"Why, I cocked my elbows at him, and I said, "Was your grandmother a monkey?" and he went off quite contented.

Ah!

At no moment of difficulty does a husband, knowing his own utter helplessness, draw so closely to his wife's side, for comfort and assistance, as when he wants a button sewed on his shirt-collar.

The Last "Straw."

The tedium of waiting for the minister at a recent funeral in Oregon, was in a measure relieved by a practical individual who canvassed the relatives and friends of the deceased with the following gratifying result: Greely, 18; Grant, 11; undecided, 8.

Suggestive.

After asking your name in the State of Arkansas, the natives are in the habit of saying, in a confidential tone, "Well, now. what were yer neme afore yer moved to these parts?"

At a recent fashionable wedding in London an old custom was revived, and copies of the epithalamium printed on white satin—the production of a well-known poet—was handed around to the guests.

The smokers who ride in cars set apart for them on the Eight Avenue Railroad, New York, complain of the intrusion of ladies.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

Fresh and Sweet.

For the best confectionery, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St. near Sutter. N

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. N

Sam Moore,

To the Unfortunate

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary, 623 Kearney street corner of Commercial. Established in 1854, for the treatment of chronic and special complaints. Dr. Gibbon will make no charge unless he effects a cure. B

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 817 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street.

Do You Know

That with BUTTERICK'S PATTERNS you can cut and make any garment to fit perfectly? Send postage stamp for an illustrated catalogue. H. A. Deming, agent, office of the Howe Sewing Machine, No. 113 Kearny street, between Sutter and Post, San Francisco.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

The Right to Hiss.

In a town in the South of France at the first representation of "Rabagas," a man in the parquet hissed. A police officer retained to preserve order cried out, "What right have you to hiss?" A voice in the gallery was heard:

"It is a right which one acquires on paying for admission."

The policeman indignantly looked up at the gallery and said "Who says that?"

"Boilean," said someone in the orchestra seats.

"Then Boilean must leave the house," said the French Dogberry.

A Wholesale Business.

The paternal author of this year's belle. at the Virginia Springs, was approached by a youth who requested a few minutes conversation in private, and began: "I was requested to see you, sir, by your lovely daughter. Our attachment—" "Young man," interrupted the parent briskly, "I don't know what that girl of mine is about. You are the fourth gentleman who has approached me this morning on that subject. I have given my consent to the others, and I give it to you. God bless you."

Singular Mistake.

A religious editor, an Albanian at that, called some time ago, at the studio of Palmer, the sculptor, in New York, with the following result, as given in an Eastern paper:

The artist had just completed a charming bust of the Infant Ceres. The marble told its own story, for the symbolic corn and poppies had been used to that end. The editor, knowing little of symbols, and less of mythology, asked the name of the subject, and was told "The Infant Ceres." Imagine the artist's consternation on reading, a few days after the interview, in the art column of the religious weekly, that he was "engaged upon a series of infants, the first of which he had just completed.

What is the Matter?

There is something the matter with the Sacramento Bee. It never used to do this sort of thing:

The vividescent steam fire engine men and horses so quickly answered Saturday midnight's false fire alarm as to elicit the unbounded praise of the veteran Hinckley.

It must have engaged a vividescent idiot to write its locals.

Another Amateur Critic.

San Francisco is not the only city cursed with amateur dramatic critics, judging from the following which appears in the Baltimore Bulletin's New York letter.

As for the Olympic, I have not been there to see the "Red Pocket Book." "Que voulez-vous?" One can't see everything. Allow me therefore to refer you to a certain dramatic writer, late a coal dealer, who vaguely says, in speaking of the "Pocket Book," that the "grandities of the first night are not sufficient to cover up the deficiencies of a poorly selected cast." What does the coal dealer mean?

Detestable.

The Philadelphia Press is at its hyena work of mangling the people's English again. A short time ago it was talking about "enthusing," and now it says that Howells is writing a "Canadian-situated novel." That man should be suppressed.

Mr. Greeley has given up his vegetable diet and taken to rare steak,

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The Alhambra is doing good business, as it should, with its combination of star attractions—musical, operatic and Ethiopian. Bob Hart's capital new scene winds up the first part of the entertainment, which is followed by Martin Simonsen's violin solos, Delehanty and Hengler's unrivalled song and dance acts; several lively minstrel acts by Ryman, Hart, Sutton, McAndrews and Robinson; the whole concluding with the burlesque of "The Bohemian Girl," in which all the beautiful musical gems of the opera are given by Mme. Simonsen, Fanny Gibson, Russell, Baker, Scott and Rockafeller.

Metropolitan.

E. T. Stetson will appear again this evening in the sensation drama of "Daring Dick." On Friday evening he will take his farewell benefit and will close his engagement this week.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

After weeks of good business, the attractions at the circus are as fresh as ever, and a full tent greets each evening's performance. The new programme this week is the best of any yet given, and must be seen to be appreciated.

California Theatre.

Every seat in the dress circle and orchestra was sold yesterday, and to-day choice seats in the balcony, which in its reconstructed condition is one of the most comfortable portions of the house, are selling rapidly.

Bella Union.

The operatic extravaganza of "Oh Hush," the drama of "The Baronet Abroad," ballads by Mrs. Charlie Cottell; the negro eccentricities by Johnny Tuers, and numerous other performances by the strong company of popular favorites will be given to-night.

American Theatre.

"Married for a Day; or, an Irishman's Troubles," a new piece, will be produced to-night. In addition, "The San Francisco Bootblacks," in which Foster acts and sings the part of Cuff so well, and Morton makes such a dashing dandy darkey, and a varied first part and interlude will be given.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's Lecture.

There was a capital audience present at Pacific Hall last night to listen to Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller's lecture on "Joaquin Miller the Poet and the Man." It proved one of the most thoroughly successful lectures ever delivered in this city. Its whole tone was good, it abounded in amusing incidents, keen sarcasm and judicious criticism of Joaquin Miller's peculiarities. The applause was loud and frequent. Mrs. Miller should certainly deliver this lecture once more in this city before proceeding to the East, to become, as she assuredly will, the star lecturer of the coming season.

Harry Edward's Benefit.

Tickets for Harry Edward's benefit to come off at Platt's Hall to-morrow night are selling rapidly. Bohemia has determined that the affair shall be a success in every way; so it will be.

The Coming Season of Italian Opera.

To-day the sale of tickets for single nights of opera commences at the Metropolitan Theatre, and there will be a rush to secure them.

Turn Verein Hall.

H. W. Luther, director of Luther's Æolians, will to-morrow be the recipient of a complimentary benefit tendered him by his friends and pupils. It will take place at Turn Verein Hall. The full programme appears on our first page, and includes several original compositions by Mr. Luther. After the performance, which will be of a varied nature, there will be a social dance.

Woodward's Gardens.

This delightful resort was crowded Sunday and all enjoyed the varied entertainment presented. Next Sunday, M. Perrier, the French Hercules, will make his appearance.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

An Energetic Bill Poster

A new phase in bill-posting was observed the other day by Broadway pedestrians. A horse had succumbed to the heat on the previous evening, and his remains had not yet been removed. The day was cloudy, and the umbrella people were out with their posters. One of them, the "Star" umbrella man, at once seized his opportunity, and commencing at the neck, he plastered the unfortunate animal from end to end with the announcements. With a smile of his triumph over all competitors, he then left for other fields of victory.

THE SEXTON.

Ring the great bell in the steeple,
For the sexton that lieth dead!
Deep in the midst of "God's acre"
Find him a lowly bed.

Since first he entered the grave-yard,
To follow his ghostly trade,
Many a weary brother
To rest hath the Sexton laid.

Man and boy from his childhood,
For forty years and ten,
Hath he dug and delved, and buried
The bones of his fellow men.

Buried them deep in earth's bosom,—
Man, and woman, and child;
The old time-burdened grandsire,
The infant undefiled.

Each bell in the lofty chamber
He could ring with a measured swing,
He hath tolled the death of the pauper,
And rang out the knell of a king.

Many tales of sorrow
And human woe he hath known,
And the grief in the heart of others
Ere now hath troubled his own.

He hath seen the hard oppressor
Buried without a tear,
And heard the bootless curses
That were uttered over his bier.

The sad deep sobs of the mother,
And the widow in her distress,
The groan of the heart nigh broken,
The cry of the fatherless.

He hath felt the sharp sting of sorrow—
Had his own burthen to bear;
By the graves of his best beloved
Hath stood the chief mourner there.

Toll the great bell for the Sexton.
Mourners bury thy dead!
Our brother rests from his labors,
And another must come in his stead.

Earth unto earth commit him,
In humble hope and trust:
Ashes to kindred ashes;
Dust to its native dust.

Kindly, reverently, lay him,
His face to the eastern sky:
Waiting the break of the morning,
Let him in quiet lie.

Fact.

A man, who twenty years ago came to this State, and went to the mines without a dollar he could call his own, was in our office last night to borrow the price of a drink.

They tell in London of an American lady who went to the United States legation in that city and asked for a permit to see the Queen.

A dandy on the shore is disgusting, but a swell on the sea is sickening.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrepins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. A Sarcastic Child.

A schoolmaster tells the following: "I was once teaching in a small country village. The second morning of the session I had time to survey my surroundings, and among the scanty furniture I espied a three legged stool. "Is this the dunce block?" I asked a little girl of five years. The dark eyes sparkled, the curls nodded assent, and the lips rippled out, "I guess so. The teacher always sits on it."

The Poor-house Looming Up.

A Detroiter lost an old stocking-foot with seven cents in it, and went daily to the police station for a week to learn if any tidings had come of it. Finally the sergeant, tired of his questionings, gave him seven cents, which he received thankfully, remarking: "I tell you it made me feel bad, as I saw the poor-house looming up before me."

The Deceitful Wretch.

A young woman, whose pocket had been picked in an omnibus, admitted that she felt the prisoner pressing her very closely, but thought "he was only intending to to make love."

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

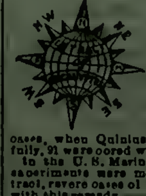
THE GREAT REMEDY
....FOR....
KIDNEY DISEASES
AND CURE FOR
FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST! ☞

COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!



Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

A Cheering Sign.

Like a spring of water in a desert land, like the bow of promise in the sky, like the sight of land to the sea-weary sailor, like the familiar sign "Warren's Blacking," printed on the Pyramid of Cheops, to the travel-worn Londoner, like a ray of sunshine through the clouds was the following notice in Sunday's Call, and equally did it cheer our spirits:

English grammar taught.—E. D. Humphrey will resume his evening class in English Grammar, at his residence, Rose avenue, near San Jose depot, commencing Wednesday, October, 2d, at 7 P. M.

What an opportunity is now offered the editorial staff of our daily journals. As to the proprietors, it is not necessary for them to learn English grammar, they have got along without it all their lives and can continue to do so. If urged to acquire the art of writing and speaking the English language correctly," they would doubtless (ignoring the rule "Two negatives destroy one another, or are equivalent to an affirmative) say: "Grammar ain't no use." But they might, they really might send their editors and reporters to E. D. Humphrey for an hours every evening. We hope that they will take this matter into their serious consideration. FIGARO being to some extent a missionary paper published from a higher motive than gain, cheerfully give this free advertisement to the grammatical Livingstone who has ventured into the literary wilderness of San Francisco and started an evening class in English grammar.

A deacon in Devenport, Iowa, denounces the street sprinkler as an ungodly and sacrilegious device, and says if it is too dusty the citizens ought to combine and pray for rain.

Equal to the Occasion.

At Valley Stream, L. I., a man fell between two trains of cars in attempting to jump from one to the other. With the exception of a slight contusion, he was unharmed. When some of the railroad employees stooped to pick him up he waved them off, saying "I can pick up my own corpse."

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which Providentially Directed.

Among the attendants at a late Methodist conference was a very beautiful and intelligent looking young lady who drew the admiring gaze of many eyes, particularly masculine eyes, always on the look out for pretty feminine faces. During the intermission at noon, a spruce young minister stepped up to the presiding elder, and said, with an air of secrecy:

"Did you observe that young lady who sat by the first pillar on the left?"

"Yes," said the elder, "what of her?"

"Why," said the young man, "I feel impressed that the Lord desires me to take that lady for my wife. I think she would make a good companion and helpmeet in the work of the ministry."

The elder as a good Christian, ought, had nothing to object.

But in a few moments another candidate for ministerial honors, and for the name of husband, came confidentially to make known a little impression regarding the same identical young lady.

You had better wait a while. It is not best to be hasty in determining the source such impressions," said the prudent elder.

And he had said well; for hardly were the steps of the second youth cold at his side, ere a third approached with the same story; and while the worthy confident still marveled, a fourth drew near with the question—

"Did you notice the fine, noble looking woman on your left?"

"Yes cried the swelling elder.

"Well, sir," went on the fourth victim of that unsuspicious girl, "it is strongly borne in upon my mind that I should make proposals of marriage to that lady. He has impressed me that she is to be my wife."

The elder could stand it no longer.

"Impossible! Impossible!" he exclaimed, in an excited tone "the Lord never could have intended that four men should marry that one woman!"

The Juvenile Stoic.

A boy, six years old, living on Murray Hill, having been much lectured by his father on the babyishness of crying when any calamity happens, cheered the paternal heart the other morning by saying: "Harry B. cried nearly all day 'cause his father died; but if you should die, pa, I wouldn't cry a bit."

Returned from the Chase.

William H. Bunker who has been in the country on a bear hunt has returned to this city reinvigorated by his holiday, and is filling the position of city editor of the Evening Bulletin with tact and discretion.

Wasting Children.

It is a poor use to put small boys to tying them to the caudal appendage of a cow while an older brother milks. It was tried out West recently and killed the boy; but not only that, it spilled the milk.

Gœthe on Writing

The style of writing required in the great world is distinguished by a free and daring grace, a careless security, a fine sharp polish, a delicate and perfect taste; while that fitted for the people is characterized by a vigorous, natural fulness, a profound depth of feeling, and an engaging niavete. We do not now speak of a still higher region—that of genius—for which there exist no boundaries of high and low, which embrace the most polished cosmopolitanism and the homeliest nationality.

What is the Matter?

There is something the matter with the Sacramento Bee. It never used to do this sort of thing:

The viridescent steam fire engine men and horses so quickly answered Saturday midnight's false fire alarm as to elicit the unbounded praise of the veteran Hinckley.

It must have engaged a viridescent idiot to write its locals.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The burlesque of "The Bohemian Girl," with Mme. Fanny Simonson as Arline, Miss Fanny Gibson as the Gipsy Queen, W. F. Baker as Thaddeus, J. G. Russell as Count Arnheim, M. A. Scott as Devilshoof, O. D. Rockafeller as Florenstein, Add Ryman as Mr. Simpson, manager of the Opera, and Bob Hart as Sambo, makes a most popular termination to a capital performance. Martin Simonson's violin solos in the interlude are much applauded, and Delahanty and Hengler, the great song and dance men, are universal favorites.

Metropolitan.

E. T. Stetson's engagement at this house is fast drawing to a close, as is also the season of sensation drama. "Daring Dick, the Detective; or High, Low, Jack and the Game" is still running to good houses. To-morrow night, Mr. E. T. Stetson, will take his farewell benefit. Sunday night will be the last of the season.

California Theatre.

In Saturday's issue we shall be able to give our readers a full account of the appearance of this theatre in its reconstructed form, and defer publishing a full list of the company, plays to be performed, and other particulars until then. Our Saturday's edition will be sent to the chief theatres throughout the world.

Maguire's Opera House.

The opera of "Norma" produced last night drew the best house of the season and the most enthusiastic applause. Signora Fabbri, as the Druid Priestess, both by her singing and acting delighted the audience, who were loud in their expressions of satisfaction. Jacob Muller as Oroveso gained his full share of the plaudits, and Miss Annie Elzer made a new success in the role of Adalgisa. L. Eisenbach played Pollio. The next opera night will be Friday when "La Traviata," will be presented. "Norma" will be presented on Sunday, closing the present season, which has proved one of the most successful ever given in this city and has done credit both to the artists engaged in it and to the able management of Charles Fritsch.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

Montezuma, the trick horse, Harlequin and Mosco, the trained ponies, the wonderful equestrian monkey, the beautiful horse, Sylven, the Carlo Brothers and other attractions will appear to-night.

Bella Union.

The ballet of "La Zingara" in which M'lle Therese and Mons. Schmidt appear, supported by R. G. Marsh, Carrie Chapman, Carrie Armstrong, Minnie Fillmore and Miss Josephine is one of the most attractive and best arranged ever produced at this house. "Oh Hush," by the Coriells Johnny Tuers and others is still on the bill. A burlesque on "Le Roi Carotte" is in preparation.

American Theatre.

"Ireland and America versus China and Africa," "Married for a Day; or, an Irishman's Troubles," "The San Francisco Boothblacks," and "Innocent Wives and Truant Husbands" will all be played to-night—a regular Bowery Theatre bill.

San Francisco Athenæum.

Elsewhere will be found the announcement of of the opening of a new place of amusement, devoted to the variety business under the above title. The hall formerly known as the Theatre Comique, on Kearny street, between Washington and Jackson, has been leased by Mr. J. Church, and has been fitted up very neatly and comfortably for that purpose. The opening will be on Saturday night. A good variety company has been engaged, with Harry Thompson as stage manager; J. Church, manager, and Chas. Seymour as business manager.

Turn Verein Hall.

H. W. Luther, director of Luther's Æolians, will to-night be the recipient of a complimentary benefit tendered him by his friends and pupils. It will take place at Turn Verein Hall. The full programme appears on our first page, and includes several original compositions by Mr. Luther. After the performance, which will be of a varied nature, there will be a social dance.

Woodward's Gardens.

This delightful resort was crowded Sunday and all enjoyed the varied entertainment presented. Next Sunday, M. Perrier, the French Hercules, will make his appearance.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

Barry Edward's Benefit.

The programme to be performed to-night on the occasion of the benefit tendered by the San Francisco Bohemian Club to Henry Edwards, the talented actor and genial gentleman, appears in another column. It is very full. Bohemia has done nobly and the reigning lights of the musical and dramatic world have rallied to do honor and lend a hand to an honored member of a worthy profession. This benefit cannot "set him on his legs" literally, but it will prove that he is not forgotten by the public and the profession, but has their sympathies. The programme is so long that we cannot afford space to publish it in detail here, but must refer our readers to our advertising columns. We may, however, mention that Jacob Muller, the splendid baritone, will sing "Noe e Ver;" Herr Mulder and Annie Elzar will appear; Mrs. R. K. Mariner, returned with new laurels from Boston, will sing Schubert's "Serenade" Daniel O'Connell, author, poet, gentleman, and prince of good fellows, will recite an original poem, written for the occasion; Charles Warren Stoddard, our California poet, will recite a beautiful poem by another sweet votary of the muse, Miss Ina D. Coolbrith; John McCullough, always ready to lend his aid to any good work and faithful to a friend, will recite 'Little Hero;' W. A. Mestayer will give Sheridan's Ride," and J. C. Williamson, "Schneider's Ride." There will be other 'diversions' and the whole performance will conclude with an original farce entitled "Diamond Dividends," written for the occasion by McCracken Bungletoe, and acted by Owen Marlowe and other members of the Bohemian Club, who are really good fellows all, whatever the public may think of them as actors. That public they address:

> For us, and for our tragedy,
> Here stooping to your clemency,
> We beg your hearing patiently.

The Call says—"Tickets are selling like wild-fire." The operations in wild fire at the present time must certainly be brisk; we call the attention of the police to this statement. Everyone is buying tickets for Harry Edward's benefit.

When Was This?

The New Haven Greenroom says:

The FIGARO walks after an erring contemporary thusly: "Bungletoe," too, will undoubtedly be treated to such a basting as will cause him to caterwaul like an ancient Egyptian tomcat, snatched from a moonlight amour by a murderous hierophant, to be made a mummy of for Bumbosis.

When did we ever prophesy such things of the gentle Bungletoe? The Green-room accuses us falsely. We revel in Bungletoe's, burlesques, and his sharp satires.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
White every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beers & Maynard, 338 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

THE DYING STREET ARAB.

I knows what you mean, I'm dying',
Well, I aint no worse nor the rest;
'Taint them as does nothin' but praying',
I reckon as is the best,

I aint had no father nor mother
A-tellin' me wrong from the righ';
The street aint the place—is it, parson?—
For sayin' your prayers of a night!

I never knowed who was my father,
And mother, she died long ago;
The folks here they brought me up some how—
It aint much they have teached me, I know.

Yet, I think they'll be sorry and miss me,
When took right away from this here,
For sometimes I catches them sly ly
A-wipin' away of a tear.

And they says as they hopes I'll get better,
I can't be no worse when I'm dead;
I aint had so jolly a time on't—
A dyin' by inches for bread.

I've stood in them streets precious often,
When the wet's been a pourin' down,
And I aint had so much as a mouthful,
Nor never so much as a brown.

I've looked in them shops with the winders
Chokeful of what's tidy to eat,
And I heerd gents a-larfin' and talkin'
While I drops like a dorg at their feet.

But it's kind on you, sir, to sit by me;
I aint now afeered o' your face;
And I hope, if it's true as you tells me,
We'll meet in that tother place.

I hope as you'll come when it's over,
And talk to them here in the court;
They'll mind what you says, you're a parson;
There won't be no larkin' nor sport.

You'll tell them as how I died happy,
And hopin' to see them again;
That I'm gone to that land where the weery
Is freed of his trouble and pain.

Now, open that book as you give me—
I feels as it never tells lies—
And read me them words—you know' guv' nor—
As is good for a chap when he dies.

There, give me your hand; sir, and thankee—
For the good as you've done a poor lad;
Who knows, 'had they teached me some better,
I mightn't have growed up so bad?

....FOR ....

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new method of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's own invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. THE GREAT REMEDY

....FOR....

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST! ☞

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

O. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor. California and Davis sts.
E. O. Mathews, Grain Merchant, 208 Davis st.
Col. Wm. Wells, No. 534 Market st., formerly Passenger Agent for the Cal Steam Nav. Co.

Ghastly.
The last fashionable sensation is what is called a phantom surprise party. The guests glide in and about the surprised friend's house, dance, and are humanly merry for a time, and at the midnight hour slip off to their homes without taking off their "kivers."

Grace Greenwood and the asthma are in Michigan conjointly.

Young Bennet has ordered a $250,000 monument to his father.

Boston is so puritanical she won't even allow her fountains to play on Sunday.

American steamboat excursions, orchestra music thrown in, float over the "blue Danube."

Cremorne Gardens— the Mabilie of London—are in full blast, and the proprietors are said to be reaping a golden harvest this year.

Best Quality of Dogskin

Oak Poisoning.
The scientific, certain cure discovered and practised at Dr. Bourne's Baths, No. 10 Masonic Temple. Entrance on Post street. No cure, no pay. z

Everybody Goes There.
THE place to buy a hat is "THE" HAT STORE, 47 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. The stock is immense, the fashions are the latest, and the prices are the lowest. a

Special to the Ladies.
MRS. SCHLOSS begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. F

Stop Stranger.
Don't "stop and dry the falling tear," but stop before you pass No. 101 Third street, and see whether you cannot buy your shirts, socks, neckties and underwear cheaper there than you can at any store in the city. z

Dr. Doherty
Has devoted his study more particularly to chronic and specific practice, and as such is now the most successful of any Physician in San Francisco. Office 519 Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below What Cheer House. r

Live Well.
Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city — English breakfast tea — Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Fresh and Sweet.
For the best confectionery, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St. near Suttor. N

The Significant Hat.
In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. N

Sam Moore,
Formerly of Russ House Carriages, can be found in front of Coleman Bros. clothing establishment, southwest corner Bush and Montgomery sts., or Dexter Stables. Carriage orders left at either place promptly attended to day or night, at reduced rates. BG

To the Unfortunate
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary, 623 Kearney street corner of Commercial. Established in 1854, for the treatment of chronic and special complaints. Dr. Gibbon will make no charge unless he effects a cure. B

Squarza's Punches.
One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. a

Do You Know
That with BUTTERICK'S PATTERNS you can cut and make any garment to fit perfectly? Send postage stamp for an illustrated catalogue. H. A. Deming, agent, office of the Howe Sewing Machine, No. 113 Kearny street, between Sutter and Post, San Francisco. •

Oyster Trade.
The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock'' is known

Sicero or Kickero.
Out in Chillicothe, Ohio, says Max Adeler, they are having a terrible war over the pronunciation of the name of our old friend and playmate, Cicero. The principal of one of the public schools has been teaching the boys to call it Kickero and the parents all insist that it ought to be called Sicero; and the controversy has waxed so warm that the parents waylay the teacher after dark, and seize him by the hair, and pound his head against fire-plugs, to make him abandon the Kickero theory and he says he will die first. We have a prejudice in favor of Sicero ourselves, because we never heard Cicero pronounce his own name in any other manner; but, if it makes any man happier to call him Kickero, we do not see why anybody should object. We can answer for Cicero that he will not take offense at it, and that he will not pound anybody's head against a fire-plug for the purpose of showing the erring one that he is wrong. Perhaps, however, the question might be settled amicably by a compromise. Why not call him Sickero or Kisero, or Kisickero, or Sickisero? Or why not designate him as Marc, or as Tully—the names given him in babtism? Far better that either of these should be adopted than that the fire-plugs of Chillicothe should be battered to pieces by colision with the head of that infatuated teacher, while iron is scarce and high.

A Southern hotel has succeeded in refurnishing its beds throughout by repeatedly selling the mattress and sheets upon which Nilsson slept.

Turkish Opera.
And now a bearded Turk comes before the public as a comic-opera writer. His name is Hassin Pasha. His opera is in two acts, and he makes Mohammed play an active part. Mashalla Moses! Boned turkey set to music.

The yatchmen's motto—Large sails and small profits.

MRS. RIORDAN has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of Fall Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere, Q

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.
No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking; and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

Strong Measures.

We admire women of pluck. We particularly admire them in their relations as wives to somebody else. There is a woman in Arkansas who is worthy of the applause of all femininity, and to be regarded by, in this case, the weaker sex with awe. She recently found her husband embracing the servant girl. With a rolling pin she knocked him, and, getting a bucket of tar and a pillow, tarred and feathered him beautifully. "If a man is to be Kukluxed, it's much nicer to have it done by the lovely hand of the soother and consoler of your life than by the rough hands of a hooded stranger," is what the husband says.

An Inexhaustible Subject.

The last work of Dumas. fils, "'L'Homme Femme is an inexhaustible subject for jokes. "Cham," in the Charivari, makes half a dozen in each issue. Dumas maintains in his work the right of a husband to kill his wife if she proves unfaithful. Here is one of Cham's last jokes:

"Before the Maire.

Mons. Arthur do you swear to M. Dumas to kill your wife if she goes astray?

Yes, Monsieur le Maire.

Mademoiselle Irma, do you swear to M. de Girardin, to kill your husband if he doesn't keep straight?

Yes, Monsieur le Maire.

Very good. You are married. You will find family revolvers at the office of the Justice of the Peace.

A French Husband.

"You are sad to-day. What is the matter?

"I have doubts about the the fidelity of my wife."

"My dear fellow you have some luck, as for me I have had no doubt about mine for some time past."

A fool in a high station is like a man on the top of a high mountain—everything appears small to him, and he appears small to everybody.

Special to the Ladies.

Mrs. Schlose begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—416 Kearny street, near Pine. P

Dr. Doherty

Has devoted his study more particularly to chronic and specific practice, and as such is now the most successful of any Physician in San Francisco. Office 519 Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below What Cheer House. Y

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. N

Sam Moore,

Formerly of Russ House Carriages, can be found in front of Coleman Bros. clothing establishment, southwest corner Bush and Montgomery sts., or Dexter Stables. Carriage orders left at either place promptly attended to day or night, at reduced rates. BG

To the Unfortunate

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary, 623 Kearney street corner of Commercial. Established in 1854, for the treatment of chronic and special complaints. Dr. Gibbon will make no charge unless he effects a cure. B

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 817 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a Branch of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Do You Know

That with Butterick's Patterns you can cut and make any garment to fit perfectly? Send postage stamp for an illustrated catalogue. H. A. Deming, agent, office of the Howe Sewing Machine, No. 113 Kearny street, between Sutter and Post, San Francisco. a

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Suggestion.

An exchange comments upon a recent auction sale of furniture of the Mills House Charleston, when a man bid $50 for a mattress because Nilsson had slept on it. The writer considers that the sheets would be a far more preferable possession, and that the mattress might be earth from the garden, but very far from the rose. He continues: "What proof is there that Nilsson did sleep on this mattress at all? The fair Christine may have sat at the window all night, gazing at the moon. Even if she did occupy the bed, she may, in a fit of jealousy, inspired by the reflection that Miss Cary had been applauded or had looked well, have thrown herself on the outside of the coverlet, as girls do in novels, and passed the night in tears, with her hair up. But having the mattress, what will the purchaser do with it? To lie on it would be to profane it; to sleep on it might be impossible, being as it is, a hotel mattress. It would not make a good chimney ornament, nor, even if framed adorn a wall. The only hope that can now be seen for his utilizing it is found in the prevailing fashion of jewelry. The time may come—and judging from the jewelers' windows will come soon—when he can wear the mattress for a breastpin and the pillows as sleeve buttons.

We Disclaim It.

The London Figaro of the 31st ult., in its review of theatrical matters, says:

Our amusing little name-child, which appears daily in San Francisco, seems to rejoice in a wonderful theatrical correspondent. After bitterly criticising Mr. Freund's University play the "Undergraduate," he goes on to speak of Mr. Percival Graves' Danish comedy at the Holborn as a "Kamschatkian drama at the Standard," which is, after all, perhaps, quite near enough for his rough-and-ready readers. But he comes out best concerning M'lle Blanche D'Antigny, of the Folies Dramatiques, who is it appears—"tall and moulded like a statue, and is as supple and as lightsome as a fawn. Her attitudes, also, are grace its self; and of all the roguish eyes, hers are the most roguish. But her hair alone is a treasure in itself—long, silken, and of a light auburn color. Whenever she is on the stage she is mistress of all she surveys; and when she is not on you are wishing for her." This is, indeed, "piling it mountainious," and suggests that this most amorous of critics truly finds his work a labour of love.

Unfortunately we have no English correspondent. The first paragraph to which our London namesake takes exception was one of the clippings with which we fill up our Saturday's summary of Eastern and foreign dramatic news. The other, we found going the rounds of the press and republished it as being particularly good—of its kind. We shall have to get a London correspondent by and by when we make other improvements which we have in contemplation. Meanwhile we shall depend on the London Figaro for critical opinions on new English plays.

Two giraffes with their heads above the storms are on the high seas looking out for this country, and marked P. T. B.

Theirs is the Greeley of France in respect to bad hats.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.
No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking: and beg to say:

First—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

Second—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

Third—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

Fourth—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

Fifth—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

This theatre was thronged last night in every portion, and presented a most brilliant appearance. The lighting of the huge chandelier by electricity was the signal for a storm of applause, then came Schultz's new overture, a fanciful composition which was excellently played by the fine orchestra. "Look Before You Leap," a rather talky five act comedy, by G. W. Lovell was presented. Mrs. Judah received a hearty welcome on making her appearance on the stage, and there was a round of applause when the sunny face of Miss Nicole Walton shone on the audience. J. C. Williamson also received a greeting at the hands of the audience. Walter Leman had the weight of the piece to sustain, and got through his long part most creditably. Miss Helen Tracy in Clarbel Oddington, had a character which suited her very well Miss Nellie Cummings, who made her first appearance on this occasion, played the part of Mary Addington pleasingly. Miss Carrie Wyatt, who also made her first appearance, is a most promising novice; she has an expressive face, a good voice, and did some good acting. Miss Wyatt will become a favorite. W. A. Mestayer and Eden Plympton filled their respective roles well—the latter being quite at home in that of a bashful young gentleman. E. J. Buckley deserves credit for making the most of a tame part, and reading his lines in a manner to extort applause from an audience not too deeply interested in the trouble of Mr. Brandon. J. C. Williamson caused some fun as Jack Spriggs, particularly in the drunken scene; and Fred Franks was capital as Tom Tilley. "Look Before You Leap" will be played again to-night. To-morrow night the old play of "Speed the Plough" will be produced. Thursday is opera night, and the Kabbil company will perform "Lucrezia Borgia."

Italian Grand Opera—Metropolitan Theatre.

The troupe to appear to-morrow at the Metropolitan Theatre is now complete; Signor Faccel, the tenor, having arrived last night. The non-appearance of his name in the passenger list caused some anxiety but he is here and now everything can go on gloriously.

Alhambra Theatre.

Last night after a first part and an amusing interlude in which Bob Hart, Add Ryman, Delehanty and Hengler and others took part, a condensed version of Offenbach's opera of "La Grand Duchesse" was presented in excellent style. Mme. Fanny Simonsen gained much applause for her rendition of "The Sabre of my Sire;" W. F. Baker was, of course, quite at home in the character of Fritz; which he has played so often, and acted and sang capitally; Miss Fanny Gibson was very pleasing as Wanda; M. A. Scott caused much laughter as General Boum; G. W. Bockafeller was good as Prince Paul; Bob Hart was Baron Puck personified; J. Robinson acted Baron Grog well, and W. Delehanty was unexceptionable as Nepomock. La "Grand Duchess" will draw well.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

Chiarini's Circus will remain but a few nights longer. The rush to the Pavilion on Jackson street continues. On Monday evening Chiarini will take his farewell benefit.

Bella Union.

Mme. Therese, Mons. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Coriell J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, and a host of others appear nightly in a great programme. To-night the new ballet of "Faust and Marguerite will be presented for the first time.

American Theatre.

Three sensation pieces will be presented tonight, with a melange of songs, acts and dances.

The Athenæum.

The Atheneum is already a favorite place of amusement, orchestra seats and boxes are crowded nightly.

Romeo Dionesi.

On Friday evening, Romeo Dionesi, the wonderful boy tenor, is to make his first appearance at the California Theatre. The record of this juvenile prodigy though necessarily brief, he being now only five years old, is remarkable. He was born in Genoa on the 5th of March 1867. His parents were both musical; his father had been chef d' orchestra of the principal opera houses in Italy and Spain. Romeo began to sing almost before he could speak, and at three and a half years of age actually obtained a diploma from the Academy of Music in Granada, Spain. Since then he has by his sweet voice and wonderful powers of expression, astonished and delighted thousands in the oldest cities of Spain, and latterly in South America whence he comes to this city.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Drunk, Let us Hop.

A member of a school committee has been discharged for drunkenness. He told the boys of the school that some day they might become presidents of the United States. It seems rather harsh to charge a man with drunkenness on such grounds. But what can we think of a man who will recite such nonsense.

Life, say the Arabs, is of two parts, that which is past—a dream; and that which is to come—a wish.

It is a common fault never to be satisfied with our fortune, nor dissatisfied with our understanding.

Fresh and Sweet.

For the best confectionary, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St. near Sutter. N

An Old Landmark.

The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N.E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. E

MRS. RIORDAN has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of Fall Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere. O

Nature's Beautiful Laws.

We are never more impressed with the beauty of the law which governs the instinct of animals than when we read of the behavior of the beasts which belong to menageries, upon certain occasions. If we are to judge by the reports in the newspapers, it invariably happens that when a menagerie-man begins to move around the country with his show, and is badly in want of an advertisement which he has a strong objection to paying for, the animals always set him straight with the public by getting themselves into the papers. If the rhinoceros does not burst out of the tent and prowl around until he comes home with four or five little boys impaled on his horn, at least the Nubian lion bites its keeper in half and chews him into mince-meat. If the elephant should neglect to seize its attendant and throw him into the parquet-circle, while at the same time it smashes the hyena into jelly, the Bengal tiger never forgets to tear six or eight ribs out of the ticket agent, or to break out and lunch off of ten or twelve village children who are trying to peep under the tent. Either the band, riding upon the den of lions, finds the roof caving in, and at last is rescued with the loss of the cymbal player and the operator upon the E-flat horn, and a lot of legs and arms snatched off of the bass drummer and the man with the triangle, or else there is a railroad accident which empties the cars and sets kangaroos, panthers, blue-nose baboons and boa constrictors to tearing around through the country, reducing the majorities of that section of the U. S., in the very crisis of the campaign. We do not know how it is that these animals always understand that their owners are badly in need of gratuitous advertisements, but the fact is undeniable. As we contemplate it, and reflect upon the generous devotion of these beasts in consenting to put themselves to so much inconvenience, we feel a deeper reverence for Nature, and regard the operations of her wonderful laws with holy awe.

Comforting.

Here is a very French story from the Charivari.

A gentleman says to his cook—"Lizette, why do you look at me so sadly while I am reading Dumas' "L' Homme Femme?"

"Ah, sir! I know madame your wife. I see that you won't be able to spare her life much longer."

He Dare Not.

A man at a camp meeting boasted that he had been married twenty-five years, during which time he had never given his wife a cross word or look. He omitted to say to his hearers that he dared not do the one or the other!

Logical.

A man took a letter to the Post Office the other day and asked a clerk to weigh it; he did and said it weighs too much, it will require another three cent stamp. "Why," said the man, "that will make it weigh still more."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowon's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. E

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

"Four Dishes for two Bits."

Well, Boys, I am going down to the Mechanic's Restaurant, 159 Second street, near Howard, which has just been reopened by my old friend, T. Miner, so come on with me and try 4 dishes for two bits. BG

A Ship on the Stage.

In the revival of Victor Sejour's drama, "Le Fils de la Nuit," at the Gaite, Paris, there is a ship scene that is said to surpass anything of the kind ever put on the stage. It is thus described: When the curtain draws up the open sea is shown, with stormy waves, occupying the whole depth of the stage. Then slowly advances from the side, pitching and rolling, a superb two-masted brig, which continues its stately course till the whole of its starboard side in in sight to the audience. The sails, yards, and indeed, the whole of the gear, is represented with scrupulous exactitude, and the vast machine moves and answers to its helm in the most natural manner, "walking the waters like a thing of life." It can be fairly asserted that a more perfect piece of realistic mechanism has never been presented on the stage. The deck is on a level with the balcony of the theatre, and the vessel measures about twenty-four feet from the quarter deck to the end of the bowsprit. She works completely round, and towering above the stalls, slowly dips down, causing faint shrieks of terror from the frightened ladies in the fauteuils d'orchestre as the big vessel seems as if about to bear down upon them. The ship is then attacked by small boats full of men, and a hand-to-hand fight ensues on the deck, till at last the boarders are victorious, and the curtain falls upon the picture, only to rise again in obedience to the plaudits of the public.

Mistaken.

The Salt Lake Footlights says: "Mr. Levy, of the San Francisco Call has paid us a couple of visits, with whom we have enjoyed a pleasant chat." Mr. Levy, of the Chronicle the Footlights means, does'nt it?

The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet

AMUSEMENTS. Etc.

California Theatre.
Another large audience assembled at the California Theatre last night and all were loud in their praises of the new arrangement of the seats, the beautiful chandeliers, the decorations and Porter's new drop curtain. There was only fifteen dollars difference between the receipts of last night and those of the second night after the theatre was first opened. "Look before you Leap" was performed. To-night Morton's comedy of "Speed the Plough" which has held the stage upward of 70 years will be presented. This play was chosen for the opening night of the Globe Theatre, Boston, on the 17th inst. and was produced with J. T. Raymond, W. R. Floyd, Mrs. Barry and others in the cast. The names of those who will engage in its representation to-night appear on our first page. To-morrow night the popular Fabbri Opera Troupe will give "Lucrezia Borgia" which they so successfully performed at Maguire's Opera House.

Italian Grand Opera—Metropolitan Theatre.
The Metropolitan Theatre has been much improved in the auditorium. The black, funereal looking benches which disfigured the orchestra part of the house have been removed and comfortable arm chairs put in their place. This gives the house a bright and cheerful appearance. The front of the house will be brilliantly illuminated with arches of gas lights and variegated shades. The season, which has caused so much excitement in the fashionable world, will commence to-night when the ever-popular opera of "Il Trovatore" will be presented and the young California prima donna, M'lle Anna Sountag, will appear as Leonora, with Signora G. Biacchi as Azucena, Signor Pietro Baccel as Manrico, Signor Sylves Rosal as Conte di Luna, and Signor Fulvio Rigo as Fernando. There will be a full chorus of thirty voices and a grand orchestra. Signor Nicolo Ravora and Geo. T. Evans are conductors.

Alhambra Theatre.
"La Grande Duchesse" will always be popular with the San Francisco public. An amusing version of this work comprising all the popular airs, forms the concluding of the entertainment given at the Alhambra. Mme. Fanny Simonsen, W. F. Baker, Miss Fanny Gibson, M. A. Scott, Bob Hart and others take part in it, and sing and act their roles capitally.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.
Chiarini's Circus will remain but a few nights longer. The rush to the Pavilion on Jackson street continues. A very pleasing feature in the programme being performed on the few remaining nights of Chiarini's Circus season is entitled "El Triunfo de los Ninfos." To-morrow evening Chiarini will take his farewell benefit.

Bella Union.
The new ballet of "Faust and Marguerite," arranged by M. Schmidt in which he, M'lle Therese and a corps de ballet appear, is a very taking feature in the excellent entertainment given at this pioneer variety theatre of California. The extravaganza of "The Grotto Nymph" is capitally put on the stage with fine scenery painted by W. Bark, and clever mechanical effects by Knowlton.

The Atheneum.
The Atheneum is already a favorite place of amusement, orchestra seats and boxes are crowded nightly.

Woodward's Gardens.
The attractions at this beautiful pleasure garden are multitudinous, and hours can be pleasantly spent in examining the menagerie, the museum, and other pleasing sights. A great entertainment is in preparation for next Sunday. Miss Lotta McCarthy, the attractive and accomplished comic soloist will make her first appearance, the pantomime on skates entitled "The Lover's Stratagem," will be repeated, and Harry Howard, Senor Rosa, the Onrdie Brothers and others will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Drunk, Let us Hope.
A member of a school committee has been discharged for drunkenness. He told the boys of the school that some day they might become presidents of the United States. It seems rather harsh to charge a man with drunkenness on such grounds. But what can we think of a man who will recite such nonsense.

Life, say the Arabs, is of two parts, that which is past—a dream; and that which is to come—a wish.

It is a common fault never to be satisfied with our fortune, nor dissatisfied with our understanding.

MRS. RIORDAN has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of all Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere. Q

Determined Woman.
You can't fool Indiana lovers easily. They don't pride themselves on their modesty, but do on their persistency. Recently a preacher of Peru—no relation of Peruvian bark nor of "ancient Peruvian"—forgot an engagement to marry a couple, and went to bed. When the bride and groom arrived at his house, they were considerably astonished at hearing he was in bed. The groom remarked, "Well, this is thunderin' mean, anyhow. Nellie, I suppose we'll have to adjourn it to some other time." "I came here to get married," said the gentle Nellie, "an' married I'm goin, to be afore I leave this ere gosple shop. If he doesn't git up an' come here an' do the splicin', I'll go to his bed-room an' put a head on him, and drag him out here in his shirt. I'll do it in five minutes, or I ain't an honest woman." The minister descended ere the lapse of five minutes, and the young couple soon went on their way rejoicing, as as happy as a couple of oysters in the months without an R.

The Force of Habit.
"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," is as true now as when it was first uttered. There is a fellow who lives in Brooklyn who in his youth was trained to peddle clams. Some relative dying left him a large fortune. He keeps up his old habits of going round serenading every young woman he knows, and thinks he is singing all the time.

An Eye to Business
Uncle Levi—"Now, Sammy, tell me have you read the beautiful story of Joseph?"

Sam—"Oh, yes, uncle."

Uncle—"Well, then, what wrong did they do when they sold their brother?"

Sam—"They sold him too cheap, uncle, I think."

A Hopeful Alderman.
An Alderman of a city in Maine, being invited to attend a centennial jubilee, replied: "I can't attend this one, but I'll go next time."

In a Dilemma.
A Japanese scholar in one of the New Haven schools, having been insulted by a schoolmate, sent a note to the instructor requesting permission to kill the offender. And the professor is in a perplexing dilemma. If he doesn't give the Japanese youth permission to commit homicide, the youth will be compelled to harikari himself. He doesn't know which is the biggest sin—murder or suicide. He'll probably take the opinion of some lawyer on the subject, they are so apt at deciding questions of conscientiousness.

Health and Pleasure.
There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

A Rascal well Served.
The sex have gained a favorable point in England. A husband over there wanted a divorce. His wife was pure, irreproachable, and above suspicion. To secure his object, he hired a gorgeous looking man, told him to test the powers of resistance of the unsuspecting wife. This "shadow" was faithful to his trust. The woman fell. Then the husband came triumphantly to the front. His suit for a decree of divorce was begun. It came to a trial; the testimony of the "shadow" showed that the wife had been guilty. It proved more than that, namely, that she had been guilty with the aforesaid "shadow." This, of course, would be sufficient ground for a divorce on the ground of adultery. But no. Let us hear the defence. They admitted the guilt of the wife, proved that she had been criminal with no other person; and then put in that said "shadow" was an agent of the husband, and that every principal is responsible for the acts of an agent. The court so held, and the wicked husband had still a wife to whose fall he had been instrumental. This is at once law and common sense.

Scared into Propriety.
A Titusville wife placed a toy snake in her husband's boot, and then could hardly get breakfast because of her snickering at his performances when he first discovered it. He first looked into the mirror, and then went and threw his demijohn of rye whisky in the mill-race. He drank thirteen cups of coffee at breakfast, and for several days afterward astonished his children by going to bed at nine o'clock each night.

Town and Country.
A facetious traveller describes the difference between society in the metropolis and that in a provincial town in the following language: In the country if you have a boiled leg of mutton for dinner, everybody wishes to know whether you have caper sauce with it; whereas in New York you may have an elephant for lunch, and no one cares a pin about it.

THE GREAT REMEDY
....FOR ...
KIDNEY DISEASES
AND CURE FOR
FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST! ☞

COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popula[illegible]ty which Coleman's Compound Extract of [illegible]calyptus has already attained has given birth [illegible] several base imitations. None but Coleman's [illegible]enuine.

[illegible]r. Co[illegible]m[illegible]n refers by permission to the follow[illegible] well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who [illegible] vouch for its efficacy, from personal experi[illegible]ce and knowledge:

Really Smart Paragraphs.

The Danbury News is establishing quite a reputation for bright paragraphs. Here are a few specimens:

America can illy afford to slight France, when so many of her families are sheltered by French roofs.

An angered Danburian nearly lost the sight of an eye from the contents of a Sugar Hollow mosquito which he smashed on his cheek.

A sick man on George street "safely passed the circus in his complaint," on Monday night—at least that was what the servant reported to a caller on Tuesday evening.

A Liberty street servant girl transformed a quiet home into a Babel, and lost a good place, by merely straining four quarts of crab-apple jelly through an eighteen dollar veil.

Bones, supposed to belong to a boy, were found on digging on Gas Hill, this morning One pair were found in good condition, and rung out merrily, when used, but the other showing signs of decay.

It really requires more delicacy of touch and a better acquantance with the inner emotions of the heart, and a grander pathos of sentiment to make a declaration of love thad it does to up put a stove.

Hon. John Carew, of Slawsons, is dead. Mr. Carew has been a prominent man for some years, and was the author of a series of articles pertaining to government, which are of considerable value. His life was devoted to the service of his country, and in an humble way, he worked for its salvation calling the opposition liars and horse thieves whenever an opportunity offered.

Is currant jam poisonous? A lady who left a pan of it to cool over night, on examining it the next morning, found two rats in it. They were quite dead. And the question arises—is currant jam poisonous?

Theirs is the Greeley of France in respect to bad hats.

Special to the Ladies.

MRS. SCHLOSS begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. F

Dr. Doherty

Has devoted his study more particularly to chronic and specific practice, and as such is now the most successful of any Physician in San Francisco. Office 619 Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below What Cheer House. I

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city — English breakfast tea — Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. R

Sam Moore,

Formerly of Russ House Carriages, can be found in front of Coleman Bros. clothing establishment, southwest corner Bush and Montgomery sts., or Dexter Stables. Carriage orders left at either place promptly attended to day or night, at reduced rates. BG

To the Unfortunate

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary, 623 Kearney street corner of Commercial. Established in 1854, for the treatment of chronic and special complaints. Dr. Gibbon will make no charge unless he effects a cure. B

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street.

Do You Know

That with BUTTERICK'S PATTERNS you can cut and make any garment to fit perfectly? Send postage stamp for an illustrated catalogue. H. A. Deming, agent, office of the Howe Sewing Machine, No. 113 Kearny street, between Sutter and Post, San Francisco.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the [illegible]

So Very Liberal.

We have received a circular from the publishers of the American Land and Law Advisor, published in Pittsburgh, Penn., an extract from which we publish just to show what chances newspaper men have sometimes. The publishers of the Advisor say they cannot afford to exchange with every paper, and then make the following offer:

If you will give the Advisor frequent, short, strong notices in your paper, we should be pleased to send it to you regularly, and will also, if you accept, send you mounted, sized and varnished, ready for framing, our beautiful Premium Chromo, "The Lost Babe;" and if you wish to use our paper to promote the circulation of yours, by clubbing, we will furnish it at $2.00, and give the above Chromo to every subscriber.

We'll do it. We hope the present notice will be taken as the first and counted. We took the wrapper off the first Advisor we received, but hadn't time to do more. We have buried succeeding numbers in their swaddling clothes in our waste paper basket. This gives us a hint. We will exchange with any paper that will give FIGARO frequent (say, every other day), short (say, a quarter of a column), notices telling merely the truth; that it is the smartest, brightest, best, most brilliant, most piquante most reliable dramatic paper ever published in any part of the world, and will in addition send mounted, sized and varnished, ready for framing a beautiful premium chromo, "The Blind Poodle," and we will club our paper with any religious paper that wishes to use it to promote its circulation or club any publisher, and thus promote his circulation if he dare to send us such a cheeky circular as that now before us. Keep your lost kids away from this office, we don't want any of them.

Too Bad.

The Paris Figaro recently reported in full detail a remarkable trial at the Assize Court of Bastia, Corsica, in which Lucia Medelli, a beautiful young wife, was charged with the murder of her husband for his repeated infidelities. The acte d'accusation, plea, evidence, arguments, charge, and all were given at length, and a unanimous verdict of "Not guilty!" reported. The progress of the case created intense excitement at Paris. The principle involved—whether or not a wife was justified in slaying a faithless husband, was discussed in Dumas' latest pamphlet, "L'Homme-Femme," and the waves of argument were high and strong. To cap all, another paper gave a new view of the case, in a full report " from our special correspondent at Bastia. This was too much and the next day the Figaro editors, who could keep back their laughter no longer, coolly informed the public that the whole thing was a hoax. There was a Bastia in Corsica, and that was all.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Professor Alexander Wolowski,

The renowned pianist, gave a grand musical soiree at Mr. Badger's Piano Rooms, on Sansome street, which was attended by the elite of society. The entertainment was a great success. The Professor executed several gems of his own production in the most artistic manner, and was most enthusiastically received. He has the reputation of being a most proficient teacher of the pianoforte. We wish him every success in this, his new field of enterprise, where talent always commands success. B 1t

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beers & Maynard, 338 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.
No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking; and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

J. MORA MOSS, JOHN PARROTT,
PETER DONAHUE, H. M. NEWHALL,
W. C. RALSTON, WM. T. COLEMAN,

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES'
PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight to round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Men—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

One thousand copies of FIGARO were distributed among the very fashionable audience present at the Metropolitan Theatre last night. A few small programmes were thrust into the house, but everyone took FIGARO and read it. Advertisers will take notice of this fact.

California Theatre.

The old comedy of "Speed the Plough" was performed in excellent style last night. To-night the Fabbri opera troupe, whose performances have been received with such general favor, will appear in "Lucrezia Borgia."

Italian Grand Opera—Metropolitan Theatre.

An immense and brilliantly fashionable audience was in attendance at the Metropolitan Theatre last night when the opera of "Il Trovatore," was presented, and three singers made their first appearance before the San Francisco public: M'lle Anna Sonntag, soprano; Signor Pietro Baccei, tenor, and Signor Sylvee Rosai, baritone. M'lle Sonntag received a welcome of more than ordinary warmth on making her appearance; she was terribly nervous and failed to make a good impression in "Di tale amor." In the last act M'lle Sonntag appeared to better advantage and sang with more confidence; her voice is, however, at its best, light for opera. In appearance a more charming Leonore than M'lle Sonntag could not be desired as she appeared in in the last two acts with her magnificent golden brown hair falling far down to her knees in luxuriant clusters of curls. M'lle Sonntag must be treated as a novice; no one could be a prima donna at her age; she has a pleasing voice and sings correctly voila tout. Signor Pietro Baccei, albeit his voice was said to be not at its best, achieved a veritable success, the audience going wildly enthusiastic over his singing. According to promise he fairly touched the high C last night and, of course, brought down the house. Signor Rosai has a fine baritone voice but is rather cold in his style; he is a good actor and has a fine stage presence. While the new artists were well received, the real triumph of the evening was achieved by Signora Bianchi, in Azucena, a character in which she can scarcely surpassed. Signora Bianchi was in splendid voice last night and sang and acted magnificently, realizing the character of the revengeful gipsey. The chorus was a great improvement on the "ring chorus," or "patent chorus" which we have been obliged to endure during several seasons recently. The singers who composed this ring are now divided between the Metropolitan Theatre and the Fabbri Opera Troupe, and with some capital singers to help them, their voices do not sound so bad. The choruses last night were all well sung, and the audience had sufficient appreciation to applaud them. Signor Revera is an admirable conductor, and the orchestra under his direction generally did well. The opera was finely mounted with rich costumes, and was a most creditable production. The new seats in the orchestra were filled with ladies last night, and their dresses showed to as good advantage as in the dress circle. To-morrow night, "Lucrezia Borgia" will be presented.

Alhambra Theatre.

Everything in the programme now being played at this house is bright and entertaining. Charley Sutton and Bob Hart cause much fun in the first part; Delehanty and Hengler shine in the interlude, and nearly all the company support Mme. Fanny Simonsen, in the lively burlesque of "la Grande Duchesse," with which the entertainment winds up. On Monday evening the charming Miss Ella Wesner will make her first appearance at this house in her artistic and elegant impersonations of character.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

To-night a bill of extraordinary attractions will be presented, and Signor Chiarini, the great impressario of equestrian opera, will take his farewell benefit. There will be no standing room after eight o'clock, so all will do well to go early.

Bella Union.

The new ballet of "Faust and Marguerite," the amusing farce of "Proposition Ooooesd," by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coriell and Lon M'Carthy and the attractive extravaganza of "The Grotto Nymph," in which R. C. Marsh, Minnie Fillmore, Carrie Chapman, Miss Josephine, Carria Armstrong, Maggie Emerton, Mat Keily, Barry Sinclair, and others appear, are features in the programme for to-night.

The Atheneum.

The rush to this house continues. A very lively performance is given. On Saturday evening Miss Agnes Kennedy will appear in her sketches of all nationalities.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at this beautiful pleasure garden are multitudinous, and hours can be pleasantly spent in examining the menagerie, the museum, and other pleasing sights. A great entertainment is in preparation for next Sunday. Miss Lotta McCarthy, the attractive and accomplished comic soloist will make her first appearance, the pantomime on skates entitled "The Lover's Stratagem," will be repeated, and Harry Howard, Senor Rosa, the Curtis Brothers and others will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

CHANGED.

By ARTHUR SHAUGHNESSY.

Has summer come without the rose,
Or left the bird behind?
Is the blue changed above thee,
O world? or am I blind?
Will you change every flower that glows,
Or only change this spot
Where she who said I love thee
Now says I love thee not?

The skies seemed true above thee;
The rose true on the tree:
The bird seemed true the summer through,
But all proved false to me;
World, is there one good thing in you—
Life, love, or death—or what?
Since lips that sang I love thee
Have said I love thee not?

False Hair.

Heavens! Let all the ladies who wear deceitful locks read what the British Medical Journal tells us about false hair! There is a M. Lindeman who has given his mind to this subject, and announces that every hair in a false plait ends with "a nodosity;" each nodosity contains fifty "psorosperms" and each psorosperm throws off minute spores which becomes "pseudo-navicellæ." But this is by no means the end of a bad matter. The pseudo-navicellæ in a ballroom containing fifty ladies all with the spurious tendrils, amount to 45,000,000, which, when inhaled, make their way into the circulation, and bring on cardiac affections! This is too bad; but then doesn't real hair sometimes produce cardiac affections?

Snubbed.

A MAN advertised for a wife and requested each candiate to enclose her carte de visite. A spirited young lady wrote to the advertiser in the following terms: "Sir, I do not enclose my carte, for, though there is some authority for putting a cart before a horse, I know of none for putting one before an ass."

Charging A Jury.

"Gentlemen of the jury," charged a Western judge, "in this case, counsel on both sides are unintelligible, the witnesses on both sides are incredible, and the plaintiff and defendant are both such characters that to me it is indifferent which way you give a verdict."

Afraid of Mrs. Grundy.

Devotion to public opinion was illustrated by a lady aged 80, who recently married a man of a correspondingly appropriate age because he "comes about my house so much if I don't marry him people will talk."

Fruitful Saying.

It was a fruitful saying of Thoreau, "Be not simply good; be good for something."

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

More Work for Stanley.

The Jewish Messenger suggests that the editor of the New York Herald shall, at once, dispatch its Great African detective, Stanley, in search of the ten lost tribes of Israel. The editor of the Messenger has the fullest confidence in the success of the enterprise, and that Mr. Stanley will just as certainly discover the lost tribes as he has found Livingstone. He says Mr. Bennett has only to approve his suggestion, and the following will be the result as interviewed by a future reporter:

Mr. Bennett (in bed, four a. m.)—Mr. Stanley, have the ten tribes ever been found?

Mr. Stanley, (in room adjoining, also abed)—No, sir; no not to my knowledge

Mr. Bennett—Can they be found?

Mr. Stanley—I should judge so.

Mr. Bennett—Will you find them?

Mr. Stanley—I will, sir.

Mr. Bennett—Start immediately; draw on me for as large a sum as you like, and don't come back to the Herald office until you have found all of the ten tribes, whom you must send to America as speedily as possible.

And Mr. Stanley takes the first boat for—anywhere; and depend upon it, the news will soon be flashed across the line, "Glory! Have just found Tribe number One. The Reubenites are well, and send congratulations!

KIDNEY DISEASES

KING
Quinine
Dethroned
AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

NEW AND SIMPLIFIED METHOD
....FOR ...
PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's new invention, which has created a great recession in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. W.'s residence, No. 428 Sutter street.

Comforting.

Here is a very French story from the Chiarivari.

A gentleman says to his cook—"Lizette, why do you look at me so sadly while I am reading Dumas' "L' Homme Femme?"

"Ah, sir! I know madame your wife. I see that you won't be able to spare her life much longer."

He Dare Not.

A man at a camp meeting boasted that he had been married twenty-five years, during which time he had never given his wife a cross word or look. He omitted to say to his hearers that he dared not do the one or the other!

The Force of Habit.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," is as true now as when it was first uttered. There is a fellow who lives in Brooklyn who in his youth was trained to peddle clams. Some relative dying left him a large fortune. He keeps up his old habits of going round serenading every young woman he knows, and thinks he is singing all the time.

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Keers & Maynard, 333 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. Special to the Ladies.

Mrs. Schloss begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. P

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city — English breakfast tea — Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny. B

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock"

A Sufficient Cause for Hatred.

The inextinguishable hatred with which the people of Arizona regard the Apache Indians was excited by a singular circumstance. Many years ago, a friend of ours, named Higgins, who was an enthusiast upon the subject of music, conceived an idea that the surest way of civilizing the red man would be to bring him under the soothing influences of the divine art. Higgins concluded that this could best be done by teaching each individual Indian to play upon some instrument. So he bought about sixteen hundred flutes, and started off for Arizona. He settled down among the Apaches, who were much pleased with Higgin's scheme. So Higgins began to give music lessons, and in a few weeks he had all those flutes employed, and the silence of the plains was broken by a perfect cyclone of B-flats and C-naturals. The Indians went into the thing with enthusiasm; but the white people in the neighborhood regarded the horrible uproar with disgust. And that melodious old ass of a Higgins, used to rush out his sixteen hundred braves upon calm Summer evenings and make them roost along on a fence and practice their scales in unison until the hair of every white man in the neighborhood was screeched up on end. After a while, Higgins educated them up to try to play "Auld Lang Syne," and the way this aboriginal performer would slide around among the notes, and tear up and down the bars, and improvise extraordinary and appalling variations, would have made even an Italian organ-grinder commit suicide. But Higgins said he felt encouraged and so he marched his orchestra into town, one evening, for the purpose of serenading the mayor. And when those performers had wrestled with that tune for about a quarter of an hour, the citizens formed a vigilance committee and hung Higgins, while they shot the orchestra all to atoms, and made a bonfire of the flutes. Since that time the Apaches and Arizonians have not been on speaking terms, but they hate each other fiercely. The cause of musical science has not received any attention, since then, from the Apaches.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapine;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking; and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock. Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

SQUARZA'S

Branch Punch Saloon,

317 Kearny street.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.
Remember, too, not this famed place to pass;
ALL SPLENDID LIQUORS BUT ONE BIT A GLASS.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Italian Grand Opera—Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night the opera of "Lucrezia Borgia" will be presented with the following cast—Lucrezia, Signorina Adelina Speranza; Maffeo Orsini, Miss Annie McKenzie (her first appearance); Gennaro, Signor P. Bacci; Il Duca, Signor L. Rigo; La Principessa, Mad. Evans, Gubatta, M. Roncoviari, Rustighello, M. Charles. Miss Anna Sonntag has been indisposed since the first night and does not feel strong enough to undertake the arduous role of Lucrezia. It will be most satisfactorily filled by Signorina Speranza, who is a fine singer, a good actress and a true artist.

California Theatre.

The performance of "Lucrezia Borgia" last night by the Fabbri Opera Troupe was a brilliant success. The house was crowded in every portion and presented a dazzling appearance, full-dress toilettes seaming the rule of the evening. How well the opera of "Lucrezia Borgia" is performed by this troupe, all who heard it at Maguire's Opera House are aware. The acoustic properties of the California Theatre, with reference to a musical performance, were tested last night, and pronounced absolutely perfect by all present. Every one engaged in the opera sang well, and all were repeatedly called before the curtain. The Fabbri Troupe will give their next performance on Sunday night, when "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" will be presented in German. To-night, "Speed the Plough" will be performed by the dramatic company, and the boy tenor, Romeo Dionesi, will sing a romanza and recitative from "Martha," and the grand scena and aria from the third act of "Ernani."

Alhambra Theatre.

Italian opera at both the California Theatre and the Metropolitan, and anglicized Offenbach at the Alhambra all draw well, and bespeak us a music-loving people. Mme. Fanny Simonsen in the character of the Grand Duchess, sings all the favorite songs in the part, and is ably supported by W. F. Baker as Fritz. A capital first part and interlude precede the opera. The full programme will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

Of course there was a crowd in the Pavilion on Jackson street when Chiarini, the grand seigneur of circus entertainments, took his farewell benefit. A capital performance was given. To-morrow the last matinee performance will be given, and on Sunday night the very last of the season. Signor Chiarini was presented with a handsome pair of sleeve buttons with appropriate inscription and other testimonials.

The Great Race.

The world-renowned trotting stars, Goldsmith Maid and Lucy, arrived from Sacramento last night, and will give an exhibition of their speed at the Bay District Agricultural Park to-morrow afternoon. Tickets with reserved seats can be purchased from 1 to 5 to-day at 112 Sutter street. All San Francisco will be out to the Park to-morrow.

Bella Union.

Mme. Theresa and Mons. Schmidt have struck a lead in the favor of the public with their attractive ballets, as the applause which nightly follows the performance of "Faust and Marguerite" proves. Mrs. Charles Corlell in favorite ballads and farces, Johnny Tuers and others in screaming negro acts, and any number of other entertainments are given nightly. On Saturday a new burlesque will be produced.

The Athenæum.

The business at this house continues good, and the audience comprises all classes. A great bill is in preparation for Saturday night, when Miss Agnes Kennedey, character vocalist, and Miss May Leslie the accomplished balladist, late of the Child American Troupe, will make their first appearance.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at this beautiful pleasure garden are multitudinous, and hours can be pleasantly spent in examining the menagerie, the museum, and other pleasing sights. A great entertainment is in preparation for next Sunday. Miss Lotte McCarthy, the attractive and accomplished comic soloist will make her first appearance, the pantomime on skates entitled "The Lover's Strategem," will be repeated, and Harry Howard, Senor Rose, the Curtis Brothers and others will appear.

Anatomical Museum.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Perfect Rush

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy a fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street; below Kearny. N

THE FIRST PARTING

BY MARIAN DOUGLASS.

"Yes! I'm off to-morrow morn!
Next week sail for Indy!
And you'll be glad when I am gone—
Say, shan't you be, Lucindy?"

A Summer flower, herself, the maid
Stood 'mid the sweet syringas.
A June pink in her hair, smooth braid.
A rose bud in her fingers,

Plucked from the tall bush in the yard.
Whose white flowers waved above her;
And parting never seemed so hard
As just then, to her lover.

Her lip began to grieve, the red
Upon her cheek grew paler—
"It seems a strange choice Tom," she said,
"For you to be a sailor;

"And when the wild, black clouds I see,
And when the nights are windy,
I—" "Bless your soul! you'll pray for me;
I know you will, Lucindy!"

The rosebud from her hand he took,
"This flower," he said, "I'll save it,
And keep it pressed within a book,
Remembering who gave it.

"I never cared as women do
For garden beds and posies;
But somehow—why, I never knew—
I always loved white roses.

"They seem just made for weddin's; when
I come agin from Indy,
My bride, you'll wear white roses then;
Come, won't you!—say Lucindy?"

A sudden flame upon her cheek,
Her eyes the quick tears filling,
The answer gave she would not speak,
Lest she might seem too willing.

For, "Tom," she asked, "how can it be?
Here, all my life you've known me;
No word of love you've said to me,
No sign you've ever shown me."

And he said, "True; but though I hain't,
My love, I've wished you knew it,
And tried to speak, and felt to faint
At heart to rare to do it;

"But when my mind was fixed to go
A sailor, out to Indy,
I said, 'I'll have a Yes or No.'
O, say it, Yes, Lucindy!"

"Yes, it's yes!" she whispered; "when
I learned that you were going,
I found you had my heart; till then
'Twas yours without my knowing!"

Soft on her cheek fell, wet with dew,
A rose-leaf from above her;
A warmer touch her red lip knew—
The first kiss of her lover!

Though stilled the song and hushed the laugh,
And hot the tears are standing,
What joy that life can give is half
So sweet as love's first parting?

He Darn Not.

A man at a camp meeting boasted that he had been married twenty-five years, during which time he had never given his wife a cross word or look. He omitted to say to his hearers that he dared not do the one or the other!

An Eye to Business

Uncle Levi—"Now, Sammy, tell me have you read the beautiful story of Joseph?"

Sam—"Oh, yes, uncle."

Uncle—"Well, then, what wrong did they do when they sold their brother?"

Sam—"They sold him too cheap, uncle, I think."

Life, say the Arabs, is of two parts, that which is past—a dream; and that which is to come—a wish.

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had [illegible] pronounced incurable by any other known [illegible]. For Export Only.
The Boston Transcript asks: "Has anybody eaten a California olive, and how did he like it? Must one eat three before deciding?" We don't eat them here, we prefer the little French olive.

Settles The Matter.
A new Swedish paper, just started in Minnesota, distinctly says: "Tidare sager han pa tal om Grant-Wijson ska nomination. Sadanna ord gora sqatlange artiklar ofverflodigal." Just as we expected! This is a complete refutation of the charges of nepotism and things brought against Grant by his enemies, who deserve to be callled "ofverflodigals" and other hard names.

The man who rose before sunrise has come to the conclusion that the rose that all are praising is not the rose for him.

Terre Haute collector of curiosities has the autographs of over 200 "distinguished criminals," among them many of the most noted convicts who have been executed during the present century.

Ungrateful Beings.
Wood engravers are the most ungrateful beings in existence. They are willing at any time, for a few dollars, to cut their host friends, or bring their heads to the block.

Chiarini's Circus.
This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beers & Maynerd, 338 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Pause, Gentle Reader,
And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. B

Special to the Ladies.
MRS. SCHLOSS begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. P

Live Well.
Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Do Not Suffer from Corns.
The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

Squarza's Punches.
One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Oyster Trade.
The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His [illegible]

Joaquin Miller in New York.
A New Yorker says:

Joaquin Miller, the untamed poet of the Sierras, has taken up his abode in this city of confined distances, and is now occupying a suit of rooms in a rather dilapidated building on Thirty-fourth street. These rooms he has fitted up in his own peculiar style, having covered the floor with tiger skins and hung the walls with scalp locks and tomahawks. He refuses himself the luxury of a bed, and at night throws himself on the skins and says he is happy as a king. I am sorry to own it, but Mr. Miller, as well as his poetry, has deteriorated. When he first visited this city, about a year ago, he was a well-dressed man, with quiet, though peculiar ways, but one who inspired you with confidence in his earnestness, and gave promise of better things than he had already done. To be sure he wore his boots outside of his pants, and said he did not know what grapes were, but we forgave those little affectednesses, and put it all down to the score of poetic license, hoping that time would make a desired change; now he returns to us after a years' absence, with his boots in his pants to be sure, but with his hair hanging tangled and greasy, way down to his shoulders. His beard is is closely trimmed, and that is the only part of his person that shows the least sign of care. His finger nails are long and dirty and his hands, aside from being colored with cigarette smoke, look as if they were not very familiar with soap and towel. His shirt is also soiled and his collar, which is paper, sadly needs changing; he scorns even his red tie this warm weather. His coat is worn and greasy and covered with dandruff. His crowning ornament is a pair of blue glass, iron-bound goggles, as big around as an old fashioned watch. These he wears bang up against his eyes, and thus arrayed he rides about the city in the rear platform of street cars. In a man who knows better, as Miller certainly does this not only disregard for conventionalities, but absolute nastiness, is unpardonable. He affects an utter disregard for money, and lights his cigarettes with ten cent bills in a way that entirely eclipses Herold Skimpole. He has brought his mustang pony all the way from the Pacific with him, and intends some fine afternoon to astonish the natives by riding through Central Park in full Mexican costume. The saddle he rides is covered with Mexican coin and fancy trapping, worth, where he bought it, $600.

Sad.
The most hardened tourist cannot fail to weep when he sees the change that has come over the Niagara hack-drivers this season. Instead of the gay and happy beings of yore, they now stand meekly by their vehicles, and, in soft, seductive tones, woo the visitor to their clutches—Policemen with shot-guns is what tones them down thusly.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.
So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Step," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again;

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking; and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith, to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhoea.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Last night, after the first act of the comedy of "Speed the Plough," in which J. C. Williamson did some capital acting as Farmer Ashfield, Owen Marlowe was capital as Bob Handy, Walter Leman a model old country gentleman as Sir Able Handy, and Miss Minnie Walton a very pleasing and interesting Susan, the boy tenor, Romno Dioneal, made his appearance and sang a recitative and romanza from the opera of "Martha," in wonderfully good style for one so young, and won a recall. He afterwards sang a scene and aria from "Ernani," appearing in a magnificent costume. This afternoon and evening "Speed the Plough" will be performed. On Monday evening Miss Annie Graham and George D. Chaplin will make their appearance in the comedy of "Money."

ALHAMBRA — CALIFORNIA MINSTRELS.—Maguire's California Minstrels will present a great programme at the matinee performance to-day and again this evening. A capital first part and brilliant interlude in which Delehanty and Hengler, Martin Simonsen, L. McAndrews, Bob Hart, and others will appear, will be given, and the performance will conclude with a pleasing and amusing version of Offenbach's popular opera of "La Grande Duchesse." On Monday evening the talented and dashing Miss Ella Wesner will appear in her great impersonations of male character.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—A large and very fashionable audience was present last night when the opera of "Lucrezia Borgia" was presented with Signorina Adeline Speranza in the title role; Signor Baccei as Gennaro, Miss Annie McKenzie as Maffio Orsini; Signor Fulvio Rigo, as the Duke, and the other characters appropriately filled. We have on several occasions commented on the excellence of Signorina Speranza's singing and acting in this role; she was in fine voice last night and performed her part admirably. Signor Pietro Baccei has captivated the musical public of San Francisco and is as great a favorite as was Shriglia, who made such a hit here some years ago. In the role of Gennaro, last night, he frequently roused the audience to a display of positive enthusiasm and in the Scala to the second act fairly brought down the house. We have so seldom had a really fine tenor during any opera season that the public greet the arrival of such an artist as as Signor Baccei with feelings of great satisfaction. Miss Anna McKenzie sang and acted charmingly in the character of Maffio Orsini, and gave the brindisi in good style; Signor Rigo made a good Duke, and the opera generally was well performed. This evening an extra performance will be given and "Il Trovatore" will be presented with Signora Speranza as Leonora.

THE FABBRI OPERA TROUPE.—To-morrow evening the Fabbri Opera Troupe will present the opera of "The Barber of Seville" in German, with Jacob Muller in his great character of Figaro, the charming Miss Anna Elzer as the coquettish Rosina, L. Elsenbach as Count Almaviva, L. Scherer as Dr. Bartolo, E. Rethwick as Basilio, H. Schuler as Fiorello, and Mrs. Heinrich as Marcelline. Miss Elser will introduce the songs of "Dreaming" and the "Elser Waltz." We are glad that FIGARO will be so worthily impersonated, and prophesy that the opera will be a great success.

CHIARINI'S CIRCUS.—The last matinee performance will be given to day, and another great entertainment this evening. To-morrow night the very successful season will close. Signor Chiarini's circus is so original and in many respects so far ahead of any other in the world, that it draws people to it who would never dream of visiting an ordinary circus. On Monday the troupe will start on a tour through the country. Their route is marked out in another column.

THE YANKEE ROBINSON CIRCUS.—This great combination of above will open on Monday Oct. 7th, at the Circus Temple (formerly Horticultural Hall), on Stockton street near Post. The box-office will be open during the day. Further particulars will be given on Monday.

BELLA UNION.—A very varied and entertaining programme has been prepared for to-night. Among the many new features may be mentioned a new sketch by Johnny Tuers entitled "Fair Justice in California," in this Johnny will take the character of the fair one from the South. A rich melange of songs, dances and acts will conclude with two-act drama of "Jemmy Twitcher." Delhi, the great Fire King, who handles red hot iron and molten lead is engaged ATHENEUM.—There will be a great performance at this house to-night. Miss Agnes Kennedy will make her first appearance in songs of many lands; Miss May Leslie, the very popular vocalist, will also make her first appearance, and a very lively programme of songs, dances, and acts will be performed.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS — The many attractions at this beautiful pleasure garden are multitudinous, and hours can be pleasantly spent in examining the menagerie, the museum, and other pleasing sights. A great entertainment is in preparation for to-morrow. Miss Lotta McCarthy, the attractive and accomplished comic soloist will make her first appearance. the pantomime po skates entitled "The Lover's Stratagem," will be repeated, and Harry Howard, Senor Rosa, the Curtis Brothers and others will appear.

DEATH OF A WELL-KNOWN THEATRE MAN. Charles A. Howard, who was for many yea a employed in the box office of Maguire's Opera House died in Philadelphia, on the 12th of September at the age of 64 years. Many in San Francisco will regret him as a rough diamond.

THE GREAT RACE.—The great and world-renowned trotting stars, Goldsmith Maid and Lucy, arrived from Sacramento last night, and will give an exhibition of their speed at the Bay District Agricultural Park this afternoon. Tickets with reserved seats can be purchased from 1 to 5 to-day at 112 Sutter street. All San Francisco will be out to the Park to-morrow.

CLIFF HOUSE.—There is so much horse talk at present that it is worth while to go out on the Cliff House road where one can see the best trotters in the State driven by their owners. All the horse men make Captain Foster's famous hostelry a sort of headquarters.

BADGER'S CENTRAL PARK.—In addition to the usual attractions of museum, menagerie, gymnasium, skating rink, etc., there will be an instrumental concert to-morrow.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

J. H. Budworth is at White's Athenæum, New York.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers and Mr. J. C. McCollum are playing a highly successful engagement at the Academy of Music, Chicago. They open at the National Theatre, Washington, Oct. 7th, and afterward make a southern tour under the management of Mr. John T. Ford.

The Dramatic News says;

Victorien Sardou's "Agnes," written especially for Agnes Ethel, does not seem to be much of a success. It is an evidently done for this market, and so full of extravagance and absurdity that Miss Ethel was anxious to have it recast, and would have had it if the recasting would not have compelled her to pay Sardou $5,000 additional in gold. The French playwright must be adroit when he can contrive to have his productions presented with all their original defects, and without fear of improvement from other hands.

Miss Helen Temple will commence an engagement at Booth's on December 10th as Joan of Arc in Brougham's new play, "The Lily of France."

Rose Eytinge, Consul Butler's wife, is about to return to the stage.

At the Theatre Comique, Miss Jennie Benson, clog dancer; Little Maggie Benson, in character songs and changes; Mackin Wilson, double song and dance; Miss Kitty O'Neil, dancer, and Frank Kerns, Ethiopian comedian, were the fresh appearances on Sept. 16th.

"Kenilworth," localized and adapted for Miss Lydia Thompson and her burlesque company, by H. S. Murdock, was produced at Wallack's Theatre, for the first time in New York, on Saturday evening, September 21st.

Charles R. Thorne, Jr., sailed for Europe per steamship Baltic, on Sept. 21st. He intends being absent for one year, during which time he will travel for recreation upon the continent.

Hughey Dougherty was to have sailed from London for the Cape of Good Hope on the 19th inst., en route to the East Indies, with a minstrel party. They intend to be absent two years, and then return to the United States by way of San Francisco.

"Le Roi Carotte," despite the prophecies that it would not prove a success in New York, continues to attract large audiences to the Grand Opera House.

"Diamonds" has achieved a success at Daly's Fifth-avenue Theatre that bids fair to rival that obtained by "Saratoga" from the pen of the same writer. The theatre is not large enough to contain the numbers that nightly demand admission.

Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault made their first appearance at Booth's Theatre on the 23d ult., in "Arrah-na-Pogue."

John T. Raymond is engaged at the Globe Theatre, Boston, and made quite a success in the opening piece. "Speed the Plough," The Advertiser says: "The chief honors of the evening, so far as the performance went were clearly won by Mr. John T. Raymond, who, as Farmer Ashfield, gave renewed proofs of his sterling qualities as a comedian. It was a most delicious piece of comedy acting, quite remarkable in its carefully sustained and even quality as for nicety of conception and heartiness in execution. At the end of the second act he won a very loud call, in company with Mrs. Berry, who looked and played Susan Ashfield most charmingly.

The New York Dramatic News of the 28th ult., says: "The Emerson Minstrels had an unusually large patronage during the week. The programme has been good and sufficiently varied to suit the tastes of all. The banjo playing of Harry Stanwood is far the best that has been heard in this city for some time. The entertainment has concluded each evening with a Trip to Paris.

THE GREAT REMEDY

... FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR!

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 116 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

G. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor. California and Davis sts.
E. G. Mathews, Grain Merchant, 26 Davis st.
Col. Wm. Wolfe, No. 321 Market st., formerly Passenger Agent for the Cal. Steam Nav. Co.

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beers & Maynard, 238 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. B

Special to the Ladies.

Mrs. Schloss begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. P

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. D

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Do You Know

That with BUTTERICK'S PATTERNS you can cut and make any garment to fit perfectly? Send postage stamp for an illustrated catalogue. H. A. Deming, agent, office of the Howe Sewing Machine, No. 113 Kearny street, between Sutter and Post, San Francisco. •

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and "the 'Saddle Rock'" is known everywhere.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

SORROW.

Upon my lips she laid her touch divine,
And merry speech and careless laughter died
She fixed her melancholy eyes on mine,
And would not be denied.

I saw the west wind loose his cloudlets white,
In flocks, careering through the April sky;
I could not sing, though joy was at its height,
For she stood silent by.

I watched the lovely evening fade away.
A mist was lightly drawn across the stars,
She broke my dream—I heard her say,
"Behold your prison-bars!"

"Earth's gladness shall not satisfy your soul
This beauty of the world in which you live;
The crowning grace that sanctifies the whole.
That I alone can give.

I heard, and shrank away from her afraid;
But still she held me, and would still abide,
Youth's bounding pulses slackened and obeyed
With slowly ebbing tide.

"Look thou beyond the evening sky," she said.
"Beyond the changing splendors of the day;
Accept the pain, the weariness, the dread,
Accept and bid me stay!"

I turned and clasped her close, with sudden strength,
And slowly, sweetly, I became aware
Within my arms God's angel stood, at length,
White-robed, and calm, and fair.

And now I look beyond the evening stay,
Beyond the changing splendors of the day,
Knowing the pain he sends more precious far,
More beautiful than they.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. D

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock. Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

This evening, Miss Annie Graham and Geo. D. Chaplin engaged for the season at this theatre, will make their first appearance in Bulwer's comedy of "Money." Walter Leman, Owen Marlowe, E. J. Buckley, J. C. Williamson, W. A. Mestayer, Mrs. C. B. Saunders and others in the cast, making it a very strong one. To-morrow evening, the latest sensation drama founded on a Ledger story entitled "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter; or, Life's Shadows" will be presented. "Richard III" will shortly be produced after months of careful preparation, and a lavish expenditure of money.

Italian Grand - Opera—Metropolitan Theatre.

"Il Trovatore" was presented in good style on Saturday night with Signor Bianchi in the role of Manrico; Signor Pietro Baccei being too unwell to appear. To-night, the third subscription night of the season, "Un Ballo in Maschera" will be presented with Signorina Speranza as Amelia, Miss Anela McKenzie as Oscar, Signora Bianchi as Ulrica, Signor Pietro Baccei as Ricardo, Signor Sylvea Rees as Renato, Signor Folvio Rigo as Sam, Signor Roocovieri as Tom, Mons. Obarlee as Sylvano, Mr. Braun as Judge, and M. Geinde as servant to Amelia. This opera is a great favorite with the San Francisco public and will doubtless draw a large and fashionable house.

Alhambra.

A new programme will be presented this evening for the amusement of the numerous patrons of this house. The first part will conclude with a new finale by Bob Hart entitled "Goldsmith Maid and Lucy vs. Occident;" Delehanty and Hengler will appear in their new song and dance, "Lily of the Valley," and other specialties; the wonderful violinist, Child Americus, Master James Speight, aged five years, will make his first appearance at this house; Bob Hart, I McAndrews, Charles Sutton and others will appear in lively acts and the performance will conclude with "Hart's Academy of Learning." On Friday evening the popular song and dance men, Delehanty and Hengler, will take their farewell benefit. Farron and Baker, Dutch and Irish character artists are announced to appear on Monday, the 21st, in conjunction with Miss Lillie Hall, serio-comic vocalist and actress.

California Theatre.

This theatre presented an extraordinary spectacle last night when the "Barber of Seville" was sung in German, by the Fabbri Opera Troupe. From the parquette to the gallery there was a dense mass of human beings seemingly packed too tightly to breathe. The opera was quite a success and Jacob Muller made an immense hit in the role of Figaro, which he sang and acted in splendid style. Miss Anna Alzer made a charming Rosina, and the opera was well performed throughout. Thursday night will be the next opera night when "The Barber of Seville" will probably be performed again.

Bella Union.

A capital bill was presented at this house on Saturday night and again last night, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience present on each occasion. Johnny Tuers' new sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California" is a decided hit, as the screams of laughter with which it was received proved. "Jemmy Twitcher" was very well performed by R. G. Marsh, J. H. Larkin, Will Bark, Lon McCartby, H. Sinclair, Minnie Fillmore, and others.

The Athenaeum.

There was an immense house on Saturday night and again last night. The new artists who made their appearance on these occasions: Miss Agnes Kennedy, character vocalist, and Miss May Leslie, the accomplished balladist, were well received, and will strengthen the company. There will be new features in the programme to-night.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

In order to afford time for the completion of the fitting up of Horticultural Hall for this great combination of shows the opening night has been postponed until Tuesday.

The Hazard Combination Dramatic Company.

Frank Hussey, the well-known minstrel; James J. Bartlett and Miss Blanche Clifton, and Walter H. Cooper, who are travelling under the above title, arrived in this city from Australia on the Idaho yesterday. Mr. Cooper has made a success with sensation dramas in Australia, and is on his way East to produce them there with the above-named artists as the nucleus of a company. The names of the most popular pieces are "Hazard," "Foiled," and "Sun and Shadow." The troupe may, perhaps, find an opening in San Francisco before proceeding to New York.

Woodward's Garden.

There was an immense attendance at this beautiful garden yesterday, and the performance in the Pavilion, comprising an instrumental concert by Wetterman's Band, a pantomime on skates, a cornet solo by Miss Lotta McCarty, a laughable sketch by Harry Howard and T. Rees, and other entertainments, went off capitally. Among the latest additions to the menagerie are five pairs of prairie dogs from Cheyenne.

The Epicures of San Francisco.

There are as many epicures in San Francisco as in any city of equal size in the United States. These find at the Pioneer Restaurant on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley; turtle soup, grouse, halibut, teal duck, trout and every imaginable bonne bouche prepared by an artistic chef. Henry Bocken the proprietor, has catered for Californians since 1849.

Tamberlik.

Tamberlik, the tenor, has arrived in New York, with his opera company en route to Havana, where he will remain till February, and afterward he will visit the United States under the management of Mr. D. de Vivo, formerly manager of the Parepa-Rosa and Wachtel opera troupes. The Tamberlik opera troupe comprises the following eminent artists, Soprani, Mme. Blume, M'lle Ballein; Contralti, Mme. Natali-Testa, and M'lle Braccioni, Tenori, Enrico Tamberlik, Ronconi, and Testa; Baritoni, Pa-

SORROW.

Upon my lips she laid her touch divine,
And merry speech and careless laughter died
She fixed her melancholy eyes on mine,
And would not be denied.

I saw the west wind loose his cloudlets while,
In flocks, careering through the April sky:
I could not sing, though joy was at its height,
For she stood silent by.

I watched the lovely evening fade away.
A mist was lightly drawn across the stars,
She broke my dream—I heard her say,
"Behold your prison-bars!"

"Earth's gladness shall not satisfy your soul
This beauty of the world in which you live;
The crowning grace that sanctifies the whole.
That I alone can give.

I heard, and shrank away from her afraid;
But still she held me, and would still abide.
Youth's bounding pulses slackened and obeyed
With slowly ebbing tide.

"Look thou beyond the evening sky," she said.
"Beyond the changing splendors of the day;
Accept the pain, the weariness, the dread,
Accept and bid me stay!"

I turned and clasped her close, with sudden strength,
And slowly, sweetly, I became aware
Within my arms God's angel stood, at length,
White-robed, and calm, and fair.

And now I look beyond the evening star,
Beyond the changing splendors of the day,
Knowing the pain he sends more precious far,
More beautiful than they.

Not that Kind of a Nose.

The Dayton News is responsible for the following;

Even in political matters it is best to be sure of a man you talk to, as the following shows:

A gentleman of this city dropped into a reading room of a hotel recently and while sitting there a conversation upon politics grew up between himself and a stranger who was stopping at the hotel. Now, our Dayton friend, we should explain, is blessed with a nose of exceedingly roseate hue. The stranger soon began a tirade of abuse against the administration; he denounced President Grant as both a knave and a fool and asserted that our whole government was a very cesspool of corruption.

Our friend of the rubicund nasal organ heard him through, then rising from his chair he astonished the stranger by laying his finger upon his fiery nose and remarking, "See here stranger, I'm not a Democrat; that's a boil!"

Miss Agnes Ethel has made a hit in Sardou's new play, "Agnes," at the Union Square Theatre, and the piece has been enthusiastically received. Miss Agnes Ethel's engagement is for one hundred nights.

An editor once said: "We have received a basket of strawberries from Mr. Smith, for which he will receive our compliments some of which are four inches in circumference."

The Fair Verdict,

Rendered lately by the jury and the public at large, is confirmed that the finest selection of the Fall Millinery Fashions can be found at Mme. E. Shloss', 406 Kearny street, and as she buys her goods for cash, is thereby able to undersell all others. e

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's new invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No 18 Sansome street; or, at Mons. THE GREAT REMEDY
... FOR ...
KIDNEY DISEASES
AND CURE FOR!
FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

What a Pity!

A recent English writer says that no new oaths have been invented in that country for a long time. "People," he says, "continue to swear in a mechanical way, but profanity has lost the vivacity and freshness which once distinguished it."

England had better, under these circumstances, send her sons to finish their education in California. The language of this State is rich in profanity.

Amusements in Sacramento.

The Bee says Mrs. Proctor will take her excellent company to Vallejo on Monday next, where on that and the three following nights, during the County Fair then to be held there, she will play to the benighted people of the vicinity. Some new attraction is intended to be offered here first, perhaps, on the night of the 12th, the great race day. An effort is being made to induce the great minstrels now at San Francisco to come up.

"Hear the Crier!"

As the worthy town-crier of Nantucket was was going his rounds the afternoon, when in front of one of the boarding houses, he overheard a young man request one of the lady boarders, who was seated under an open window, to ask him where his bell came from. The crier rang out and gave notice what was to be sold by auction, when the lady in a squeaky voice, said: "Mister, where did your bell come from?" "My bell," retorted the crier, in no gentle voice, "came from the same place your manners did—from a brass foundry!" The young lady asked no further questions.

A Lyric Club.

The Atheneum says that a lyric club, for artists and amateurs, is now forming in London, under very distinguished auspices, with a very high subscription to maintain its exclusive character, and among the artists who have already signified their intention of joining the club are Mme. Adeline Patti, Mme. Pauline Lucca, Mme. Alboni, Mlle. Titjen, Nilsson Rouzaud, Prince Roniatowski, Sir Julius Benedict, A. Sullivan and others.

Industrious Artists.

Meissonoier, several of whose finest works are in possession of connoisseurs in this country, is a prolific artist, having since 1840 painted three hundred and nineteen pictures. Rose Bonheur is said to have finished since 1848 seventy-one paintings. The whole number of William Kaulbach's works, including the immense wall paintings at the new museum in Berlin, are eighty-seven.

A countryman saw a skeleton of a donkey in a local museum. "How odd we look without flesh," he said.

Which is the best way to retain a lady's affections? Not to return them!

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beere & Maynerd, 338 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. o

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

The Lotus Club.

The New York correspondent of the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette has the following concerning the Lotus Club, which is to New York what the Bohemian Club is to San Francisco:

It is the fashion among the clubs to sneer at the Lotus. This young organization is looked upon as little better than a rude gathering of wild Bohemians. The very things that the lotus-eaters delight in amaze and disgust all the old fles of the clubs. A club, in the estimation of these gentlemen, should have all the privacy and seclusion of a gentleman's own house. It is a place where one may retire to and be exclusive, if he pleases; or where he may indulge in the society of a few choice spirits, if he likes; where he may dine to perfection, and as silent as a sphynx, if he elects; where he may plunge into books and journals, and no man disturbs him. But a club which is perpetually in some sort of excitement; which invites to its parlors every stranger of note, and gets hilarious over the occasion; which is always busy at receptions and organizing festivity—such a club fills the mind of the old-fashioned club-men with horror and amazement. And yet, why should they not permit and sanction a difference of this character? There may be clubs and clubs! If the Lotus marks out an individual and special course of its own, why should all the other clubs sneer and depreciate it? In truth, the Lotus, by its special function, is doing the town a good service, while your stiff old clubs never did any good beyond gratifying the selfish pleasures of their members. The Lotus acts as our representative host; the author, the artist, the actor, the journalist, the men of genius coming to our shores, who otherwise might be neglected, is at once ushered into the notice, friendship and companionship of our journalists and litterateurs by means of this club. I, for one, felt the useful and graceful service it is rendering, when present, recently, at the Edmund Yates' reception. Mr. Yates, himself, felt it gratefully. There is no organization, he said, performing such a duty in London; no organization at all comparable to it for bringing together in friendly conjunction the authors, artists and newspaper men of the metropolis. In a neat little speech toward the close of the evening, in reply to a toast by John Brougham, Mr. Yates said: "When, the other day, I saw John Brougham coming toward my hotel, I thanked heaven that I had at least one friend in America; but John Brougham is now displaced—instead of one friend, I have suddenly found a hundred." So the old clubs may sneer in their selfish exclusiveness; the Lotus, bright and hospitable, and upon pleasure bent, throws open its doors to many comers, and teaches our guests how to know us quickly and know us pleasantly. For the honor of our city, we hope the Lotos will flourish for many a generation to come.

Emersonian.

Ralph Waldo Emerson having propounded in his Amherst College commencement address the startling question: "May not the time come when the poetry of Homer and Milton will seem like the sound of a tin pan?" The Philadelphia Inquirer retorts: "Not in our day and generation we opine. And when it does, may not the utterances of Emerson strike the ear as do the rattling of frozen turnips or potatoes in the bottom of a violently agitated bushel measure?"

He Objects.

William, who is an undersized clerk in a dry goods store, objects to being referred to as "that little dry goods Bill."

No. 305 Sansome Street,

San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's [g]enuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge: [illegible] of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural [illegible] and [illegible] Davis et [illegible] Market st. [illegible] Co. [illegible]

Most Demoralizing.

McCracken Bungletoe in his writings in the Sunday issue of the Call is not always as urgent in inculcating morality as we could wish; there is a laxness of moral principle about him when he writes for Sunday's Call, which pains and perplexes one, knowing as we do that he is a very Draco in condemning the guilty, and a Plato in his love of virtue. "Orion," another contributor to the Call ought to be scalped, and after that operation have a blister of cantharides applied to his head. He is awful. In Sunday's Call he tells how the beautiful daughter of a wealthy merchant 'in this puritanical city of San Francisco, mark you—ran away from her father, cut her hair short, put on—p-ha! we can't write it—and went to live with a common burglar, a miserable, clumsy, inexperienced, San Francisco burglar, who was not one whit above a sneak thief in the social scale of criminal society. He horrifies his readers by telling them how the burglar got cut in the stomach with a bowie knife while practising his profession; how the aristocratic young lady nursed him; how they were married; how the father died just when they wanted him to, and left them all his money, and how they lived happily ever afterwards and were "a most affectionate couple." This is shocking. If there were really artistic burglars in San Francisco—men who understood their profession—it would not be so bad to try to induce nice girls to fall in love with them and cut their hair short and cling to them; but as it is, the moral of this story is detestable, and Brother Pickering ought to be censured by Deacon Fitch for allowing it to be published. We hate low, vulgar immorality and bungling burglars.

Lamentable Mental Aberation.

Melinda Muffington, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of our old and esteemed friend Mrs. Charles Augustus Muffington whose sayings we have often published ed FIGARO as well as many of her husband's, is insane. Politics is the cause. Melinda loves James William Scruppins and (strange taste!) longs to become Mrs. Scruppins. Scruppins is deep in politics, he is Secretary of a Grant and Wilson Club and he writes letters signed "A true Republican" and gets them into the papers. If Grant and Wilson be elected Scruppins is sure to get something. He has told Melinde this and the poor girl has plunged into the pool of politics; she talks Grant and horse and Wilson and self-made men. She says "It was so sweet of Wilson to call himself 'the child of Poverty'" and she loves him. The poor girl's head is turned. Everything is mixed. In proof of this we adduce the fact that only yesterday she asked Muffington to buy her a "Grant and Wilson sewing machine."

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beers & Maynard, 338 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Art in San Francisco.

We are glad to see a taste for art developing itself in San Francisco. Mr. Kahman, of the Laurel Palace Saloon, has been in a measure a missionary in the cause of art, by giving a commission to A. Buzzi, the artist, to fresco the walls and ceiling of that establishment in the highest style of art. There are many rich men in San Francisco who take a pride in the houses they have built; some of these wealthy men have taste as well as money, and to these the presence in this city of such an artist as Sig. Buzzi is a source of pleasure, as they can have their houses decorated as beautifully as those of the aristocracy of Europe. Sig. Buzzi is a Swiss-Italian artist, a graduate of the Academy of Art, in Milan, and is one of the very few men in the United States who can claim to be masters of the art of fresco painting. Our rich men of San Francisco who erect costly residences, or who have already built such, should not be content with whitewashed, papered or distempered walls when they have an opportunity of having their houses turned into palaces of art. We hope this subject will receive more attention than it has hitherto. Sig. Buzzi's latest work has been the frescoing of the walls and ceiling of the California Theatre, which he has accomplished with much taste and skill, though the time allowed him for the work was extremely limited. Fresco painting, while it is one of the oldest arts, having been practiced thousands of years ago in Egypt and other countries of antiquity, has been degraded by a host of journeyman sign-painters who lacked a knowledge of its first principles. The Academy of Art of Milan has done much to restore it to its due place in the fine arts, and of that Academy Sig Buzzi is a talented pupil. His San Francisco residence is 1434 Stockton street, between Green and Vallejo.

A Lot He Knows About It!

A contemporary says:

Bridal tours are said to be going out of fashion. We are glad to hear it. for the custom is a particularly senseless one.

That man has never been married, or he would not talk in that way. A senseless custom, is it? The idiot! When a man marries a girl he wants to have her all to himself. He wishes to take her away from all her friends and relations, that she may think of him alone. He doesn't want a lot of her acquaintances to come in while he is spooning and making eyes at her. A bridal tour is a thoroughly sensible arrangement. Honeymoons are delightful. During the first days of married life, fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters and friends are intolerable. Any man who can afford it, who does not take a bridal tour, is guilty of an outrage on good taste. Some of the customs of society are indeed senseless, but the bridal tour is not one of these. If we couldn't afford to go to Yosemite for a bridal tour, we would go somewhere. We would go to Oakland. Hanged if we wouldn't go to San Jose rather than stay in San Francisco. What a pity it is editors will talk about matters in which they have no experience.

Carpets are bought by the yard and worn out by the foot.

Professor Alexander Wulnwski,

The renowned pianist, gave a grand musical soiree at Mr. Badger's Piano Rooms, on Sansome street, which was attended by the elite of society. The entertainment was a great success. The Professor executed several gems of his own production in the most artistic manner, and was most enthusiastically received. He has the reputation of being a most proficient teacher of the pianoforte. We wish him every success in this, his new field of enterprise, where talent always commands success. B it

CAUTION TO MANAGERS AND OTHERS ENGAGING MUSICIANS!

WM. RUDDIKER, MY LEADER, LEFT MY Theatre last night without giving notice, during the performance, my place being full of people and the performance going on, depending in part upon his services. He had no reason for this unprofessional conduct, as his engagement was steady and his salary paid up to date. Other Managers will do well to bear this fact in mind.

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their COBBLERS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Bulwer's comedy of "Money" was presented last night, and Miss Annie Graham and George D. Chaplin, engaged to fill leading roles during the season, made their first appearance in the respective roles of Clara Douglass and Alfred Evelyn. Miss Graham is a graceful and stylish actress of great personal attractions, has a fine, expressive face and beautiful eyes, which she uses with good effect. In the first act she was a little too stylish in dress and in manner for the dependent Clara Douglass. The Call comments on "a certain amount of slovenliness in her dress!" To the male eye unpractised in analyzing the mysteries of feminine toilette, the effect of slovenliness might perhaps be produced by costly lace trimming worth hundreds of dollars; the ladies knew that Miss Graham had over-dressed her part. Mr. Chaplin has a fine stage presence, reads well, but did not appear to the best advantage in the role of Alfred Evelyn. Both the new artistes were called before the curtain at the end of the act. J. O. Williamson in his make-up for Grave, made him a sort of Chadband, and though not carrying out the idea of the playwright, caused much amusement. To-night, a new sensation drama founded on a New York Ledger story, and entitled "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter; or Old Life's Shadows," will be produced with Geo. D. Chaplin as Lord Thornhurst; Miss Annie Graham as Mrs. Captain Holm and Lady Thornhurst, and the other characters cast to the full strength of the company. From the synopsis, we should judge it would suit the popular taste exactly, and draw a much larger audience than "Money."

Italian Grand Opera—Metropolitan Theatre.

The opera of "Un Ballo en Maschera," always a popular one with the San Francisco public, was performed in excellent style last night. Signorina Speranza sang and acted the role of Amelia splendidly; that of Riccardo was filled to perfection by Signor Pietro Bacci; Miss Anna McKenzie as Oscar was very good, and Signora Bianchi excellent in the character of Ulrica. The choruses were finely sung and the orchestra, under the able direction of George T. Evans, was very good. "Norma" and "Lucia di Lammermoor" are announced as in preparation. To-morrow night "Un Ballo in Maschera" will be repeated.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

The great combination, under the management of Yankee Robinson, the famous showman, will open at the Circus Temple, on Stockton street near Post, (formerly Horticultural Hall) this evening. Among the many features of the performance to-night will be the first appearance in California of the renowned Madame Senyeah, the "Oretea Beauty," spoken of as a gymnast of extraordinary skill, the wonderful feats of Samwells' great school of trained animals, and the first appearance in this State of Pete Conkling, who is spoken of by our Eastern exchanges as one of the best clowns who ever cracked a joke in the ring. The building is admirably adapted for a circus performance, and with its thousands of flashing lights and tasteful decorations, will present a most brilliant appearance.

Alhambra.

The new finale of "Goldsmith Maid and Lucy vs. Occident" is a popular feature in the performance at this house and was received last night with much laughter and applause. The Child American performed on the violin and was pronounced a phenomenon of musical genius by all who heard him. Delehanty and Hengler's new songs and dances went off well, and Hart's laughable sketch, "The Academy of Learning" wound up the evening's entertainment in good style.

Bella Union.

Johnny Tuers' new sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California" has made quite a hit, and in conjunction with the pretty ballet of "Faust and Marguerite:" the exciting drama of "Jemmy Twitcher" and a melange of songs, acts and dances, affords those visiting this house much amusement. To-night an extraordinary attraction will be offered in the first appearance of Delhi, the African Fire King, who will exhibit his wonderful powers with his fire grate and bars on the stage. A description of his feats is given in the programme on our first page.

The Athenæum.

There is always something new at this house. Miss Agnes Kennedy and Miss May Leslie are thorough artists; in their respective lines. Lou Dixon, a very popular comedian, made his first appearance last night, and was quite a success.

Lecture on Mexico.

This evening Dr. J. Hampden Porter, member of the Academy of Sciences of Philadelphia, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and of the Ethnological Society and College of Surgeons and Physicians of New York, will deliver a lecture on Mexico, Past, and Present," at the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association. We do not take as much interest as we should in our sister republic. Dr. Porter's lecture will, doubtless, do much towards exciting such interest in a country whose future will certainly be a wonderful one.

Woodward's Garden.

The aquarium is fast approaching completion, many additions have been made to the menagerie and the attractions are numerous. On Saturday there will be a grand masquerade skating carnival, at which gold and silver medals will be distributed as prizes. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon Delhi, the Great African Fire King, will appear in his wonderful performance.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.

This highly successful troupe will present the opera of "Ernani" on Thursday evening at the California Theatre.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

He Objects.

William, who is an undersized clerk in a dry goods store, objects to being referred to as "that little dry goods Bill."

Better than Hanging Them.

The Japanese utilize their condemned. Two Yeddo thieves, sentenced to death, were recently turned over to a target company.

Rough on the Doctor.

Dr. —— went out quail shooting the day before yesterday. He returned yesterday with his game bag empty, his clothes covered with dust, his face scorched with the sun, and altogether in a most dishevelled and disheartened condition. Muffington met him on the wharf and said: "Ah, doctor what have you brought back?"

"Absolutely nothing."

"You astonish me."

"I have killed nothing all day."

"Ah, ah," said Muffington, that will teach you not to go shooting and neglect your patients."

"Hear the Crier!"

As the worthy town-crier of Nantucket was was going his rounds the afternoon, when in front of one of the boarding houses, he overheard a young man request one of the lady boarders, who was seated under an open window, to ask him where his bell came from. The crier rang out and gave notice what was to be sold by auction, when the lady in a squeaky voice, said: "Mister, where did your bell come from?" "My bell," retorted the crier, in no gentle voice, "came from the same place your manners did—from a brass foundry!" The young lady asked no further questions.

Amusements in Sacramento.

The Bee says Mrs. Proctor will take her excellent company to Vallejo on Monday next, where on that and the three following nights, during the County Fair then to be held there, she will play to the benighted people of the vicinity. Some new attraction is intended to be offered here first, perhaps, on the night of the 12th, the great race day. An effort is being made to induce the great minstrels now at San Francisco to come up.

A Lyric Club.

The Athenæum says that a lyric club, for artists and amateurs, is now forming in London, under very distinguished auspices, with a very high subscription to maintain its exclusive character, and among the artists who have already signified their intention of joining the club are Mme. Adelina Patti, Mme. Pauline Lucca, Mme. Alboni, Mlle. Tiejen, Nilsson Rouzaud, Prince Poniatowski, Sir Julius Benedict, A. Sullivan and others.

What a Pity!

A recent English writer says that no new oaths have been invented in that country for a long time. "People," he says, "continue to swear in a mechanical way, but profanity has lost the vivacity and freshness which once distinguished it."

England had better, under these circumstances, send her sons to finish their education in California. The language of this State is rich in profanity.

Miss Agnes Ethel has made a hit in Sardou's new play, "Agnes," at the Union Square Theatre, and the piece has been enthusiastically received. Miss Agnes Ethel's engagement is for one hundred nights.

If you want Jewelry repaired in the best style, and your watches and clocks fixed at the lowest Eastern prices, take them to the Repairing Shop, 648½ Market street. H

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

THE GREAT REMEDY

....FOR...

KIDNEY DISEASES

(AND CURE FOR)

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Ext[illegible] severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience [illegible] wisdom:

PIANOFORTE and SINGING.

MONS. ALEXANDER WOLOWSKI, THE well known Pianist and Vocalist, has the honor to inform his friends and the public of San Francisco that he opens courses for Piano and Singing, by his entirely new and simplified system, the shortest in existence—reading Music at sight, accompaniments of any song by a new march of harmony, as well as the most thorough knowledge of time, by Mons. Wolowski's new invention, which has created a great sensation in the musical world. Ladies and gentlemen desirous to become fine singers or excellent performers can leave their orders at the Piano Warerooms of WM. BADGER, No. 13 Sansome street; or, at Mons. W.'s residence, No. 422 Sutter street. jy31-1w

Good News for Spiritualists.

Telegraphic news is proverbially unreliable, and the old joke about tell-lie-graphic dispatches has been printed again and again. While those telegrams sent from one place to another on this sphere have been often incorrect and puzzling, those purporting to come from another and higher sphere to this sublunary one have been especially so. FIGARO is glad to receive the intelligence through his own special medium (awfully nice girl and truth itself), that Professor Morse, since his advent in the sphere immediately in contact with this, has been devoting all his energies to perfecting the means of communication between the two. A cable is of course out of the question in this case, but a magnetic medium exists through which messages may be and are sent. The manner of sending these spiritualistic dispatches has hitherto been most unscientific. Professor Morse will change all this. He has under tuition a number of spirits who were in the body telegraph operators, and soon we may expect to hear that the very clumsy method of spelling out messages by use of the Roman letters of the alphabet will be superceded by the regular telegraphic system. Spiritual telegraphic offices will be established all over world, and we may read in the morning papers the latest news from the next world as well as the daily occurrences in all portions of this. Professor Morse expects very shortly to have his arrangements consummated, when further particulars will be given in FIGARO, which has the exclusive right of circulation in the spirit spheres, as well as in the California Theatre, Metropolitan Theatre, Alhambra, and all places of amusement in San Francisco.

The Difference.

Dexter Smith's paper says:

McKee Rankin (Kitty Blanchard's husband) tried to manage a theatre at St. Louis. The sheriff played the principal part and the curtain fell—as did the creditors' hopes.

The St. Louis sheriff must have been much smarter than ours. An attachment sued out against an impecunious or swindling manager here, has never proved to be worth the paper it was written on as yet.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and than. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Chiarini's Circus.

This model circus continues to attract large crowds. Everything connected with this exhibition is bright and new, and the costumes are brilliant. A portion of the latter is of California manufacture. Those very pretty spangled shoes in which Miss Gracie steps so deftly on the tight rope are made by Beers & Maynard, 838 Kearny street, who do quite a large business with theatrical people. U

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there [illegible] he'll [illegible]

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 649 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

No. 305 Sansome Street,

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock. Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES'
PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Once see what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.
Remember, too, not this famed place to pass;

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The play of "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter," produced last night at this theatre, proved quite a success. The story may be briefly told: Ignatia, daughter of Col. Redruth, marries Capt. Digby Holm, who is a villain; procures a divorce from him, and afterwards has an interview with him, at the close of which he runs away with her child. She afterwards marries Lord Thornhurst, concealing from him the fact that her first husband is alive: hence complications, jealousy and suspicion. Capt. Digby Holm is very unscrupulous and causes all the trouble he can, levying blackmail on his former wife whenever he gets an opportunity, by working on her affection for her lost child and her fear of the deception she has practised on Lord Thornhurst being discovered. Miss Annie Graham did some strong acting in the character of Lady Thornhurt looked charmingly handsome and dressed in admirable taste W. A. Mestayer had the best part of the play in Captain Digby Holm and acted it capitally. Geo. D. Chaplin, as a highly moral and conscientious member of the English aristocracy read his part effectively; J. C. Williamson, as Sir Thomas Todbatly, a disreputable member of the same class, did some amusing character acting. Miss Minnie Walton played the part which gives the title to the play, but had little to do, but came in and look sweetly interesting in the last act, which she did naturally. Mr. C. R. Saunders enlivened the piece with some very funny acting as Granny Riggs, and the other characters were all were well played. "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter" will be performed again this evening. To-morrow evening the Fehbri Opera Troupe will present "Ernani."

Alhambra.

There will be a slight change in the programme to-night—the screaming act of "Hemmed In" being substituted for "Jinks and Jane." The wonderful Child American astonishes and delights the audience with his remarkable performances on the violin. W. F. Baker and J. G. Russell sing duets in excellent style, and Delehanty and Hengler, who, by the by, will take their farewell benefit on Friday evening, are great favorites.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

The Horticultural Hall on Stockton Street near Post, now turned into the Circus Temple, presented a brilliant appearance last night, lighted with thousands of variegated lamps and every seat filled. In fact there were hardly seats enough to accommodate the crowd. To-night two hundred additional chairs will be placed in the dollar portion of the house. The performance was a very lively and entertaining one. The graceful acts of the symmetrical Madame Sanyeah were rewarded by loud applause. Pete Conklin is a most original clown and his fun is so hearty and unforced that the audience cannot fail to enjoy it. His imitations of Bowery actors were very good, and his sayings were generally full of point. The Brothers Morsete are most graceful gymnasts, and performed extraordinary feats on the trapeze. The equestrian goat caused considerable amusement, but he was evidently well pleased when he had finished his act; the dogs introduced by Professor Samwells, on the contrary, were all artists who took pride and delight in their profession, and seemed to appreciate the applause of the spectators as much as would any biped. The clown of this company of canine performers is as funny as any clown who walks about on his hind legs. He burlesqued the acts of the other dogs in the most ludicrous and diverting style imaginable; when they jumped over a chair he would creep under it, laugh and run away to his chair; when they would jump through a hoop held in the air he would wait till it was on the ground and then crawl through it, and perform other funny tricks absolutely without any other cue than was afforded by watching the other performers. Yankee Robinson's Circus is original and therefore must please the people of San Francisco. The programmes for to-night appears on our first page.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The box office of this theatre was closed at one o'clock yesterday: E. O. Bert, manager and proprietor, announces, through advertisements in the daily papers, that there will be no performance this week, in consequence of the immense preparations necessary for the production of a grand opera. Due notice will be given of the opening night. We are sure that Mr Bert will do his best to faithfully carry out his obligations to those who have subscribed for the season and his assumption of such obligations will we trust restore confidence.

Bella Union.

A capital performance was given last night by Mr and Mrs Charles Coriell, Mat Kelly, Johnny Tuers, Mlle Therese, Mons Schmidt, J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong and the other popular favorites comprised in the Bella Union company. Delhi the African Fire King did not appear having got into some complication through engaging himself to the management of two places of amusement at the same time.

The Atheneum.

Lon Dixon, Miss Agnes Kennedy, Miss May Leslie and the other recent additions to the strong company at this house are very popular, and the new bill is quite a success. New local sketches are in preparation.

LETTER FROM AUSTRALIA,

MELBOURNE, Aug. 28th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO.—If you receive this communication by way of Sydney I shall consider myself a brave Victorian smuggler. Our Government has intimated through the Government and other organs that no mails will be transmitted through our Post Office pending further arrangements, therefore I send this by private hand to be posted in the capital of New South Wales.

The principal items of news in our theatrical world has been during the month the opening of the new

Prince of Wales Opera House,

Which event took place on Saturday night last before a most enthusiastic audience, numbering nearly three thousand people. The house, which has been built at the sole expense of that well-known American speculator, Mr. Henry Hoyt, is one of the prettiest yet built in Australia and many of the ideas, both before and behind the curtain which have materially added to the comfort of the public and the company, are to be attributed to the matured professional knowledge of the directress, Mrs. Mary Gladstane, and the lessee, Mr. L. M. Bayless. The initial performance was Boucicault's comedy of "London Assurance," which was well presented by the company consisting of Mesdames Gladstane, Alfred Phillips, Dolly Greene, and Patty Holt. Messrs James Carden, T. S. Bellair, Lachlan McGowan, Tom Lewis, Sam Poole, James Milne. N. M. Humphries and Needham. The opening was one of the most enthusiastic ever seen in Melbourne and the fair directress received, as is justly due to her undoubted talents such a reception as can only be given by a Melbourne audience to a deserved favorite. The audience fairly rose to her and the plaudits rang through the house for several minutes. As Lady Gay Spanker she was the life and soul of the play, and her spirited acting was catching with those who supported her. The theatre is built on the side of the old Varieties in Bourke street immediately opposite the Theatre Royal.

The Theatre Royal.

Is now open for a dramatic season under the lesseeship of Messrs. Henry Holmes and Stewart O'Brien. They commenced their season with a new play by Mr. Marcus Clarke entitled "Plot," an adaptation of the late Alex. Dumas' "Three Guardsmen." It was finely put on the stage and splendidly acted by Miss Eloise Juno, Miss Polly Leak, Mrs. Henry Holmes, Miss Isabella Sutherland, Mrs. Charles Jones, and Miss Nellie Montague, Messrs. Stuart O'Brien, R. Roberts, W. Andrews, H. Daniels, J. Martin, and Tom Forde. This week "The Hut of the Red Mountains," "East Lynn," and "Masks and Faces" are to be presented in succession and on Saturday "The Octoroon" is to be revived, in which Mr. Richard Stewart and Miss Maggie Stewart are announced to appear.

The New Theatre Royal

Is fast approaching completion, the roof being now near finished. It is not likely to be opened before November next. Mr. Harwood, the senior member of the firm is now in England engaging talent for the new season, and it is generally expected that arrangements will be made with Mr. Barry Sullivan to arrive in time to open the building. Lady Don also, who is now on her way hither by the steamship, Northumberland, will also be engaged for the opening.

St. George's Hall

Is now occupied by Mr. E. C. Moore, one of the pluckiest showmen we have in this town, with a company of gymnasts and singers. the like of which for talent we have never had in this town. The company consists of Lottie, one of the prettiest and most fearless female performers on the trapeze ever seen here, her brothers Frank and Victor, Fanny Sara and Messrs. Charles Holly and Buckley, negro delineators, the agent, Mr. Henry Millman, is one of the most experienced in Milbourne, and Mr. Moore may be congratulated in having obtained his services. The business has been excellent throughout the season, crowded houses being the rule, not the exception.

St. James's Hall,

Under the lesseeship of Mr. Fred Zeplin, is doing a very good business. The main attraction is the trapeze, single and double, by M'lle Zuile (who is indeed very clever), and the comicalities of Mr. Johnny Cowan, who lately returned from Sydney. Messrs. Alf. McFarren and Campbell are amongst the company.

The Opera Comique,

Or Lower St. George's Hall, has been opened by a Mr. Smith from Ballarat. It is beautifully furnished and decorated, but has not been a success. Want of proper management is the cause of its decline and failure.

The Colloseum

Is still open, but under the strict supervision of the authorities has at last been forced into respectability, much against the inclination of the proprietor, who does not feel happy under the new and forced regime. The company is a very inferior one and hardly merits recognition.

The Agatha States Troupe,

Consisting of Madame States, Lucy Chambers, Signors Orlendi, Susini, Giorga and Edward Farley, have been performing Opera di Camera at the Orderly Room, Theatre Royal, Sandhurst, to very good business. They open to-night at the Theatre Royal, Castlemain, for a series of three performances.

The Polytechnic Theatre

Is now generally recognized as the minor theatre in Melbourne. Blood and thunder pieces are in the ascendant and the performances fairly rival the old Victoria in London and the Bowery in New York. Messrs. G. W. Collier, H. N. Douglas, R. D. Marsh, Miss Lizzie Rush and Miss Nelm are the principals in the company.

The Leopold Combination,

Consisting of Fraulein Feurle, Mrs. Florence Calyado, Messrs. George and Henry Leopold, Master Albert and Miss Blanche, are doing the Western district. Last week they performed to middling business at Geelong and are now at Colac.

Ballarat.

At the Mechanic's Institute a new panorama brought from England by Mr. E. L. Moore, entitled "Paris in Flames," has been the attraction, with the characteristic songs by Mr. Fred Clifton, makes a most agreeable entertainment.

New South Wales.

The dramatic season in Sydney is now closed. No theatre is open and no company is available. The Victoria has been doing a little business lately under Mr. J. J. Welsh, but the company was so queer they had to cave in. Lyster and Cagli's Opera Troupe is to take possession of the boards for a season prior to a long tour through New Zealand. The School of Arts is being nightly crowded to witness the performances of Enderby Jackson's company.

Adelaide, South Australia.

A new dramatic season opened at the Theatre Royal, under the management of Mr. Samuel Lazar, with Messrs. John Dunn and J. R. Greville as stage and acting managers The company consists of the principal members of the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, the troupe includes Misses Hattie Sheppard, Elenor Carey, Jenny Bryce and Alice Woodridge. Messrs. G. R. Ireland, Appleton, Sefson, Dunn and Greville. "School" was presented to a crowded house on the opening night, and was succeeded by "The Palace of Truth." At White's Rooms, Mme. Cora di Lamond, the female magician, has been giving her performances, Business tolerably good. The Carandinis, with Mr. Walter Sheridan, are located at the Town Hall, and are well satisfied with their tour in that colony.

New Zealand.

The Princess Theatre, Dunedin, was at latest dates still under the regime of Messrs. Geddes and Willis. Sensation drama was the staple attraction, supported by a very good company, including Messrs. O'Brien, J. P. Hydes, Mrs. Florence Anstead, Willis and Montagne. A second theatre or variety show, under the lesseeship of Messrs. Booth, Glover & Co., is open with Miss Jennie Reymond as the attraction. At Christchurch, Mr. Morton Tavares and Miss Surtees have have been doing duologue entertainments with very poor success at the Canterbury Music Hall. At the Prince of Wales Theatre, Auckland, Madame Therese and Mons. Schmidt, two most accomplished dancers, have been giving a series of performances to crowded houses. They are en route to San Francisco, where I sincerely hope that their undoubted talents will meet with success. Madame is a most accomplished danseuse and her husband, Schmidt, is, without doubt, the best maitre de ballet we ever had in Australia. Mr. Hoskins and Miss Florence Zelvillo, are at the Thames delighting large audiences.

KIDNEY DISEASES

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 113 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can [illegible] for its efficacy, from personal experience:

A Sweet Idea.

Fashionable society, if we are to credit the Home Journal, has just adopted a great improvement. Either through excess of insipidity or lack of intelligence, society has now found it necessary for its members to know each other by the sense of smell. Hence the following fragrant paragraph, published in all seriousness:

Ladies and gentleman of the fashionable world always adopt some particular perfume which in time becomes, as it were, a part of their person. The greater the refinement the more delicate this favorite perfume. From a host of new extraits, we select the following as the latest and most refined: Matholla, Meadow Queen, Wild Flowers of India, Crown Bouquet (said to be Queen Victoria's favorite), Hawthorne Bloom and Butterfly Orchis. All of these are entirely new.

How delightful the idea! How convenient for young ladies expecting particular visitors, before opening the door, to put their noses to the keyhole and detect dear Jones or that hated smith by his odor; or for George Augustus, prostrated on his boarding-house sofa by the excessive heat, to leisurely smell the guests as they come down the stairs, thus discriminating accurately between darling Angelina and the gorgon Miss Smith.

"Chawley, are those the Heuton girls in front?"

"Thunder, no; don't you know the Boodle scent?"

"Aw, yaas; Boodle, by Jove!"

Sunday Amusements.

The street Arabs of Russian Hill diverted themselves last Sunday afternoon by stoning a Chinese wash-house and kicking the door in. They have never had a policeman in that benighted district and want one badly. Will the Police Commissioners look to it?

Dogmatisms.

A man has no mental weight in the world until he is thirty; at thirty a woman has seen her best days. Money comes to us on crutches and flies from us on wings. A bitter truth is not relished, but a perfumed lie is sweet to our ears. There is great difference in men intellectually speaking; morally, they are six of one and half dozen of the other; there is a great difference in woman morally; intellectually, they are six of one and half dozen of the other. A woman who has roused the divine passion in the heart of man, and reciprocated fully, can afford to die; a woman who has not, ought to die.

Gushing.

This is how the Oakland News introduces an announcement that a man on Broadway has a second-hand cottage piano for sale cheap:

Music is a divine gift, and once in a while we see one who seems to have stolen from her sisters above the melody which is warbled among the groves of Paradise. It is said that when holy people come to die they catch heavenly harmonies from on high, and before they leave this world have a sweet foretaste of the symphonies which float through the mansions of the blest.

An exchange says:

At Hanley, England, a young man was fined for kissing a married woman.

The woman's husband generously paid the fine. He said he felt a profound compassion for the misguided youth; he knew how it was himself.

Great Oaks from Little Acorns Grow.

Likewise it is marvellous to what extent the most unimportant industries will grow. A toothpick, is a very little thing, yet a toothpick factory in Canton, Maine, furnishes more work than all other business in town. And, again, one manufacturer in Massachusetts devotes himself entirely to making dolls' shoes out of scraps of leather. He turns out 50,000 pairs per annum, and uses 20,000 feet of morocco and sheepskin.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

A Telegraphic Contretempts.

The London correspondent of the Boston Courier says: "Why does not somebody write a book on 'The Secrets of the Telegraph Office?' It would make a most interesting work. Telegraphic clerks, especially ladies, are fond of talking to each other by means of the wire, and I have heard of a courtship being carried on in this fashion between a couple of clerks—of opposite sexes of course—whose offices were some fifty miles apart. But some care should be taken lest the wrong person should be at one end of the wire. The other day a clerk in a provincial town telegraphed to his friend at St. Martin's le Grand to the effect that his sweetheart was in the office, and that she had promised to marry him within a month. Unfortunately the manager was in the room to which the message was sent, and he returned a reply which had the merit of being short, sharp and decisive: "You are fined £1 for allowing a stranger inside the office. Turn the woman out." He did not telegraph again in a hurry to the head office.

Words.

Words derive their power, not from their number, but from the directness and intensity with which they are delivered. Max Muller says:

A well-educated person in England, who has been at the public school and at the University, who reads his Bible, Shakespeare, the London Times, and all of Mudie's library (i. e., nine-twentieths of all the books published in England) seldom uses more than three or four thousand words in actual conversation. Accurate thinkers and close reasoners, who avoid vague and general expressions, and wait till they find the word that exactly fits their meaning, employ a large stock, and eloquent speakers may rise to a command of ten thousand. Milton's works are built up with eight thousand, and the Old Testament says all it has to say with five thousand six hundred and forty-two.

Rough on Joaquin Miller.

The Washington Critic says:

The Napa, Cal., Register, after quoting some stanzas from Joaquin Miller's "Isles of the Amazon," pointedly remarks, "If this kind of jingle is to be accepted in an intelligent community like that of Napa county as poetry, all hands had better sell out and go West." This seems like the basest ingratitude when it is well known that Miller took particular pains to adapt the poem to the intellectual meridian of Napa, and never supposed for a single instant that it ever would be read by any one outside that county."

Good Gracious.

St. Louis would seem to be the paradise of the minstrel comedians. The critic of The Republican thus refers to the gentleman who travels about the country with a melodramatic horror entitled "On Hand:" "Johnny Thompson is growing upon the public. The more he is seen the newer he seems, and the more certain it appears that he is an actor of great versatility and possibilities. He has all the elements of an artiste, and shows artistic feeling in everything he does."

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M, to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES'
PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspepties and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Men—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The play of "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter" drew another good house last night and gave general satisfaction. It is a peculiar play, in that it commences with a divorce. A play ending with a divorce might prove popular; we suggest the idea of writing one to Boucicault. Miss Annie Graham has established herself in the good graces of our public, but George D. Chaplin has not yet appeared to the best advantage. To-night is opera night, and the Fabbri Opera Troupe will present the grand opera of Ernani.

Alhambra.

The new finale to the first part arranged by Bob Hart and entitled "Goldsmith Maid and Lucy vs. Occident" suits the times and is received with much applause. The acts of "The Hotel Runners" in which Bob Hart, L. McAndrews and Charles Sutton appear, and "Hemmed In" by J. Robinson, Miss Fanny Gibson, and Add Ryman are very amusing, and the violin performances of the wonderful Child Americus, calls forth thunders of applause. Delehanty and Hengler will take their farewell benefit to-morrow evening, when many volunteers will appear, and an extra bill will be presented.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

The Circus Temple, on Stockton street, was crowded again last night, and the performance given was of such a lively and varied description that all were well pleased. The cannon ball performance by John Conklin is very good; Sanyeah is a very graceful gymnast and daring equestrienne and Professor Semwells' wonderful troupe of dogs and monkeys are a whole show in themselves.

Bella Union.

The first part, in which Miss Lotta sings sweet ballads, Misses Josephine and Armstrong duets, and Matt Kelly, Johnny Tuers, Tommy Bree and others appear, is very pleasing. A capital interlude of songs, solo and ballet follows, and Johnny Tuers' sketch, entitled "Fair Justice in California," concludes the entertainment.

The Atheneum.

There are constant changes and improvements in the programme at this wide awake place of amusement. To-night Miss Agnes Kennedy will appear in her character changes, and with Miss May Leslie in selections from "Il Trovatore" Lou Dixon in his champion bone solo, and great musical act; Miss Estelle in fancy dances, and a host of others mentioned on our first page will present varied specialties.

Woodward's Garden.

The aquarium is fast approaching completion, many additions have been made to the menagerie and the attractions are numerous. On Saturday there will be a grand masquerade skating carnival, at which gold and silver medals will be distributed as prizes. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon Delhi, the Great African Fire King, will appear in his wonderful performance.

Anatomical Museum.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentleman only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Mourning Widow.

It is said that the following letter was written to a lady in Chicago by a bereaved and stricken widow in Cincinnati:

Dearest Louisa:—Darling John died last night. Congestion of the lungs. Our loss is a gain, I will join him on the other shore. I have ordered the loveliest mohair for the funeral—made with polonaise and trimmed with real point lace. Lose covered by insurance on the ten year plan; will be paid in sixty days. I know you sorrow with me. We had four doctors, at two dollars a visit. Aunt Maria will not go into mourning, because she just bought her Fall and Winter things. Her bonnet is a straw. There is a balm in Gilead; but my heart is nearly broken. Send me a cut paper pattern of that sacque of yours. Yours devoted. SARAH.

The Innocent Abroad Again.

Mark Twain, who has just gone abroad, contemplates writing a third book, it is said, devoting himself this time to the oddities and eccentricities of the English people, among whom he expects to reside for the next twelve months, in order to take their mental photographs.

Poetical.

A rural contemporary remarks: "The yellow pumpkin lies golden on the hillsides in the country." The poetry of that remark induces pie-ous thoughts.

Texas is exporting canned turtle. Mock turtle, may be?

Gen. O'Neill's Canadian breast-plate is for sale reasonably.

A wooden band-box factory is starting at New New Carlisle, Mich.

A Cleveland dealer advertises "Betsey and I are Out" gaiters.

Waverly Lake, Minn., is credited with three floating islands.

Southwestern Kansas is being marked out with hedgerows.

Buffalo robes at Russell, Kansas, are worth from $2 to $3.

Log Pail is the best name a new Michigan town could afford.

A Minnesota town has an Indian reading-room.

A Englishman has invented a thingumy to peel eggs.

A Missouri doctor says coal oil fumes

HUNGERING HEARTS.

Some hearts go hungering through the world
And never find the love they seek;
Some lips with pride or scorn are curled
To hide the pain they may not speak.
The eye may flash, the mouth may smile,
The voice in giddiest mirth may thrill,
And yet beneath them all the while
The hungry heart is pining still.

These know their doom and walk their way,
With level steps and steadfast eyes,
Nor strive with fate, nor weep nor pray—
While others, not so wise,
Are mocked by phantoms evermore,
And lured by seemings of delight,
Fair to the eye, but at the core
Holding but bitter dust and blight.

I see them gaze from wistful eyes,
I mark their sign on fading cheeks,
I hear them breathe in smothered sighs,
And note the grief that never speaks;
For them no might redresses wrong,
No eye with pity is impearled;
Oh, misconstrued and suffering long,
Oh, hearts that hunger through the world!

For you does life's dull desert hold
No fountain's shade, no date grove fair,
No gush of waters clear and cold,
But sandy reaches wide and bare;
The foot may fail, the soul may faint,
And weigh to earth the weary frame,
Yet still ye make no weak complaint,
And speak no word of grief or blame.

Oh, eager eyes which gaze afar!
Oh, arms which the empty air
Not all unmarked your sorrows are,
Not all unpitied your despair,
Smile, patient lips so proudly dumb—
When life's frail tent at last is furled,
Your glorious recompense shall come.
Oh, hearts that hunger through the world.

A Queer Funeral.

The Dominican Monks went through the form of burying Pere Hyacinthe upon the event of his marriage.

It isn't everybody that can have so satisfactory a funeral.

Iowa supports thirteen camp-meetings at once.

Venice has daily use still for 4,000 gondolas.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. B

Special to the Ladies.

Mrs. Schloss begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. F

THE GREAT REMEDY

....FOR ...

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. [illegible] refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who [illegible] for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

FRIDAY.............OCTOBER 11, 1872

A California Custom.

The following paragraph which we find going the rounds of the Eastern press, will explain many recent mysterious disappearances;

Chinese laundrymen in California hurry up slow payments by kidnapping and imprisoning their debtors.

How little we know about the manners and customs of a portion of the inhabitants of San Francisco! We should never have known this one if it had not been brought to the light by the Eastern newspapers. Now something must be done. FIGARO was was going to do something but on second thought has decided to leave the matter to the Chronicle for a Sunday sensation. He just throws out the following hints and the Chronicle can follow the matter up. Under the joss house there are large vaults. May not these vaults be used as prisons for those who do not pay their wash bills? Col. James Calhoun Montgomery has been missing for two weeks: he is to deliver an anti-Coolie speech at the next Greeley meeting but he has disappeared and, perhaps, will not turn up in time. We know he never paid his Chinaman; he omitted doing so on principle. May not the gallant Colonel be languishing like the Prisoner of Chillon in in the noisome dungeon beneath the Joss House. Two columns of the next Sunday's Chronicle might be filled with the names of those who have disappeared during the last month. Let it be done: let a search be made; let us release our white fellow-countrymen from heathen bondage: Aux armes citoyens,

Remorse.

The Grass Valley Union, speaking of the result of the trial of Laura A. Fair, says:

If the defense was a false one, and the jury misled, there is a punishment in remorse more terrible than that of hanging. So that we say that the verdict is correct and the jury should not be denounced.

If this be true, what is the use of trying murderers at all? Let us leave them to "remorse." It is an awful thing, that remorse. Some murderers, however, strange as it may appear, prefer suffering the pangs of remorse to the pains of death.} The pangs of remorse don't seem to hurt them as much as newspaper writers imagine. In spite of remorse,{they have good appetites and grow fat. If the argument of the Union holds good in murder cases, why not apply it generally? Let us leave thieves to remorse, also, and abolish the courts altogether! There may possibly be murderers who get used to remorse, and think that they won't suffer more pangs after killing two men than would follow one murder. If we really wanted to kill a man very much, we might chance the remorse, but while there is a chance of getting hanged we shall refrain from blood-guiltiness. Remorse! Clems!

Dogmatisms.

A man has no mental weight in the world until he is thirty; at thirty a woman has seen her best days. Money comes to us on crutches and flies from us on wings. A bitter truth is not relished, but a perfumed lie is sweet to our ears. There is great difference in men intellectually speaking; morally, they are six of one and half dozen of the other; there is a great difference in women morally; intellectuall, they are six of one and half dozen of the other. A woman who has roused the divine passion in the heart of man, and reciprocated fully, can afford to die; a woman who has not, ought to die.

Poetical.

A rural contemporary remarks: "The yellow pumpkin lies golden on the hillsides in the country." The poetry of that remark induces pie-ous thoughts.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above

A Useful Moral.

The Oakland News says:

On Sunday evening Dr. Stone preached a sermon from the following text:

"Yet, Michael, the Archangel, when contending with the Devil, he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring against him a railing accusation, but said: "The Lord rebuke thee."—Jude, 9th verse.

The mere announcement of such a text is an excellent rebuke to the papers and speakers who cannot tell the difference between argument and abuse.

All disputes should be managed in a gentlemanly manner. We have no doubt, though Jude does not state it, that the Devil was equally polite to Michael, the Archangel. Dr. Stone, we suppose, did not draw the moral that, as Michael was polite to the Devil, it would be as well for clergymen to refrain from abusing him in an outrageous manner.

Good Gracious.

St. Louis would seem to be the paradise of the minstrel comedians. The critic of The Republican thus refers to the gentlemen who travels about the country with a melodramatic horror entitled "On Hand:" "Johnny Thompson is growing upon the public. The more he is seen the newer he seems, and the more certain it appears that he is an actor of great versatility and possibilities. He has all the elements of an artiste, and shows artistic feeling in everything he does."

An Idiotess.

Josephine McCarty, editor of the Truth-Teller, thinks that if the whole truth about women could be known every virtuous man in the world would run howling to the nearest water and drown himself. Josephine McCarty should speak for herself alone. We like to know all the truth there is about a woman, and then regret we can't know more. The whole truth isn't much.

A Warning to the Fire King.

An old colored minister, in a sermon on hell, pictured it as a region of ice and snow, where the damned froze through eternity. When privately asked his purpose in representing Gehenna in this way, he said: "I don't dare to tell them people nothing else. Why, if I were to say that hell was warm, some of them old rheumatics would be wanting to start down there the very first frost!"

The Innocent Abroad Again.

Mark Twain, who has just gone abroad, contemplates writing a third book, it is said, devoting himself this time to the oddities and eccentricities of the English people, among whom he expects to reside for the next twelve months, in order to take their mental photographs.

The Mystery of Omnipresence.

A little girl was puzzling, as little girls will puzzle over thing too big for them and she made up her mind that after all it was not so nice a thing to be omnipresent, for "God could not go anywhere."

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

Rendered lately by the jury and the public at large, is confirmed that the finest selection of the Fall Millinery Fashions can be found at Mme. E. Shloss', 406 Kearny street, and as she buys her goods for cash, is thereby able to undersell all others. G

DECLARED BY THE JUDGES AT A LATE Fair of the American Institute, after a blind-fold trial against Steinway's, Chickering's, and

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.
No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES'"
PLEASURE,"
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, concealing, straight to round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

"Ernani" was presented by the Fabbri Troupe last night in excellent style. The cast was the same as on the former occasion of the performance of the same opera by the same troupe. The dress-circle was crowded to its utmost capacity and the applause was frequent and enthusiastic. To-night "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter" will be performed by the dramatic company. It will be played for to-morrow's matinee and to-morrow for the last times. Sunday evening "Martha," by the Fabbri Troupe. On Monday, the grand production of "Richard III," an long in preparation.

Alhambra.

The performance to-night will be for the benefit of those sterling artistes, Delehanty and Hengler, who leave next week to join Maguire and Emerson's Minstrels in New York. On this occasion these talented song and dance men will present the original act of "The Happy Hottentots" and a very varied and entertaining performance will be given, including violin solos by the Child American; duets by Baker and Russell, and funny acts by Bob Hart, Add Ryman, Charley Sutton and others. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

The entertainment given by the great combination of troupes in the Circus Temple on Stockton street suits the taste of the public exactly as is proved by the crowds which nightly attend. There never was a more beautifully fitted up hippodrome and the entertainment is rich and varied. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow.

Bella Union.

The ballet of "Faust and Marguerite" in which M'lle Therese, Mons. Schmidt and others appear, is very popular. J. H. Larkin and Miss Carrie Armstrong, are very popular in their original Dutch acts; Miss Jenny Johnson equally so in her serio-comic songs, and Johnny Tuers' laughable sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California," winds up the evening's entertainment in good style.

City Gardens.

The Buislay Family will appear on Sunday in a varied performance consisting of the "Spiral Mountain," "Walking the Ceiling," "Japanese Ladders," etc., and in the afternoon there will be a balloon ascension by G. Buislay.

The Athenæum.

The selections from opera by Miss May Leslie and Miss Agnes Kennedy, are fully as much appreciated as the lighter portion of the entertainment given at this house. The list of names on our first page comprises many popular favorites and the new programme presented is an excellent one.

Woodward's Garden.

The aquarium is fast approaching completion, many additions have been made to the menagerie and the attractions are numerous. On Saturday there will be a grand masquerade skating carnival, at which gold and silver medals will be distributed as prizes. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon Delhi, the Great African Fire King, will appear in his wonderful performances, and also at the Carnival on Saturday evening.

Pools.

Everybody will take a hand in a pool for the great trot on Wednesday next. Pools are now selling by Killip & Covey, at 112 Sutter street, every evening.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Apologetic.

We decline to print the name of the party who attempted to commit suicide yesterday, for the reason that our invariable rule is that persons trying the suicide business must make a success of it to get a puff in FIGARO. We can make no exceptions—not even in favor of the weaker sex.

Home Comforts.

At a "Home for dogs" in London, the unsuspecting animals are taken in, kept three days, and if not called for poisoned. Now the great city is to have a "Stranger's Home," but as the Cockney definition of "Home" seems somewhat ambiguous, the internal arrangements had better be examined before applying for accommodations.

Modest Man!

A French Crispin, who has been out of sight for fifty-one years, now writes to President Thiers: "In 1821 I made you a pair of boots; you expressed yourself pleased with them. May I ask of you, therefore, the privilege of furnishing the army with boots? Your devoted subject—D.

Children's Songs.

M. Gray has just published two pretty songs well suited for little folks; words and music are exceedingly pretty. There names are No. 1—"God bless Papa, bring him safely Home." No. 2—"Loving Hearts around you, Mother." X

Professor Alexander Wolowski,

The renowned pianist, gave a grand musical soiree at Mr. Badger's Piano Rooms, on Sansome street, which was attended by the elite of society. The entertainment was a great success. The Professor executed several gems of his own production in the most artistic manner, and was most enthusiastically received. He has the reputation of being a most proficient teacher of the pianoforte. We wish him every success in this, his new field of enterprise, where talent always commands success. B-1t

Altogether the Best.

Washing Returned in One Day

And we never disappoint, at the What Cheer Laundry.

TOO LATE.

BY FITZ-HUGH LUDLOW.

When strawberries seemed like red heavens,
Terrapin stew a wild dream—
When my brain was at sixes and sevens
If my mother had folks and ice-cream,
Then I gazed with a lickerish hunger
At the restaurant man and fruit-monger—
But oh! how I wished I were younger,
When the goodies all came in a stream—
in a stream.

I've a splendid blood horse—and a liver
That it jars into torture to trot;
My row-boat's the gem of the river—
Gout makes every knuckle a knot!
I can buy boundless credits on Paris and Rome,
But no palate for menus—no eyes for a dome
Those belonged to the youth who must tarry at home,
When no home but an attic he'd got—he'd got.

How I longed in that lonest of garrets,
Where the tiles baked my brains all July,
For ground to grow two pecks of carrots—
Two pigs of my own in a sty—
A rose-bush—a little thatched cottage—
Two spoons—love—a basin of pottage:
Now in freestone I sit—and my dotage,
With a woman's chair empty close by—close by!

Children's Songs.

M Gray has just published "God Bless Papa" and "Loving Hearts around you, Mother." Words by S. Booth; Music by George T Evans. These "Children's Songs" are very pretty fancies, and will find ready sale.

A Vulgar Error.

Women require more sleep, it is said, than men. Blifkins disputes it, as, he says, the last sound he hears of nights is the voice of Mrs. B., in her nocturnal lecture, and the first in the morning, in her matutinal admonition.

An Indulgent Father.

An indulgent Kansas parent sold his cooking stove for $11 in order to take his thirteen children to the circus. He says a circus only comes two or three times a year, and, besides, he never had much to cook on the stove, anyhow.

An Inducement to Emigrate.

A Connecticut paper says: "If that accordeon artist who so assiduously practices 'Shoo Fly,' and other classical music, opposite this office, will call at the American consul's house, Honolulu, he will be liberally rewarded."

Explicit.

A disconsolate Hoosier explains that he has just lost his wife "by death." It was important to state particularly that the grim destroyer death had a hand in the job, as there are so many ways now by which a man may lose his wife.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The interesting drama of "Lady Thornhurst's Daughter" will be played at the matinee to-day and to-night for the last time. To-morrow night the Fabbri Troupe will present the beautiful opera of "Martha" with the cast published on our first page. On Monday the grand revival of "Richard III" on which months of labor have been expended, will take place. "Richard III" is always a popular play but never has it been seen here in the style in which it will be presented next week. It will be mounted with the most magnificent scenery imaginable, painted by the best London artists and imported here at great expense. The dresses will be splendid and magnificent, the armor, accoutrements and weapons were manufactured expressly for the piece by Garnger of Paris. A piece produced in such a manner in London is good for a run of 100 nights at the least and should certainly run for weeks in this city. The cast is unexceptionably good. John McCullough is a capital Gloster, H. Edwards, who will make his first appearance since his illness, will do full justice to the character of Clarence, Miss Annie Graham as Queen Elizabeth, Miss Helen Tracey as Lady Anne, and Mrs. Judah as Duchess of York are well adapted to their respective parts, and the other characters will be filled in a manner which will leave nothing to be desired. Everything on the stage will be historically correct, the scenery will represent London as it was at the time, and the costumes, armor and weapons will be those of the age during which the action of the play takes place. A real army of supernumeraries has been engaged and the battles will be invested with an appearance of reality never before attempted on the California stage. The production of this play in such a manner will be a notable event in the history of the drama in California.

ITALIAN OPERA—The Fabbri Troupe will give the beautiful opera of "Martha" to-morrow evening at the California Theatre. Last Sunday there was no standing room after eight o'clock and as the box sheet is now nearly full there will be the same state of things to-morrow evening.

ALHAMBRA.—There is immense variety in the entertainment given by Maguire's California Minstrels at this house. W. F. Baker, Benjamin Clarke and J. G. Russell are heard to advantage in the first part, in ballads, and Bob Hart and Charles Sutton cause much fun on the ends. The performance of the wonderful Child Americus, in the interlude, is much applauded. Delehanty and Hengler's songs and dances are very popular, and the act entitled "Hart's Academy of Learning," with which the performance concludes, causes roars of laughter. The full programme will presented at the matinee to-day.

THE YANKEE ROBINSON CIRCUS.—The capital company of artistes, now performing at the Circus Temple, Stockton Street, near Post, will give a matinee to-day and another exhibition in the evening. The wonderful feats of the dogs, the monkeys and the trained goat, delight the children and are the admiration of all the beholders. Pete Conklin is the jolliest of clowns and his ringing laugh is infectious. A more pleasant entertainment than that given at Circus Temple has not been witnessed in San Francisco for some time. There will be another grand performance to-morrow night.

BELLA UNION.—The management of this popular variety theatre announces extraordinary attractions for this evening. Chief among these is the engagement of the pretty and daring M'lle Gracie, the woman with the iron jaw, who will appear with Harry Clark in wonderful feats on the trapeze. M'lle Gracie was one of the brightest stars of Chiarini's Circus Troupe, and her engagement at the Bella Union Theatre will prove a very popular one. Mrs. O. Corlell will appear in character changes; M'lle Therese and Mons. Schmidt in a Spanish ballet; a host of others in various specialties, and Johnny Tuers' local extravaganza of the "Fair One, or Freaks of Justice," will terminate the evening's entertainment.

ATHENEUM.—The new bill at this popular place of amusement is a very good one. Everyone goes to the Atheneum, as there is something there to suit all tastes. The ballads by Miss May Leslie, character songs by Miss Agnes Kennedy funny acts by Tommy Barton, Johnny Kelly and Lon Dixon and numberless other performers are received with great applause. To-night "De-Liar," the great fire-eater, is announced to appear in a red-hot act.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—The Fire King.—The aquarium is fast approaching completion, many additions have been made to the menagerie and the attractions are numerous. To-night there will be a grand masquerade skating carnival, at which gold and silver medals will be distributed as prizes. This afternoon and to-morrow, Delhi, the Great African Fire King, will appear in his wonderful performances, and also at the Carnival this evening.

CHIARINI'S CIRCUS—Signor Chiarini has been during the week, making a triumphal tour through Redwood City, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Watsonville and Hollister, and has drawn immense crowds in each place. To-night, he will give an exhibition at Gilroy, and to-morrow at Almaden. The troupe will perform at San Jose on Monday and Tuesday.

DELEHANTY AND HENGLER—These popular song and dance men will leave on Monday for New York, where they are engaged to appear on the 21st with Maguire and Emerson's Minstrels.

TO ARRIVE—Miss Rose Martell an English, contralto singer will arrive in California early next month.

MARRIED—Miss Helen C. Dingeon, the charming vocalist, was married on Saturday last to William Herber, cigar and tobacco dealer.

THE REYNOLDS TROUPE.—This troupe of acrobats and gymnasts, who have been performing in the chief cities in Mexico, are now on their way from San Diego to this city.

MISS MAGGIE MOORE.—This talented and popular young actress is, as we before mentioned under engagement to play with E. T. Stetson through the Eastern cities in his pieces. Mr. Stetson left on the 10th. Miss Maggie Moore, accompanied by her mother, will start on or about the 20th of November to join him in New York on the 1st of December. We are sure that the other side of the Rocky Mountains, and that she will return to us improved by culture and experience.

CLIFF HOUSE.—There is so much horse talk at present that it is worth while to go out on the Cliff House road where one can see the best trotters in the State driven by their owners. All the horse men make Captain Foster's famous hostelry a sort of headquarters.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Miss Ada Grey performed in "Who's Wife" at the Louisville Opera House on Sept. 30th and Oct. 1st. Her engagement was for six nights.

The Vokes Family will return to Niblo's Theatre in May, 1873, at a salary of $3?0 a week.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette says Mr. J. T. Raymond, of the Globe Theatre, has obtained a conge in order to play star engagements in New Orleans and San Francisco in the course of the present season.

Mr. Daly is meeting with great success in both his New York ventures, "La Roi Carotte" continuing to attract crowds to the Grand Opera House, and "Diamonds" crowding his Fifth Avenue Theatre nightly.

The New York correspondent of the Baltimore Bulletin speaking of the performance of "The Hunchback" at the Olympic, says: Miss Rose Coghlan, the young actress who appeared at Wallack's lately with such favorable results, played Helen, but in spite of her winning presence and acknowledged accomplishments, cannot be said to have had a satisfactory conception of the part. Besides that, she has contracted a most ungraceful "kangaroo bend." I thought that playing Jupiter, in "Ixion" would be too much for her! The support included Mr. Neil Werner, whose Master Walter was vigorous and well conceived, and Mr. Edmund Leathes as Modus.

The same correspondent also has something to say about Willie Edouin in the burlesque of "Kenilworth:" There were also several others, notably Beckett, whose Queen Elizabeth was un peu coarse if funny, and Willie Edouin, whose attainments are apparently limitless. The manner in which he does everything in the way of imitating corkscrews, champagne corks and the like, is enough to make one intoxicated with delight.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette of the 29th says: The funeral of the late Wm. H. Sedley Smith, for many years Stage Manager at the Boston Museum—who died in California some months since, and whose remains have recently been brought to this city—will take place to-day, ceremonies being conducted by Rev. James Freeman Clarke, in the Chapel at Mt. Auburn, at 3 P. M.

The strongest troupe of theatrical "stars" ever congregated at a place of amusement in New York is now gathered at the Grand Opera House, and all appear every night in the regular "stock company:" Mrs. John Wood, John Brougham, Emma Howson, Rose Hersee, Stuart Robson, the Majiltons and the Lauri Family, have each and separately formed the chief and almost only attraction at many places of amusement in New York and elsewhere. These, with the other actors and singers, the grand scenery, gorgeous dresses, a chorus of forty, and countless supernumeraries, form probably the most expensive dramatic entertainment ever offered in this country.

The New York press chronicle the success of Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller in San Francisco, and prophecy for her a triumphant career in the lecture field in the Eastern States.

Miss Agnes Ethel and the fine comedy company of the Union Square Theatre, have continued to appear in Sardou's play of "Agnes" for a second week, to full houses.

R. M. Carroll and his three boys are amusing the Chicagoans at the Globe Theatre, with their musical and other specialties.

The season of Italian Opera at the Academy of Music, New York, commenced on the 30th ult. The opening opera was "L'Africaine," with Pauline Lucca as Selika, supported by M'lle Levielli, and Signors Abrignado, Moriani, and Jamet. The Home Journal says that Pauline Lucca made a singular success in a work generally regarded as heavy, is all the more to her credit. So large and critical an audience has seldom been gathered at the Academy of Music as on the opening night of the season, and a prima donna's triumph on that stage never so legitimately won. The lady has not curried favor in society circles; the manager's tricks of claquers she entirely refused, nor would she permit the floral ovation on the stage generally somewhat of an item of expense. Lucca demanded a success by legitimate means, and she very handsomely won. She has a pure soprano voice of the purest quality, mellow and rich; her style is truthful and honest. But most remarkable in her organ is its sympathetic tone; her touching, tender notes appeal directly to the heart. The same quality is also remarkable in her acting. Such love making as Lucca indulges in has never been equalled on our lyric stage; notably the prison scene, second act, where Selika, unable further to conceal her passion gives vent to the outpourings of a heart bursting with pure love for her idol, Vasco di Gama. Lucca has yet to appear at her best. To-night she essays Marguerite, in "Faust," a part in which several first-class prima donnas have been heard here. To predict her success is easy after her triumphs abroad in this opera.

The New York Critic says:

Emerson in his songs and acts, is without an equal, and Harry Stanwood in his musical and vocal selections stands first on the list.

Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault have closed an engagement to play ten weeks at Booth's Theatre, commencing March 3d, 1873.

M'lle Aimee and the artists of her new opera bouffe troupe arrived in New York, by the St. Laurent on Sept. 25th. Among the new comers are Milles. Bonelli and Roland, and MM. Juteau, Gabel, Lecuyer and Nardin. The first performances were to be given at the Olympic Theatre, commencing on Oct. 14th.

The Clipper says: "Miss Ella Wesner, character vocalist, is at the St. Julian Hotel, with her friend, Miss Helen Josephine Mansfield." We don't think Miss Ella Wesner will increase her popularity by this companionship.

Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault commenced an engagement at Booth's Theatre on Monday evening Sept. 23d, acting in Mr. Boucicault's own Irish drama, in three acts, entitled "Arrah-na-Pogue."

Wallack's Theatre was opened for the regular fall and winter season on Tuesday evening, Oct. 1st with W. S. Gilbert's comedy entitled "Pygmalion and Galatea," which achieved a great success at the Haymarket Theatre, London, Eng.

Tennie C. Claflin is about to make her debut upon the dramatic stage. She has selected for such event the character of Portia, in "The Merchant of Venice," which elist and editor, delivered his first lecture in America, at Association Hall, Friday evening, Sept. 27th. It was entitled "Modern Society," and illustrated by life size cartoons drawn by Leech, Marcus Stone and Frith.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons arrived in New York from England, per steamship Brussels, on Sept. 28th.

A new play entitled "Davy Crockett," written expressly for Frank Mayo by Frank Murdoch, was produced at the Rochester, N. Y., Opera House on Sept. 23d. It was put on the stage with new scenery and effects, and acted during the week to good business. It abounds in effective situations, has a good plot and language, and will be successful. Master Frank Mayo made a successful first appearance as Bob Crockett.

Mr. John Collins opened at the Pittsburgh, Pa., Opera House on Sept. 23d as Paul Clifford in the musical and spectacular drama of that name.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq commenced a two weeks' engagement at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 23d of September, appearing as Marie de Fontanges in Tom Taylor's drama of "Plot and Passion."

Miss Leo Hudson appeared at the Trimble Opera House, Albany, N. Y., on the 30th ult.

Niblo's Garden will open early in November with Boucicault's last London success—the fairy spectacle of "Babil and Bijou." It will be mounted with unusual splendor. The cost of producing it in London was £21,000.

John Brougham's new historical play, "The Lily of France," will be produced at Booth's Theatre in December next. Miss Helen Tempin will assume the leading part.

Charles R. Thorne, Jr., departed for Europe on the 21st ult., for a year's visit, with his bride, lately Miss Mary S. Brown, of Philadelphia, whom he married on the 20th ult.

Ella Wesner was at the Comique, New York, on the 7th inst. Jennie, Sophia and Irene Worrell are shortly to appear at that theatre.

Miss Leclerq talks of suing Fechter for the money she lent him to fix up his Lyceum Theatre, when they were friends.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!
COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!
Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.
In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.
It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that [illegible] been pronounced incurable by any other known [illegible]edy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. B

Special to the Ladies.

Mrs. Schloss begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. P

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrepins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Clairvoyance.

Through the solicitation of Dr. J—— we called to test the Natural Medium Powers of Madame Burr's wonderful gift. She gave tests of the past and our present thoughts and intentions, with perfect accuracy. Events in life only known to myself were given, and her predictions of my future life I note with confidence. As I have consulted all mediums in our city, I can truly say Madame Burr is "The Reliable Clairvoyant." Her office—408 Pine street, opposite Russ House.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

The Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

First—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

Second—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with those from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

Third—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

Fourth—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

Fifth—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

Branch Punch Saloon,

317 Kearny street.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES'
PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" is the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night "Richard III" with John McCullough in the title role, and the strong cast published on our first page will be produced in a style of magnificence never before attempted. As we mentioned on Saturday all the scenery, dresses, arms and mountings were made expressly for the play by the best artists in Paris and London. San Franciscans will have, for the first time, an opportunity of seeing what has to be done for a place to make it run for two hundred nights in London.

Alhambra.

There will be a new programme at this house tonight and the popular Irish comedian, Sam Rickey, will make his reappearance in the farce entitled "Bad Whisky." The entertainment concludes with J. McAndrew's sketch of "Uncle Eph's Dream."

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.

Flotow's opera of "Martha" was performed last night at the California Theatre in splendid style. The house was crowded in every part, and the audiance was enthusiastic.

Bella Union.

The grand Wigwam Pow Wow, with which the performance commenced on Saturday evening and last night, was brilliant. It was followed by a capital interlude in which Jennie Johnson sang a comic song in good style; Mrs. Charles Coriell gained great applause in her character changes, and Johnny Tuera convulsed the audience in his Ethiopian delineations. The wonderful feats on the trapeze by the charming M'lle Gracie and H. Clark were applauded until the house rang again, and the laughable sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California," sent the audience home in high good humor. The same bill will be played tonight.

The Atheneum.

This house was positively thronged on Saturday night and again last night, all the boxes being taken and every seat occupied. The performance gave the greatest satisfaction to all present. Such thorough artistes as Miss Agnes Kennedy and Miss May Leslie are always appreciated, and the whole programme under under the able direction of Thomas Arnold was excellently well carried out.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

A new programme has been arranged for this evening. Madame Sanyeah, Samwells' great troupe of performing dogs, Pete Conklin, the most amusing of clowns and the other features which proved so popular last week, will, of course be retained.

Metropolitan Theatre.

E. G. Bert announces that he has made arrangements for the production of the sensation drama by Walter H Cooper entitled "Hazard." This play was a great success in Australia.

Italian Opera.

The season of Italian opera is "temporarily postponed, but not abandoned." Negotiations are pending with five or six prima donnas, who will probably come over in two ships, if not more to this which might have been, but does not happen to be "their childhood's early home." We shall have opera, must have opera. "Hope springs eternal in Bianchi's breast." But the public must wait.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a constant stream of people pouring into these gardens all day yesterday. During the day as many as 8,000 persons must have visited this delightful place. The surprising feats of the Fire King formed but a small part of the attractions presented. The menagerie, the museum, the conservatories, the seal pond, the happy family cage and other objects of interest were surrounded all day by crowds of pleased spectators.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Mens Conscia Recti.

A Western editor, receiving an invitation to take tea with a lady friend, accepted. While at the table the lady observed that he had no spoon for his cup. "Is it possible," said she, that I forgot to give you a spoon? I could not have made such a mistake." I have no spoon, madam," said the editor, rising from his seat, "and if you don't believe it you may search me."

Oak Poisoning.

Not So.

Those horrible San Jose people who are too mean to go to shows steal newspapers off door steps. The editor of the Mercury says;

We have descanted upon the enormity of this crime—have shown the utterly hopeless condition, hereafter, of all such unpardonable wretches as those who commit it—have plead with tears in our eyes to forbear; yet it seems of no sort of use," the Patriot says: Now, any man who would nip a Mercury we have got our opinion of. A pin thief is a noble specimen of manhood in comparison. A man that is so far down in the world as to steal a Mercury is a wretch upon whom the gates of Heaven will be forever closed.

We can't quite agree with this statement We think a man who takes his Mercury every morning must have strong hopes of sal-(i)vation,

We Don't B lieve It.

A curious experiment was recently tried by two inhabitants of Vienna, between whom the question arose whether man or woman had the most vanity. Unable to convince each other, they made the question the subject of a bet; the stakes were two hundred florins. To decide, they agreed to place themselves before a mirror-shop and count the number of men and women who, out of one hundred of either sex, should stop and admire themselves in the looking-glasses. In an hour they had counted out of one hundred women eighty who had stopped to look at themselves, and out of one hundred men ninety-five who paused to admire their faces.

Apologetic.

We decline to print the name of the party who attempted to commit suicide yesterday, for the reason that our invariable rule is that persons trying the suicide business must make a success of it to get a puff in FIGARO. We can make no exceptions—not even in favor of the weaker sex.

Trivial Provocation.

A Missourian, suing for a divorce, was asked what led him to take such a course. "What lead?" he exclaimed, "why, hot lead —in my ear—poured in by my wife." No doubt the dear creature had heard that it was good for the ear ache. The Fire King uses it constantly.

Intense Gratitude.

Henry Conners, of Rutland, Vt. Engineer on a locomotive, recently saved the life of a little child at the risk of his own. The father, (a poor man, worth only $75,000,) asked the courageous man to take a glass of soda, as a reward for saving his child!

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city — English breakfast tea — Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

An Omission.

The Alta generally has all the news concerning the resources of the State. We have not observed the following from the Monterey Democrat in its columns:

THE GREAT REMEDY

....FOR....

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge.

Reciprocal Compliments.

The following letters, which are self-explanatory, recently passed between an employee of a fashionable West End warehouse in London, and the proprietor of an equally fashionable theatre:

SIR:—If you are now issuing any complimentary orders for your theatre, may I ask you to circulate a few through me for the ladies and gentlemen of our house? By doing so you may rely upon them being used by fashionable and well dressed persons. I hope you will pardon the liberty I have taken by writing to you, and trusting the suggestion may meet with your approbation.

I am, sir, yours, obediently, R. J.

The following answer was forwarded by return of post:

SIR:—If you are now issuing any complimentary black silk dresses, may I ask you to circulate a few through me for the ladies of this theatre? By doing so you may rely on their being made up fashionably and worn by ladies of good appearance and figure. I hope you will pardon the liberty, but trusting the suggestion may meet your approval,

I am, sir, yours obediently, A. T. S,

A Lovely Town.

There is a town in Calaveras county called Angels. The Mountaineer is published there and from it we take the following account of some of the drawbacks to perfect happiness which exist in Angels:

We really think that Angels has for its size, more stray nuisances than any town in the State. Hogs can be found wandering through her streets by the hundred, while dogs can be found in legions. We hope enterprising hog thief will soon make his appearance. We have had arastra and till thieves, now give us a hog thief, and thus rid us of one nuisance at least.

Some Comfort.

The following feminine dialogue gives an insight into the feelings of the sex:

Mrs.—He's a wretch, He actually beats his wife.

Mrs.—(sighing) Happy woman! Her husband at least is interested in her.

Sweet Girl!

A Wisconsin girl, whose lover doted on curly hair, committed suicide the other day because her hair would not curl.

Georgia ladies use none but religious papers for their Sunday bustles.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. A Prannial Spring of News.

Everything will be done by the reporters of the daily press to render the stay of the charming Mrs. Laura D. Fair and her estimable mother in San Francisco, as pleasant as possible, in order that it may be a prolonged one. The whole family are valuable in the eyes of newspaper reporters. They are all interesting. We are sure that the charming Laura would, if she found the interest in her and her relations dying away, get crazy again and pop off some one with her revolver which she handles with such artistic skill. Dear Mrs. Lane too, finding that laudanum is not unpleasant to take, will we are sure try it again and be once more pumped out. O. D. Hunt, Mrs. Fair's brother, is doing his best to keep up the reputation of the family; he is in the divorce court now as a defendant. Stay with us Laura, don't go to your sunny Southern home just yet. Who can write you up in as charming style as the talented interviewer of the Chronicle? Still tarry with us, and be a blessing to newspaper reporters. You can make money here as fast as you could anywhere in the world. We want the whole family to stay here. We cannot spare them. Mrs. Fair can have no fear for her life now in the event of her again indulging her amiable idiosyncracy. Ce n'est que le premier pas qui coute. Go on, amiable being in the career you have marked out for yourself. Fear not the threats of the boyish Crittendens, for you are quicker on the trigger than they. Remain here, and the reporters of the daily press shall form a cordon round you to shield you from harm.

Clairvoyance.

Through the solicitation of Dr. J—— we called to test the Natural Medium Powers of Madame Burr's wonderful gift. She gave tests of the past and our present thoughts and intentions, with perfect accuracy. Events in life only known to myself were given, and her predictions of my future life I note with confidence. As I have consulted all mediums in our city, I can truly say Madame Burr is "The Reliable Clairvoyant." Her office—408 Pine street, opposite Russ House.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

SQUARZA'S

Branch Punch Saloon,

317 Kearny street.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street!
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES'
PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist!
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL!"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.
Remember, too, not this famed place to pass;
ALL SPLENDID LIQUORS BUT ONE BIT A GLASS.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Long before the doors were opened last night the vestibule of the theatre was thronged with people anxious to be present on the first night of the grand revival of "Richard III" in a style hitherto undreamed of in California. Every part of the house was filled, and ladies were standing in the aisles for some time, but the ushers worked with a will, and in time got them chairs, and so arranged matters that all were comfortably seated save those who came after the curtain rose. These stood in the outer corridor, craning over the shoulders of those in the front rank to get a peep at the stage. The scenery even surpassed the expectations of those who prepared to see the perfection of scenic art. Among the many beautiful scenes we may mention as worthy of special attention Old Ludgate, with distant view of St. Paul's, the cloisters of Westminster and portion of the Abbey, and the Queen's Chamber and Oratory. This last is one of the finest ever presented on any stage, the tapestried hangings and stained glass windows are executed in a manner which will bear the closest examination. The splendor of the costumes, and the multitude of people on the stage heightened the effects very much. The armies were so arranged as to appear imposing instead of as is too often the case, exciting the jeers of the gallery by the paucity of their numbers. The play presented last night, differed in some respects from the acting edition, the scene between Clarence and his murderers, cut in Colley Cibber's version being retained, and the scene of the murder of the Princes in the tower being effectively represented in tableau. The vision scene in the tent was well managed, and was very impressive. John McCullough as Richard, gave a vivid rendition of the role presenting the lights and shades of the crook-backed tyrant's character most skillfully. There were painful rumors flying about before the performance that Mr. McCullough's health was not such as would enable him to go through the arduous role with success. We are sure whatever distress the actor might have suffered last night, the public had no cause to complain. The combat scene was carried out with immense vigor and a more effective death of Richard than that presented last night by John McCullough has seldom been seen. Henry Edwards read the part of Clarence splendidly; Geo. D. Chaplin made a handsome Richmond and gained a round of applause for his reading of the prayer before the battle; Miss Annie Graham as Queen Elizabeth, acted and read the part delightfully; it could scarcely have been done better; Miss Helen Tracey made some very good points in the scene with Richard where the funeral procession is delayed. Mrs. Judah as Duchess of York was all that could be desired; George French deserves mention for the careful and conscientious manner in which he played the Lieutenant of the Tower. W. A. Mestayer and J. C Williamson as first and second murderer carried through their scene with Clarence very neatly, carefully avoiding overdoing anything; Miss Carrie Wyatt played the character of the Prince of Wales well; little Miss Rellie Deaves did some capital acting as Duke of York, and spoke her lines with a discretion and feeling remarkable in one so young; Walter Leman as a matter of course was at home in the role of King Henry; E. J. Buckley was a brisk, lively Catesby, and bore himself well in armor; and in fact, all the characters were well filled. "Richard III" as presented at the California Theatre should run for many a night.

Alhambra.

The new bill presented at this house last night proved quite a success, and Sam Rickey was heartily welcomed on making his reappearance as Owen Connolly in his great act of "Bad Whisky," in which Bob Hart as Jane Ann Connolly assisted in keeping the audience in a continual roar of laughter. Charles Sutton did a song and dance very neatly; Baker and Rockafeller sang a duet very pleasingly; Miss Fanny Gibson a ballad, and the sketch of plantation life by J. McAndrews, "Uncle Eph's Dream," closed the evening's entertainment. The same bill will be played to-night.

Bella Union.

M'lle Gracie in her wonderful feats on the trapeze with Harry Clark has caused a veritable furore, and she is rewarded with immense applause every night. Mrs. Charles Correll's character changes are great features in the programme. M'lle Theresa, Mons. Schmidt, R. G. Marsh, Carrie Chapman, Floy Emerson, Maggie Emerson, Minnie Fillmore, Carrie Armstrong and others appear nightly in the new ballet, "La Maja di Siviglia," and Johney Tuers's amusing sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California" winds up the entertainment.

The Athenaeum.

The company at this house comprises many popular favorites—Miss Agnes Kennedy, Miss May Leslie, Miss Maggie Brewer, Tommy Barton, Sally Thayer, known as the old war horse, and many others. The latest addition to the company is Charley Thompson, a very lively song and dance man from New York.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

The new entertainment given at the Circus Temple last night astonished and delighted a large crowd of spectators. Semwells introduced his wonderful company of trained dogs and monkeys in new feats, Madame Sanyeah appeared in new performances, and a very pleasant evening's entertainment was given. To-morrow there will be a matinee performance.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a constant stream of people pouring into these gardens all day yesterday. During the day as many as 10,000 persons must have visited this delightful place. The surprising feats of the Fire King formed but a small part of the attractions presented. The menagerie, the museum, the conservatories, the seal pond, the happy family cage and other objects of interest were surrounded all day by crowds of pleased spectators. The Fire King gives his performances every day this week.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Everybody is busy at work at the Metropolitan Theatre getting up the new scenery and mechanical effects necessary for the production of the Australian sensation drama, "Hazard;" in which Mr. James J. Bartlett, Miss Blanche Clifton, and the old Californian, Frank Hussey, will make their first appearance. Mrs. F. M. Bates has been engaged as leading lady.

Anatomical Museum.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

LETTER FROM PORTLAND.

Portland, Oct. 8th, 1872.

Dear Figaro:—Everything in the show line has been to the Fair at Salem, and Portland has been deserted of late. Waldron produced "Humpty Dumpty" here to good business. M'lle Gaugain was harlequin, Ed Montague clown, who made quite a bit in this new line of business; and M'lle Garretta was the Columbine. Waldron also produced "Humpty Dumpty" at the Fair, and considering the execrable weather did well. But the cream of the business was monopolized by John Wilson, who reached the grounds the second day. His biggest house was over two thousand dollars. Ryland showed the same evening to light business. The Crystal Palace Circus then packed up and left for the Golden State. We all got back well and safe. Wilson opens here to-morrow night and will without doubt do a big business. He had last night at Oregon City (a poor show town) eight hundred dollars.

MORE ANON.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Clairvoyance.

Through the solicitation of Dr. J—— we called to test the Natural Medium Powers of Madame Burr's wonderful gift. She gave tests of the past and our present thoughts and intentions, with perfect accuracy. Events in life only known to myself were given, and her predictions of my future life I note with confidence. As I have consulted all mediums in our city, I can truly say Madame Burr is "The Reliable Clairvoyant." Her office—408 Pine street, opposite Russ House.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

The Fair Verdict,

Rendered lately by the jury and the public at large, is confirmed that the finest selection of the Fall Millinery Fashions can be found at Mme. E. Shloss', 406 Kearny street, and as she buys her goods for cash, is thereby able to undersell all others. G

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

OLD LETTERS.

Old letters, dear, dear letters,
I read you o'er again,
Though every line awakens
Some memory of pain;
Like some enchanter's vision
On magic mirror cast,
You call up pleasant pictures,
The pictures of the past:
Sad visions, yet so pleasant!
So mournful, yet so fair!
For every picture shows me
These are not, but they were:
The pleasant country cottage,
The bees among the limes
The murmur of the mill-wheel,
The silver Sunday chimes;
My mother's gentle schooling,
My sister's winsome face,
And ev'ry nook and corner
About the dear old place.
One writing old and faded,
And stain'd with many tears,
Sounds to me like an echo
Across the sea of years—
Comes faint and sweetly to me
From that untrodden shore,
Where never tempest's rage is felt,
And billows break no more—
A dead girl's dying message,
A tress of yellow hair,
And a mem'ry never fading
Of one so good, so fair!
Ah me! thou faded writing—
'Twas twenty years ago
Since first I saw and woo'd her,
Amid the Summer Show,
And cull'd the apple blossom,
And heard the skylark's tune
O'er meadows white with daisies,
Beneath the skies of June.
Old letters—dear, dear letters,
I read you o'er and o'er,
And ponder sadly on the past,
That comes back nevermore.

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S
Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, seven cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Vessel, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

O. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor. California and Davis sts.

Mark Twain in England.

Mark Twain is being lionized in England. He will wear better than Joaquin Miller, for he is genuine. The Figaro says:

The enterprise of our photographers is now growing quite proverbial. We know, for instance, how keenly Stanley was fought over. But, in the present case, the praise must be awarded to Mr. Charles Watkins, who succeeded in focussing his camera on Mark Twain before that distinguished humorist had been many hours in London. He has taken several capital likenesses, and all who admire the "Innocents Abroad," the "Jumping Frog," or any of Mark Twain's deliciously funny productions, had better call at 54, Chancery-lane, as soon as possible, and secure his carle.

So London equally with San Francisco rejoices in an energetic photographer named Watkins. Our Watkins is not called Charles but Earleton E.

A Valuable Snuff Box.

Carafa, author of "Massaniello," whose death was lately announced, was anything but rich. The most certain part of his income was a snuff box. This was given him thirty years ago on his saint's day, as a mark of friendship, by Baron Rothschild. Twenty-four hours afterward Carafa sold it to the jeweler from whom it was purchased for seventy-five louis d'or. The following year the Baron gave Carafa the same snuff box, and Carafa again disposed of it for seventy five louis d'or. This went on uninterruptedly during the Baron's life, and even after the Baron's decease his sons continued to present the snuff box to Carafa on each succeeding saint's day. It had become a tradition in their family."

An Outraged Man.

A landlord at Rock Island refused Bill Floyed his dinner. William grieved tenderly over this outrageous wrong, attempted to scalp the landlord with a butcher-knife, and smashed a beer glass on the side of the clerk's head. The rights of hungry American citizens cannot be abridged with impunity.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Kissing in Oregon.

The web-footed ones are children of nature as the following incident reported by the Portland Oregonian goes to prove:

Among the people of the Orient, and other nations of the globe, the custom of saluting with a kiss was, and is still practiced. Should two or more friends meet, either in private, or on the crowded streets or highways, they "passed the time of day" by a cordial grasp of the hand, and a union of the lips. In this country the custom of kissing has not become obsolete, but is practiced under somewhat different circumstances. In American society the practice of kissing is but rarely indulged in by old people. By a sort of tacit conventionality, society assigns this agreeable task to the younger members, who generally assume its duties and responsibilities with fear and trembling, but invariably with pleasure. We were forcibly reminded of the subject of kissing, yesterday, by a "little circumstance" which transpired up Washington street, near Park. The principal actors were a male and female; both were young; the gentleman not particularly handsome, but "passable;" the lady quite pretty. Both were walking in the same direction; lady leaning confidingly and fondly on the arm of the escort. Suddenly both stopped, as if moved by a common impulse. With a careful, but unsteady hand, the gentleman removed the veil from the lady's face, and he then and there, on the open street, in broad daylight, at the hour of high noon, in the eyes of a Christian world, and without any malice aforethought, deliberately impressed a smacking kiss on the lips of the guileless maiden, who smiled and smiled again, but was no villian. The gentleman liked the first kiss so well that he took two more, sandwiching each with a hasty, sheepish glance around to see if any one was looking at him. But he was seen. The first kiss, which resounded like the popping of a champagne cork, attracted the attention of the inmates of a certain private boarding house hard by, who with one accord rushed pell-mell to the window, just in time to see the chap take the two last "busses." It was a mean trick for the inmates to do so; but, alas for human weakness and curiosity. They "larfed" a tremendous "larf," so loud that the couple looked up to the window and knew that "other eyes" than their own had witnessed their little tete a tete. They left that locality with a vengeance, and haven't been seen since. Kissing on the street is pleasant exercise, but it is sometimes attended with a little embarrassment to the parties.

Later—We learn that the couple are soon to be married, so the "little incident" we have briefly narrated is nobody's business but their own. Were it any of our affair we should give names.

Horrid Little Girl!

A little girl in a New York Orphan Asylum quarrelled with another girl and scratched her face. For this she was punished and required to learn and repeat a verse from the Bible, being allowed her own selection. She chose the first verse of of Psalm 144, which runs as follows: "Blessed be the Lord, my strength, which teacheth my hands to war and my fingers to fight."

Too Late.

Several days ago we mentioned that several real live English Lords had been entertained in our city unawares, and left for the Sound. The gentlemen have returned and were interviewed by our reporter. They are all young men, from wealthy families in England, and have been travelling in the United States for nearly a year. They are now examining the Pacific Coast States with a view of posting themselves thoroughly upon its advantages. The names of these young gentlemen are J. Wilson, T. Drury, and F. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

CAUTION!

TO THE PUBLIC.

533 OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W. C.,
September 21st, 1872.

I BEG RESPECTFULLY TO CALL ATTENTION to the annexed copy of a circular sent to the Medicine Vendors and others in the States and elsewhere by two or three individuals (of little or no means), under the style of "The New York Chemical Company," which company had no existence until October, 1871, and with which I have no connection. The more effectually to deceive, they caution the public as follows:

The immense demand for Holloway's Pills and Ointment has tempted unprincipled parties to counterfeit these valuable Medicines.

In order to protect the public and ourselves, we have issued a new Trade Mark, consisting of an Egyptian Circle of a Serpent with the letter H in the centre. Every box of genuine Holloway's Pills and Ointment will have this trade mark on it. None are genuine without it.

To Dealers and Jobbers in Drugs and Medicines.—We call your particular attention to the new style of Holloway's Pills and Ointment—none of the old style are manufactured by us now, nor have they been for months. We therefore caution all purchasers against receiving from any Jobbers or Dealers the old style of goods.

Information of any such goods being offered will be received with thanks. We ask the favor of all the information you can give in regard to those counterfeits.

How this Honorable Company, aware that your laws do not permit them to copy the precise getting up of my Medicines, put their counterfeits into another form and intimate that they adopt a New Label.

The object of these people in referring to the immense demand for these Medicines is, that it may be believed that I am connected with them.

In the interest of the public, I therefore respectfully invite you to be pleased to give an insertion to this letter in your paper, that your readers may not be deceived by this "New York Chemical Company's" spurious Medicines.

Each Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicines bear the British Government Stamp, with the words "Holloway's Pills and Ointment, London," but they are not sold in the United States.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.
No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with those from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST!

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

G. N. Arthur, of J. D. Arthur & Son, Agricultural Warehouse, cor. California and Davis sts.
E. G. Mathews, Grain Merchant, 208 Davis st.

WEDNESDAY........OCTOBER 16, 1872

The Arcadian Club, New York.

The new Arcadian Club differs from all other clubs in having Saturday night receptions at which ladies appear. This, of course, renders the club mighty popular among the fair ones—more popular than the Sorosis, for what woman ever cared for a simple gathering of women? Then every woman is curious about these domestic hugbears- clubs, and this opportunity to get a glimpse into their mysteries naturally agitates and delights the whole female mind. Wives will never object to clubs where they may appear once a week, and so this shrewd movement on the part of the Arcadians will rapidly augment their numbers. All the henpecked husbands in town will flock to the doors of the club, clamoring for admission.

A Model Peace-Maker.

A gentleman who used to carry on the sheriff business, wholesale and retail, in Ontonagon county, in an early day, was frequently called upon to quiet tumultuous brawls, which he did by rushing into the crowd and knocking every man as flat as a flounder, and then repeating these memorable words over their prostrate bodies; "Say boys, what's all this row about? As Sheriff of Ontonagon county, I command the peace?"

The Rights of Labor.

The Chicago Times says the hard-handed sons of toil are noble fellows; but as they wend their way homeward each evening why must they brandish the defiant tin pail, cracking the effete shins of pampered aristocrats walking the other way?

A Tame Husband.

Louisville husbands are well trained. One of them lately submitted to a cowhiding from his wife at his place of business, and when she had finished meekly picked up the baby and walked home with her.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Fechter's New Theatre.

The reconstruction of the Theatre Francais on Fourteenth street, is being rapidly pushed forward. The theatre will be when completed one of the handsomest in New York. The new building is in the Corinthian style, and of Portland cement, supported on a brick foundation. Ten fluted columns with ornate capitals support a gallery level with the second story, above which is a pediment supported by lighter columns of the Corinthian order, and adorned with a sculptured group. Inside the work is going on with rapidity; more than fifty carpenters being employed. The auditorium depth is about sixty feet; and there are only two galleries in the new house—the dress and family circles, for which it is claimed that every person seated in them, in front or at the back, will be able to see and hear everything that takes place upon the stage. No footlights will interrupt a view of the stage, and the musicians will be concealed beneath a sounding board, in front of and nearly level with the stage, and hidden by a trellis-work buried in flowers. Miniature fountains will sprinkle the flowers during the evening. The stage is forty feet deep and thirty-six feet broad in the widest part; the floors being movable. It is enclosed by a semi-circular wall culminating in a dome, intended to serve the two-fold purpose of a sounding board, and an addition to the accessories of stage illusion. On this screen will be painted sky-scenes, which will, it is thought, have a better effect than theatrical cloudlands generally. The roof of the rear part of the theatre rises to a height of eighty-five feet above the stage, while under the stage is a cellar twenty-five feet deep for storage. The scenery will be stored mainly above the proscenium, and lowered when required. The screen cost nearly ten thousand dollars alone.

There will be no gaslights over the stage. The house will be lighted solely by one large and brilliant basket suspended in the centre of the ceiling, fifty feet above the auditorium, and a few lights at the back of the different galleries. In order to deaden sound the spaces beneath the flooring of the auditorium are filled with cork shavings. The dressing-rooms are underneath the floor, and large and commodious, thorough ventilation having been secured by continually forcing fresh air from above, and exhausting it again before it has become impure. The decorations are to be elaborate, the face of the galleries being ornamented with floral paintings, and the remaining part of the house adorned in a similar manner. Complete precautions have been taken to preserve from destruction by fire, and to ensure the safety of the audience in the event of any such calamity. Five large entrances open on Fourteenth street, and thus the building could be emptied in less than two minutes of its fifteen hundred persons. Among the many improvements introduced is that of the queu, to prevent any unbecoming pushing or crowding at the box-offices. This is simply a system of railings, leading from the entrance to the box-offices in a zig-zag direction, in such a manner as to prevent any one from getting out of his turn, ladies, of course, waiting in a commodious vestibule until their tickets are procured. It is estimated that the total cost of the theatre, from the first alterations to the opening, exclusive of the cost of scenery, will not be less than one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. It is rumored that the first piece produced will be "Monte Cristo," in which Fechter has played very successfully in London. The great scenic feature of the play will be the ship, of which the hero, Edmund Dantes, is the commander, apparently working into port from a great distance, manned by boys dressed as sailors.

"Four Dishes for two Bits."

Well, Boys, I am going down to the Mechanic's Restaurant, 159 Second street, near Howard, which has just been reopened by my old friend,

Ill-Timed Congratulations.

The Danbury News says: "One of our benevolent old ladies is not satisfied with alone comfortably clothing the objects of her philanthropy, but perseveres in taking an interest in them after that. Wherever she meets them she is ready to make some pertinent and pleasant remark, such as 'Why, what a comfortable dress that of Miss Perkins' makes you!' or, 'Mercy me! how good Uncle Daniel's breeches fit you,' or something else of a like friendly and considerate nature, which is always keenly appreciated by the recipient, and sometimes by listeners. Saturday evening a chirk young Miss, escorted by her gallant through the crowd of Main street, caught the eye of the old lady, and her delighted voice sounded above the noise of the street as she cried; 'Why, gracious goodness, Almira Ann Boardman! Poor dead Miss Pinkney's basque sets almost as snug to you as if it had been made for you.' And the old lady rubbed her nose very pleasantly, while Miss Boardman turned black with suppressed gratitude."

A Flattering Picture.

"What are you drawing, Anna?" "I'se making your pictur." So the gentleman sat very still, and she worked away very hard for a while. Then she stopped, compared her work with the original, and shook her little head. "I don't like it much," she said. "'Tain't a great deal like you. I dess I'll put a tail to it and tall it a dog."

A Mean Insinuation.

An editor says his ancestors have been in the habit of living a hundred years. His opponent responds by saying that "that was before the introduction of capital punishment."

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.
No. 305 Sansome Street,
San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking, and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Another immense audience witnessed the performance of "Richard III" last night. The scenes representing old London are very interesting, and the play throughout is invested with an air of reality which makes it very absorbing. The ancient fashions of dress as exemplified in the costumes worn by Miss Annie Graham and Miss Helen Tracy are interesting to the ladies in the audience and prove to all that pretty woman must look pretty whatever they wear. "Richard III" will be presented every evening until further notice.

Alhambra.

The ethiopian farce of "The Invaded Studio," in which Bob Hart plays Dr. Boffam, Add Ryman the student, and Charles Cotton the patient, causes roars of laughter. The finale to the first part, consisting of a scene from the opera of "La Sonnambula," by M. Ainsley Scott and company, is very good, and the afterpiece, "Uncle Bob's Dream," is well put on the stage, and capitally acted by J. McAndrews, Bob Hart, Charles Sutton and others.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The sensation play of "Hazard" will be produced on Monday, by a company comprising James J. Bartlett, Frank Hussey, Miss Blanche Cliftoe, Mrs. F. M. Bates and others.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.

Next Sunday the grand opera of "Faust" will be presented in German, with Jacob Muller in his great character of Mephistophiles. Next week Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday will be regular opera nights. Great preparations are being made for the production of "L'Africaine."

Bella Union.

The shouts of laughter caused by Johnny Toers' new sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California" prove how thoroughly its keen satire is appreciated by the public. This, together with a good first part, attractive interlude, attractive ballet and songs, acts and dances, not forgetting the wonderful performances of M'lle Gracie and Harry Clark, make up an entertainment hard to beat.

The Atheneum.

A very varied programme is performed at this house. The first part is good, the interlude is an amusing melange of songs, dances and acts, and the amusing comedietta of "Jenny Leatherlungs," by Miss Agnes Kennedy, Tommy Barton and company, concludes the entertainment.

The Yankee Robinson Circus.

Among the many attractive features of the new programme may be mentioned feats of horsemanship by Professor Samwells, the wonderful performance on the horizontal bar, by the Brothers Moreeto, a double act by Professor Samwells and Elo; feats of strength by John Conklin, the Modern Milo, and new performances by the wonderful clown dog and other members of the troupe of canine artistes. To-morrow night Pete Conklin, the best clown who ever appeared here, will take his only benefit.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a constant stream of people pouring into these gardens all day yesterday. During the day as many as 10,000 persons must have visited this delightful place. The surprising feats of the Fire King formed but a small part of the attractions presented. The menagerie, the museum, the conservatories, the seal pond, the happy family cage and other objects of interest were surrounded all day by crowds of pleased spectators. The Fire King gives his performances every day this week.

Platt's Hall.

A grand vocal and instrumental concert will be given to-morrow evening at Platt's Hall for the benefit of St. Augustine's College, Benecia. The ladies of the several Episcopal churches have the management of the affair, which cannot fail to be a success. The list of artistes who will appear is published in another column.

Miss Maggie Moore.

Everyone will be glad to learn that Miss Maggie Moore is not to leave us after all; she has accepted a year's engagement at the California Theatre and will make her appearance in "Saratoga," which is shortly to be produced.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Cruelly Misunderstood.

We have lately heard of a husband who has sued for a divorce because, during his absence from home, his wife wrote him to the effect that the longer he stayed away the better she liked him. She declares in her answer that she didn't mean it in that sense.

Innocent Dear!

An innocent-minded Brooklyn girl said to a gentleman the other night: "The mosquitoes are terrible. I wish you could see my back!" "I wish I could," was the quiet reply.

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Saying Good Bye.

The other evening an old lady stopped a horse-car, and turning to a female friend who accompanied her, said: "Good bye my dear; I'll write to you to-morrow and tell you all about the slips that Martha got when she was in last week. And don't you forget to send me that recipe for apple souffle. You've got my address, haven't you? No? Why I thought I gave it to you in the dining-room before we started. I certainly wrote it off on a sheet of paper end—oh, its in my bag; here it is; no, that's the prescription. There—there you have it. Now don't forget to write, and if you see Mrs. Spooner to-night give my love to her. If her baby isn't any better to-morrow I should give it a tea-spoonful of sweet gum arabic mucilage every half hour and very little milk with boiled maizena. You can't be too careful, and it would be a pity to lose the baby now after getting through the terribly hot weather we have had this summer. I declare I couldn't keep a linen collar on my neck or a dry dress to my back half an hour. Why if that impudent conductor hasn't started his car, and I shall have to wait for another!" She waited.

A Useful Moral.

The Oakland News says:

On Sunday evening Dr. Stone preached a sermon from the following text:

"Yet, Michael, the Archangel, when contending with the Devil, he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring against him a railing accusation, but said: "The Lord rebuke thee."—Jude, 9th verse.

The mere announcement of such a text is an excellent rebuke to the papers and speakers who cannot tell the difference between argument and abuse.

Unprepared to Die.

The rage for expensive funerals is strong even in death. "Are you prepared for the great change?" asked his minister, of one of the venerable Smiths. "I am afraid not," said John Smith, sadly: "the means for the occasion are insufficient."

The Fair Verdict,

Rendered lately by the jury and the public at large, is confirmed that the finest selection of the Fall Millinery Fashions can be found at Mme. E. Shloss', 406 Kearny street, and as she buys her goods for cash, is thereby able to undersell all others. G

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred th

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller.

The Yreka Union has a lady correspondent in San Francisco, who signs herself "Katie Keeth," and writes very pleasant, gossippy letters. In her last she has the following concerning Mrs. Miller, who is, we understand, preparing another lecture on Joaquin:

The ever ready Chronicle, has given the the report of a second interview with Mrs. Miller, kindly espousing her cause and speaking pleasantly and encouragingly of her. For this it must have the thanks of her sympathizers and friends, and her own best and most graceful courtesy. She is not, it seems disheartened that San Francisco did not rush to hear her laugh good-naturedly at the poet's whims and expose his eccentricities, but keeps a brave heart, still satisfied to be herself, and tell her own story, rather than emulate Lady Byron, and suffer in silence as her romantic husband advised. Her aim, she says, is to support and provide for the education of her children, so we can't but he p have a little twinge of good feeling for her, though we should try our hardest. No, no! Mr. Miller, we may admire your poetry though some do speak slightingly of the Isles of the Amazons, but domestically we can't worship you.

And success to you little women, mother! As keeper of Maud and Hal, with three mouths to feed, you have hard work enough, without the additional burden to bear of being mi-judged and unappreciated, by the world at large, though you may be deserted at home.

Cool Impudence.

The landlord of a hotel in the Faubourg St. Germain has certainly enough impudence to enable him to "keep a hotel." He has on his sign: "Here they speak English, Spanish, Italian, and German." An English tourist presented himself recently at the hotel. Luckily for him he knew enough French to enable him to ask for a room and a dinner. After dinner he wanted something which he could not express in French, and said to the waiter, "I have not yet met your interpreter. Who is it, then, who speaks here English, Spanish, Italian and German?" "It is the visitors themselves," answered the waiter.

Oh, Very Thin!

The Press tells of a man in Iowa City who dreamed some one attacked him, and who got up in his sleep, and severely injured his wife by dragging her around the floor before he could be awakened.

What a sneak! He dare'nt do it openly, so he pretended to dream. It is some comfort to learn that the court was not imposed on by this transparent dodge, but granted the divorce immediately.

Don't Generalize.

"Never call yourself a sinner," says Ruskin; "that is a very cheap business, and utterly useless. You may get to like it and even beproud of it. But call yourself a liar, a coward, a sluggard, or an evil-eyed jealous wretch, if you indeed find yourself to be in anywise any of these."

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. How to Scare an Angry Dog.

The man in Camden who read Dr. Kitchener's recipe for scaring off a savage dog, is convinced now that the theory will not hold good in practice. Kitchener's instructions were: "Put your head down, look between your legs, and rush at the infuriated animal backward." This man in Camden got over his neighbor's fence and arranged himself according to instructions. He then backed up toward his neighbor's dog with a series of jerks. If Dr. Kitchener had been present he would have been convinced that the dog was not scared. It approached the man with velocity and seized his nose with tenacity. The man had to turn a back somersault in order to get upon his feet in his usual position; and as he did so, something about his nose gave, and in a moment a certain infuriated dog carrying a Roman nose between his teeth, might have been seen at the fence and growling at the late owner of the said organ, who sat upon the top rail wondering if he would ever need handkerchiefs again when the wound stopped bleeding. And now that man is looking for Dr. Kitchener; he wants to interview him.

High Endorsement.

The San Jose Mercury of Tuesday says:

Chiarini's magnificent circus drew a fine house last night. The performance was of a novel and superior character. It is by far the best circus that has yet visited San Jose. There will be an afternoon performance to-day for families, and another grand show this evening for everybody. Chiarini is the acknowledged head of his profession.

There is fame enough for one man! They used to say, "see Naples and die" we say to showmen, "draw a house in San Jose and die." In giving this advice we are actuated by no unkind feelings towards showmen, for we like them. We are sure if it be followed that the mortality among the profession will not be considerably increased. Now Chiarini can travel. He is endorsed by the public of San Jose, and has actually "taken money out of the town," not much, of course, but something above hotel expenses.

Take Warning!

Strange as it may appear there are people in San Francisco who call on Mrs. Fair. We suppose there are people who would go to see a devil-fish if it was safe behind the glass of an aquarium, but we do not think that those who go to see our California devil-fish appreciate the fact that they run some risk in so doing. When Mrs. Fair has one of her "spells" she is not responsible for anything she may do; twelve honorable men have so decided. It would be impossible to hang Mrs. Fair for murder; it is not safe to visit her.

After the Doctor.

A grave-digger, walking in the streets of Windsor, the other day, chanced to turn, and noticed two doctors walking behind him. He stopped till they passed, and then followed on behind them. "And why this?" said they. "I know my place in this procession," said he.

Cut it Short.

She Would be a Singer.

A Terre Haute girl read that small-pox sometimes produces a rich contralto voice, and had herself inoculated. When the neighbors hear her voice plaintively calling home the pigs, as she leans gracefully over the back gate, they say to one another that Adelaide Phillips hasn't such a voice. The sweet voice of the steam-whistle doesn't rival it in expression, nor the tender bray of the patient donkey in melody.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The public are thoroughly enjoying the revival of "Richard III" at this theatre, and crowds the house every night. All the scenery is new, and is the most elaborate ever seen on the California stage. A full list of the scenes appears on our first page. "Richard III" is always a popular play, and with such gorgeous mounting and such a cast, it cannot fail to draw full houses for many nights to come.

Alhambra.

The performance given here by Maguire's California Minstrels is very lively and entertaining. The singing in the first part is very good and the instrumental music by the orchestra under the direction of Geo. T. Evans is beautiful. "Bad Whisky," in which Sam Bickey and Bob Hart appear, is full of fun; Charles Sutton is good in song and dance, and the plantation sketch entitled "Uncle Eph's Dream," which terminates the evening's entertainment is very amusing. On Monday evening Messrs. Farren and Baker will appear in their Irish and Dutch specialties.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.

Next Sunday the grand opera of "Faust" will be presented in German, with Jacob Muller in the great character of Mephistophiles. Next week Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday will be regular opera nights. Great preparations are being made for the production of "L'Africaine."

Bella Union.

M'lle Gracie and Harry Clerke have created a decided sensation at this house by their wonderful gymnastic feats; the new ballet of "La Maja di Sivliglia," in which Mme. Therese, Mona Schmidt, R. G. Marsh and corps de ballet appear, a very pretty, and there is any amount of fun in Johnny Tuers' sketch entitled "Fair Justice in California," in which he impersonates the lady from the sunny South, who is subject to "spells" and has a mania for shooting.

The Atheneum.

A great feature in the capital performance given at this very popular place of amusement are the beautiful duets sung by those accomplished artistes, Miss Agnes Kennedy and Miss May Leslie. Amusing acts, pretty dances and character acts by Tommy Barton and others make up a programme which suits all tastes. To-morrow evening Signor Garbett will appear in his great hat spinning feats, and Guillermo Bruno in India rubber contortions.

The Robinson Conklin Circus.

To-night Pete Conklin, the favorite clown, whose bright sayings, burlesque acting and amusing speeches form a popular feature in the excellent programme presented at the Circus Temple, will take his farewell benefit and will certainly have a good house. This great combination troupe will shortly start for Japan, and next week will positively be their last in this city. New performers will appear and new acts are in preparation.

Platt's Hall.

This evening a vocal and instrumental concert will be given for the benefit of St. Augustine College, Benecia, under the direction of the ladies of the several Episcopal churches in this city, assisted by the following artistes, all well-known and well-appreciated by the public: Mrs. Hall McAllister, Mrs. Louisa F. Mills, Mrs. M. O. Willard, Miss F. Mitchell, Miss Maria Woods, Vernon Lincoln, Samuel D. Mayer, W. O. Campbell, R. Jansen, George H. Powers, Louis Schmidt, Ernst Schlotte, W. Schraubstadter, and G. T. Evans.

Woodward's Gardens.

There was a constant stream of people pouring into these gardens all day yesterday. During the day as many as 10,000 persons must have visited this delightful place. The surprising feats of the Fire King formed but a small part of the attractions presented. The menagerie, the museum, the conservatories, the seal pond, the happy family cage and other objects of interest were surrounded all day by crowds of pleased spectators. The Fire King gives his performances every day this week.

—ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here

Magnetism.

Don't believe in magnetism? Look steadily at a baby when it is sound asleep and it will wake up; or, when nervousness keeps you awake, get some person not nervous to put a hand on you and off you go. Why is this thus?

Edmond Yates has made arrangements to lecture for sixty nights. For each lecture he receives $125.

An Old Landmark.

The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N.E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. E

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double its former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

Hints for Husbands.

Husbands who wish to make home particularly happy, should insist on having a pretty servant girl, and should make her nice presents very often. They should invite their friends to dinner on wash day, and then remark that a lazy wife is a blessing to any man who hasn't got her. If you get drunk, insist on letting the whole neighborhood know the fact by singing and screaming. Compel your wife to pull off your boots when wet, for the gentle hands of a loving wife make a better boot-jack than a piece of unfeeling wood or a lump of cold, unsympathetic cast-iron. Always speak kindly of your wife's relatives. Never mention her father without calling him "that blasted old fool," nor her mother without emphasizing your admiration by the statement that she "is an old catamaran and insufferable shrew." When you go out with your wife, don't speak to her unless you can't help it, and then speak as if she were a deaf dog. Come home every little while with a few long hairs on your coat collar and vest. And don't forget to be particularly ardent in your admiration of every good looking woman you meet—be doubly ardent when your wife is present.

A Nashville Earthquake.

A backwoods pair innocently disrobed in the elevator of a Nashville hotel. Just as they were looking for the bedstead the elevator commenced to move down. "Hello!" shouted the man, "what's up?" "It's an earthquake, and we're being swallowed up alive," answered his wife. Both screamed and howled for help at the top of their voices. People rushed from their rooms, and the most intense excitement prevailed until the elevator reached the ground floor. Then out dashed a man clad in a shirt and a woman in a red flannel petticoat and a sack. An explanation followed, and the two retired to their room, the man muttering as he went: "I thought the infernal thing was mighty small and close for a bed-room, anyhow."

Irish Advertisements.

The two following advertisements appeared in all the Dublin papers, emanating from a well-known livery-stable keeper:

To be sold, cheap, a mail phaeton, the property of a gentleman with a moveable head, as good as new.

To be sold, a splendid gray horse, calculated for a charger, or would carry a lady with a switch tail.

From Saunder's Newsletter: "Ten shillings reward.—Lost, by a gentleman, a white terrier dog, except the head which is black. To be brought to," etc.

Suffering from Remorse.

The Chicago Times publishes an article which claims to show that there have been nearly one hundred murders in that city within seven years, "and not a neck stretched.

It is dreadful to think of one hundred murderers prowling around in Chicago suffering the pangs of remorse. Remorse is worse than hanging. How those poor wretches must suffer!

A Lowell girl claims that she won her husband by a strategem. He fell in the river, she grabbed him, and when he came to the surface he was very much excited, and proposed marriage.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. A COCKNEY WAIL.

The great Pacific journey I have done:
In many a town and tent I've found a lodgment.
I think I've travelled to the setting sun,
And very nearly to the day of judgment!
Like Launcelot, in the quest of Holy Grail,
From Western Beersheba to Yankee Dan,
I've been a seeker, yet I sadly fail
To find the genuine type American.

Where is this object of my youthful wonder,
Who met me in the pages of Sam Slick?
Who opened every sentence with By Thunder!
And whittled always with a bit of stick?
The more the crowd of friends around me thickens,
The less my chance to meet him seems to be.
Why did he freely show himself to Dickens,
To Dixon, Sala, Trollope, not to me?

No one accosts me with the words: We'll, Stranger!
Greets me as a festive cuss, or shouts Old Hoss!
No grim six-shooter threatens me with danger
If I don't "quickly pass the butter, Boss."
Bound friendly boards no cocktail ever passes,
No brandy-smash my morning hour besets;
And petticoats are worn by all the lasses,
And the pianos don't wear pantalettes!

The ladies, when you offer chicken salad,
Don't say: "I'm pretty crowded now, I guess;"
They don't sing Mrs. Barney Williams' ballad
Of Bobbing Round, nor add Sir Ree to Yes.
I, too, have sat like every other fellow,
In many a railway, omnibus, street car;
No girl has spiked me with a fierce umbrella,
And said, "You git, I mean to sit right thar!"

Gone are the Yankees of my early reading!
Faded the Yankee Land of eager quest!
I meet with culture, courtesy, good breeding,
Art, letters, men and women of the best.
Oh! fellow-Britons, all my hopes are undone,
Take counsel of a disappointed man!
Don't come out here, but stay at home in London,
And seek in books the true American!

—London Figaro.

Gounod, the great French composer, has gone stark mad.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. D

The New French Eating House.

Habit is often called a second nature, and it seems that there are people in Paris who grew so much accustomed to strange food during the siege that their stomachs still cry for the irregular menus of that period. To suit such abnormal appetites, a "game-shop" of most peculiar kind has lately been opened in the French capital. It is situated in a street near the Halles, and it bears the inscription, "Au Gourmet sans prejuges." The "epicure without prejudices" can find in this daring establishment "all that there is of most audacious" in the way of siege food. The hooks of its facade are hung with badgers and weasels, wildcats, foxes, owls, jay, rooks, crows, magpies, and fat little puppy dogs. The harmless, necessary "cat" figures largely on the counter, but they do not call it "cat;" the dead Grimalkin is known as gibier des goultieres, or "game of the spouts and tiles." By her side, undivided in death, are suspended rats and mice: and he whose experience in carnivorous exploration has left him a palate equal to such deeds may repair to this emporium and buy his cat-cotlet or his rat fricassee, as in the old hungry days. It is remarkably Parisian to make a new taste out of a vanished necessity; and there is a noble candor in hanging up a tabby in her skin instead of offering her decapitated, nude and maimed, under pretence of a rabbit. But eccentricity has its limits, and decency its laws; and we wait with some curiosity to see whether there will be found even in Paris a sufficient number of "epicures without prejudices" to make a fortune for the proprietor of this odd poulterer's establishment.

Hardened Sinners.

An old agricultural laborer in England tried a singular method of evangelizing his family. Being remonstrated with by the pastor for not bringing up his boys as he should, he replied: "I dunno 'ow 'tis, sir. I order 'em down to pray night and mornin', and when they won't go down I knocks 'em down—and yet they ain't good!"

Mercenary Maid:

A Bangor lover writes to a local paper to complain that while walking home with the darling of his heart she answered his apostrophe to the full moon, by asking him what his income was.

He Waited.

The editor of a Western paper writes: "My wife and I have separated, as we both wanted to be boss, and she was likely to beat me, I left her. She says she will nail me yet and I believe her."

"Figaro's" Town Crier.

Ambrose Bierce, who has been for some past writing up e "Town Crier" department in our London namesake, announces in the issue of Sept. 21st that he is about to leave, This is how he does it;

People who have that most unaccountable of all vices; love of wit and humor, will be glad to hear the Town Crier is going to travel. If he shall ever decide to come back and write some more, the editor will announce that fact in season for everybody to stop taking the paper. There are two or three persons whom the T. C., has not pitched into, but it is too late to late to repair the wrong now; and, considering the brevity of his career, he thinks he has done tolerably well. If his work has been marred by a shameful superfluity of good taste, and weakened by a disgraceful deficiency of malice, the fault is of the head, not of the heart. The T. C.,'s instincts have always been correct, but he never had sense enough to act upon them. He has honestly tried to be as preposterously hateful as anybody, but is conscious of having sometimes achieved only a moderate unpleasantness. Let us agree to forget all this, If the T. C., has ever disgraced himself, or if anybody has sworn to "have it out upon him," let us forget all that too. Perhaps there might be a word of warning given to the unknown intellectual imbecile who will hereafter misconduct this department of the paper; but this is not the place to give it—the courts of law were not established for nothing. In conclusion, the gentle Town Crier knuckles away a tear, executes a convulsive sob, and wishes an adjacent cow a Merry Christmas!

Bosh:

We really must send a few thousand of our Chinamen from San Francisco to New York, in order that the newspaper editors in that city may study the peculiarities of the animal. At present they make a sad mess of it when they attempt to make a Chinaman talk pigeon English:

A New York Mail letter tells how a Chinamen learned how to smoke a cigar: As the puffs curled out from his lips his face was wreathed in smoke and smiles. He took it out and in silvery accents said, "him good." Here a pause and more puffs of smoke—"him hully heap good." Yet another pause and he put one hand up to the cigar—"him berry hully heap good." Here both hands went up and the silence was broken by—"him big berry hully heap good." And then a change came over the spirit of his dream as his face changed from pie-crust to ashes and dust, and things assumed a tinge no longer celestial but cerulean, until, with a gesture indescribable in its expressiveness, he slowly enunciated: "Him muchee, muchee big berry holly heap good, but me no berry well here." Here he took off his washing basin, assuming an attitude indicative of digestive disarrangement, and—let history draw a veil over what followed.

The above sounds very silly to people in San Francisco who have the advantage of an intimate acquaintance with the Chinese people.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.
"Richard III," with the strong cast published on our first page, and the beautiful scenery, dresses and accoutrements which render it so attractive as a spectacle, will be played this evening and at the matinee to-morrow.

Alhambra.
Among the many amusing acts to be played this evening by the bright band of minstrels at this popular theatre are "Bad Whisky," "The Invaded Studio," the great finale of "Scenes from La Sonnambula," and the plantation sketch of "Uncle Eph's Dream." The full bill will be presented at the matinee to-morrow.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.
"Faust" will be given on Sunday night at the California Theatre. Seats can be secured to-morrow.

Bella Union.
Johnny Tuers is great in delineations of darkey character; Mrs. Chas. Ocrieil gains great applause in her pretty character changes; M'lle Gracie and Harry Clarke are stars of the first magnitude, and the ballet of "La Maja di Siviglia" is very attractive. A great bill is in preparation for Saturday night.

The Atheneum.
New acts, new songs, new plays and new farces make this one of the liveliest places of amusement in the city. To-night, Signor Garbelt, the rival of the Maijiltons in hat spinning feats, and Guillaume Bruno will make their first appearance, and a new programme will be presented.

The Robinson-Conklin Circus.
The grand entree by the ladies and gentlemen of the company in Prussian costumes is a popular feature. Pete Conklin, one of the brightest clowns ever seen in the ring, had a splendid house last night, and exerted himself to the utmost to amuse. All the stars will appear at the matinee to-morrow. No circus can afford more pleasure to children than the great Yankee Robinson-Conklin-Samwells combination. To-night, Saturday night and Sunday night will be the last three nights of the circus.

Hayes Park.
The great troupe now performing at the Circus Temple, under the title of the "Yankee" Robinson-Conklin-Samwells Combination, will give their full programme of equestrian, gymnastic and trained animal performances at Hayes Park on Sunday afternoon. These beautiful pleasure grounds are in fine order, and afford a most pleasant retreat after the business of the week is over.

Woodward's Gardens.
There was a constant stream of people pouring into these gardens all day yesterday. During the day as many as 10,000 persons must have visited this delightful place. The surprising feats of the Fire King formed but a small part of the attractions presented. The menagerie, the museum, the conservatories, the seal pond, the happy family cage and other objects of interest were surrounded all day by crowds of pleased spectators. The Fire King gives his performances every day this week.

Treat's Park, Alameda.
The trotting race between Occident and Lucy, announced to come off at Alameda, on Wednesday, Oct. 23d, has by request of many patrons of the turf who would be unable to attend on that day been postponed till Saturday, Oct. 26th.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Idiotic Indian.
Rev. John Tecumseh Johns, a frugal and industrious Ottawa Indian, recently died, leaving his entire property, valued at $30,000, for the education of Baptist preachers in the State of Kansas.

Johns is an idiot. We mean John Tecumseh Johns, and have no reference to other members of the family. Baptists are not not wanted in Kansas. Any Baptist minister who goes to Kansas becomes demoralized quits the ministry and as likely as not starts a hogging game of faro, or something of that kind. John Tecumseh Johns had much better have left his money to good Injins or to some member of his family. We are ashamed of him.

Wanted.
A partner with $500 capital in a Hat Store. Apply at No. 119 Third street. B

An Old Landmark.
The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N.E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. B

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.
So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Sproen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The ladies' department is now enlarged to double the former size, and family dining rooms have been added. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

New Tax Bill.
For kissing a pretty girl, one dollar.

For kissing a homely one, two dollars. The tax is levied in order to break up the custom altogether, it being regarded as a piece of inexcusable absurdity.

For every flirtation, ten cents.

For every young man who has more than one girl, five dollars.

Courting in the kitchen, twenty-five cents.

Courting in the parlor, five dollars.

Courting in romantic places, five dollars, and fifty cents thereafter.

For a girl giving a young man the mitten, three dollars.

For every young man giving his girl the mitten, five dollars and costs of suit.

Seeing a lady home from church, twenty cents.

Failing to see her home, five dollars and costs.

For ladies who paint, fifty cents. Proceeds to be devoted to the relief of disconsolate husbands who have been deceived by outside appearances.

Wearing a low-necked dress, one dollar. Proceeds to be devoted for the relief of frail old bachelors whose earthly welfare has been put in jeopardy by these fashions.

Wearing hoops over eight feet in diameter, eight cents per hoop.

Bachelors over thirty years old, ten dollars and banished to Utah.

Each boy baby, fifty cents.

Each girl baby, ten cents.

Twins, one hundred dollars premium, to be paid out of the fund accruing from the tax on bachelors.

Heads of families of more than thirteen children, fined a hundred dollars and sent to jail.

Sensational Advertising.
Sensational advertisements are not restricted to the laity. A Romish priest has inserted in a Roman Catholic paper in London, the following advertisement:

Kennel! Kennel! Kennel! Contributions will be thankfully received by the Rev. J. L. Biemeane towards a Kennel for the Priest of the Isle of Dogs.

The Kennel of the Isle of Dogs will not be far from Barking.

Girlish Grief.
A New York paper says that when Mr. Greeley was at Warren, Pa., an ardent Liberal girl exclaimed, "Oh, how I would like to kiss him!" But the unfeeling throng never heeded the beautiful creature's yearning; so she withdrew to some obscure spot, dragged out the Weekly Tribune of which her panier was composed, and burying her face in it, wept the bitter tears of disappointment.

A Lawyer's Bull.
"May it please your honor," said a lawyer who was trying a case of assault and battery, "the defendant feloniously beat my client with a certain iron implement known as a wooden pestle."

Mme. Le Normand, who tells fortunes on the European Plan, is the most highly accomplished and versatile lady in this line of business—give her a call at her new rooms, North-West corner of Kearny and Sacramento street. L

Oyster Trade.
The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and "the Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

The Fair Verdict,
Rendered lately by the jury and the public at large, is confirmed that the finest selection of the Fall Millinery Fashions can be found at Mme. E. Shloss', 406 Kearny street, and as she buys her goods for cash, is thereby able to undersell all others. G

Clairvoyance.
Through the solicitation of Dr. J—— we called to test the Natural Medium Powers of Madame Burr's wonderful gift. She gave tests of the past and our present thoughts and intentions, with perfect accuracy. Events in life only known to myself were given, and her predictions of my future life I note with confidence. As I have consulted all mediums in our city, I can truly say Madame Burr is "The Reliable Clairvoyant." Her office—408 Pine street, opposite Russ House.

L A CITIZEN.

Live Well.
Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

A Perfect Rush
To the Branch Auction Store 103 Third street to buy shirts, socks, neck-ties and underwear cheaper than can be had at any other store in the city. Give us a call before going elsewhere. BH

A Pleasant Location.
Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated. A

A FANCY.

Something came to my soul to-day
Out of the misty past,
As a spar from a wrecked and sunken ship
May float to the shore at last;
A vague and shadowy vision
That vanished as soon as it came,
For memory could not grasp it,
Or give it a place and name.

It seemed like a dim remembrance
Of life in another sphere,
And left me in silent wonder
Waiting as if to hear
A voice I had long forgotten,
With message of welcome sound,
Lifting me nearer heaven
As vapors rise from the ground.

There may be times when the spirit
Escapes from the house of clay,
And flies to its native heaven
As a child goes out to play;
And the glimpses that flit so dimly
At times across memory's track,
Are something it finds in heaven,
That it longs to carry back.

Dangerous Lunatics.
The Gold Hill News says:

Mrs. Fair has been decided to be occasionally insane by her first jury. Her mother proved herself to be insane the other day by an insane attempt at suicide; and young Crittenden is roaming the streets of San Francisco, possessed of an insane idea to shoot somebody, yet too insane to do it up in a practical manner, as Mrs. Fair did when she shot his father. Why are these three insane persons allowed to stay out of the Asylum at Stockton?

The News does not quite understand the matter. Mrs. Fair is but mad, north-north west when her spells come on; when the wind is southerly, she knows a derringer from a revolver.

Pretty Fair.
Not a bad pun this, from the Cincinnati Commercial: "It must not be inferred that the country is 'going to the dogs' because the selection of the next President is reduced to a choice between a type-setter and a West Pointer."

Passed Current.
"Is your note good?," asked a merchant of a suspected customer. "Well, I should think it ought to be, as almost everybody has one."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Health and Pleasure.
There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1014 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Pause, Gentle Reader,
And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents. B

To the Unfortunate
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary, 623 Kearney street corner of Commercial. Established in 1854, for the treatment of chronic and special complaints. Dr. Gibbon will make no charge unless he effects a cure. B

Special to the Ladies.
MRS. SCHLOSS begs to announce to her numerous friends, customers, and the ladies of San Francisco generally, that she has imported direct from the East the most elegant stock of Fall millinery goods, consisting of the very latest styles of Paris and New York hats. All are invited to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere, and to particularly note the address—406 Kearny street, near Pine. P

MRS. RIORDAN has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of all Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere. Q

THE GREAT REMEDY

....FOR....

KIDNEY DISEASES

AND CURE FOR

FEVER AND AGUE

KING Quinine Dethroned AT LAST! ☞

COLEMAN'S

Comp. Extract of Eucalyptus!

Dr. J. S. Coleman, of San Francisco, and several eminent physicians of Europe, have been co-operating during the past two years and experimenting in hospital practice with the medicinal properties contained in the Eucalyptus, and the results show that as a cure for Fever and Ague it is better than Quinine, as in 118 test cases, when Quinine had been given unsuccessfully, 91 were cured with Eucalyptus alone.

In the U. S. Marine Hospital, where extensive experiments were made with Dr. Coleman's Extract, severe cases of Fever and Ague were cured with this remedy.

It has been also proven in the same hospital that when prepared by Dr. Coleman's peculiar process, it is a most invaluable remedy for all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinal Canal, and many cases were cured with this preparation alone, that had been pronounced incurable by any other known remedy. For these diseases it can be confidently relied upon as the most efficacious remedy ever offered to the public. Unlike most other valuable remedies, it is a pleasant cordial, and is not rejected by the most sensitive stomach. The popularity which Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus has already attained has given birth to several base imitations. None but Coleman's is genuine.

Dr. Coleman refers by permission to the following well-known gentlemen in San Francisco, who can vouch for its efficacy, from personal experience and knowledge:

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The enterprise of Manager McCullough in producing Shakspeare's tragedy of "Richard III" with a degree of splendor never before attempted has met with encouragement from the public of San Francisco. Every night of the present week the theatre has been crowded and all have been loud in their praise of the manner in which the play is mounted and the excellent style in which it is performed. This piece will be presented at the matinee to-day, and on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday of next week. It will be years before the people of San Francisco have an opportunity of witnessing one of Shakspeare's plays produced in such a perfect manner, all should therefore see this before it is withdrawn to make way for modern comedy.

ALHAMBRA.—The first part of the performance at this house is very fine. The chorus "The Tiger Orsnochee in the Wood," is beautifully sung by the company; Benjamin Clarke, W. P. Baker and J. G. Russell sing popular ballads, and the "Scene from Sonnambula" by M. Ainsley Scott and company, terminates this portion of the evening's entertainment. There is any amount of fun in the interlude which follows, in which Bob Hart, Charley Sutton, Add Ryman and others appear in amusing acts, and "Uncle Eph's Dream" winds up a good programme which will be presented at the matinee to-day and again this evening.

THE FABBRI OPERA SEASON.—To-morrow night will be the third subscription night of the season of German Opera. "Faust" will be presented with the following cast: Margaret, Sra. Inez Fabbri; Mephistopheles, Jacob Muller; Faust, L. Eisenbach; Siebel, Miss Annie Elzer; Valentine, Mons. Charles; Brander, E. Rathewich, Martha, Miss E. Mayer, and Landsqnenet, L. Scherer. Seats may be secured to-day and to-morrow from 10 till 4. The California Theatre will certainly be crowded to its utmost capacity as on the two other Sunday nights when opera has been given. Next week the Fabbri Troupe will perform on Tuesday and Thursday, and again next Sunday "Faust," "Martha," and "L'Africaine," are the operas in preparation.

BELLA UNION.—A more thrillingly sensational performance than that of M'lle Gracie and Harry Clark can scarcely be imagined, and M'lle Gracie is very neat and artistic. Miss Lotta will appear this evening in "The Young Actress," and give five distinct impersonations of character. The new act entitled "Gov. Stanford's Ghost (a sort of night-mare) will be presented for the first time; the ballet of "La Maja di Siviglia" will by general request be repeated, and the performance will conclude with "The Two Gregories."

ATHENEUM.—The new bill presented at this house last night proved quite a success. Guillerma Bruno, the wonderful India-rubber man, will appear in his strange feats to-night; Signor Garbetti in his wonderful hat spinning; Miss Agnes Kennedy in her popular character songs; Miss May Leslie in ballads, and a host of others in a varied programme.

THE YANKEE ROBINSON CIRCUS.—The capital troupe performing at the Circus Temple, comprising Madame Senyah, Pete Conklin, the popular clown; the graceful Moresto Brothers, and the wonderful company of trained animals will all appear at the matinee entertainment to-day and again this evening. To-morrow evening will be the last of the circus. The season has been carried out with great good taste, and there has been much variety in the entertainment given. Few can surpass in management the veteran showman, Yankee Robinson, the hero of a thousand tented fields.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—It is reported that this theatre will open once more to-night under the management of E. G. Burt for the production of an Australian play with the suggestive title of "Hazard." We are not informed whether or not subscribers to the opera season will find their tickets good for this performance.

PLATT'S HALL.—On Monday evening Edith O'Gorman, the really eloquent lectures who has suffered from disgraceful persecution in San Francisco, and come out of her trials most triumphantly, will deliver her farewell lecture The subject will be "Rome in the United States," and the matter will be entirely original. Miss O'Gorman will read the audience a number of threatening letters she has received during her stay in San Francisco. There is no doubt about there being a large attendance on this occasion and all who go will be well entertained.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—The Fire King.—There was a constant stream of people pouring into these gardens all day last Sunday. During the day as many as 10,000 persons must have visited this delightful place. The surprising feats of the Fire King formed but a small part of the attractions presented. The menagerie, the museum, the conservatories, the seal pond, the happy family cage and other objects of interest were surrounded all day by crowds of pleased spectators. The Fire King gives his performances to-day and again on Sunday will bend red-hot irons with his bare feet, drink burning alcohol and handle red-hot iron with impunity.

CITY GARDEN.—Fire-Kings are the sensations of the day. The fire-king at the City Garden announces that he will walk through a blazing fire twenty feet high to-morrow, which no other person can even approach within twenty feet. August Baisley will make a balloon ascension. The three flying men will perform thirty feet from the ground, and other entertainments will follow. A grand masquerade and fancy ball will be given at the Pavilion on Saturday, Oct. 26th.

CLIFF HOUSE.—There is so much horse talk at present that it is worth while to go out on the Cliff House road where one can see the best trotters in the State driven by their owners. All the horse men make Captain Foster's famous hostelry a sort of headquarters.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York "Le Roi Carotte" is in the second month of its run at the Grand Opera House, and is unceasing in its attractiveness....."Diamonds" continue to draw crowded houses at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theater. "The Road to Ruin," "The Inconstant," "Extremes" and "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "The Belle's Stratagem," are underlined for speedy production......"Agnes," at The Union Square, made an immense hit, and there is at present no apparent limit to its "run." ......"Arrah-na-Pogue," with the Boucicaults, has achieved as great success at Booth's Theatre, that it is kept upon the bills, and the production of novelties is delayed......The season proper has opened at Wallack's popular theatre, with new attractions for the public, and most flattering promises for its success. It has assumed a new lustre in the "dull season" that has just closed for another year. Its decorations consists of new carpets, new frescoes and new panels of elaborate design on the walls of the auditorium. The colors are crimson and ashes-of-roses, the centers of the panels being floral in design and particularly cosy in effect. The scenery, always noted, has been studiously and abundantly added to. The season opened with the comedy of "Pygmalion and Galatea." Of this drama, one of the best ever produced by W. S. Gilbert, too much cannot be said in its praise. It moves in crescendo to a climax, and its story is interesting as well as pure. It is one of that stamp of comedies which alone should be produced for the public's legitimate amusement. It ran for more than two hundred nights at the Haymarket Theatre, London, where it first attracted than could be admitted, and the success it meets in New York will be a fair test of the cultivation in the two cities. Mr. George Boniface takes the part of Pygmalion, and Miss Katherine Rogers a careful and pleasing actress, that of Galatea. The scene is laid in Athens, and the story turns upon the tale of the sculptor who become enamored of his statue, which was warmed into life by the gods for his gratification. The statue, on becoming a woman, loves him, and is loved in return; but finding that he remains true to his wife she retires to her crimson niche, is again chilled into marble, and, by an ingenious arrangement of gauze, gradually dissolves from sight. The effect is very striking ......Niblo's Garden is rapidly rebuilding, and November 4th will be opened. Over 400 workmen are employed in completing the building. The roof is on. The house will be under its former management, Jarrett & Palmer......At the Olympic building, Mlle Aimee, at the head of a strong troupe of opera bouffe performers, under the direction of A. O. Chizzola & Co., appeared at the Olympic on Monday night, Oct. 14 and began a two weeks' engagement. Offenbach's famous "La Grande Duchesse" is the piece chosen for the first run of the new season. Among the artists of Mlle Aimee's company are Milles Bocelli and Roland, Mons. Juteau, Lecuyer, Mares, Nardin and Gabel. The last named, it will be remembered, made a famous hit, or rather a succession of such, in the funny 'Gendarme' duet, during the early career of "Genevieve" in New York. The chief characters in the G. D. will be represented as follows: Duchesse, Aimee; Fritz, M. Juteau; Gen. Boum, M. Mesmyer; Prince Paul, M. Marons; Wanda, Mlle Roland.......At Wood's Museum, Dominick Murray has been appearing in his new sensation drama entitled "Escaped from being Hung." The Mercury says: "The piece was written for Mr. Murray, and affords him full opportunity for showing his versatility. At the opening, as a physician, he poisons the lady he is attending, and robs the house of valuable papers. He passes through numerous scenes, and finally becomes lodged in Sing Sing, from which he escapes by swimming under water. He obtains air by means of an artificial duck through which a pipe extends to the atmosphere above. An actual escape of this kind is said to have been made from Sing Sing a quarter of a century ago by a prisoner named Endymoine. The hero of the play, however, comes to grief in the end, and is shot. He is a most double-distilled villian and as such is interesting"......George Coes, Ricardo, the female impersonator, and a good company are at White's Athenæum, formerly San Francisco Minstrel Hall. The San Francisco Minstrels are doing a good business at the St. James Theatre. A burlesque of "Diamonds" is the latest novelty. ......Kittie Leroy, jig dancer, Blanche Selwyn change artist, commence an engagement Oct. 14th ......Maguire and Emerson's Minstrels crowd 720 Broadway nightly. The burlesque of "Raw Carrote" is underlined. The New York Dispatch says: "Billy Emerson, who has with great justice been styled the king of song and dance men, is a comedian and humorist of very brilliant powers. His jokes are witty and original, and never fails to excite hearty laughter. Harry Stanwood, who should be named the emocrat of banjoists, retains his firm hold on the good graces of his admirers, and in his button-bursting propensities forcibly reminds one of David Copperfield's nurse, Pegotty. The other members of the company are artists of much more than usual favor, and invariably succeed in pleasing...... The New York Mercury says of the performance of "Faust" at the Academy of Music on the 2d: "In contrast to the fair-haired and blue-eyed embodiment of Kaulbach's pictures, presented in the Margaret of Nilsson, that of Lucca was round, plump, and dark-haired. Nilsson depicts an innocent and girlish nature, while the Margaret of Lucca is impulsive, and quickens rapidly into passion. The presentation is different, but both are charged with the electricity of genius, and both are absorbing. Lucca's voice was heard to far greater advantage in the music of Gounod than in that of Meyerbeer. She was glorious, and the audience shouted and waved hats and handkerchiefs in their delight. The Siebel of the evening, Signora Sanz, is a very pretty woman, with black hair and a redundant figure. She rose from a sick bed to sing the part, and was, therefore, in indifferent voice. Vizzani, the new tenor, has an excellent method and an agreeable voice of considerable melody, though of moderate compass and strength. Sparapani, also a new arrival, has a baritone of limited power and richness, but sings pleasantly, and was several times applauded. The Mephistopheles of the basso, Jamet, was well known to opera-goers last season." On the 4th, "La Traviata" was presented with Clara Louise Kellogg as Violetta. Lucca appeared at the matinee on the 5th, in "L'Africaine." .....The Thirty-fourth Street Theatre was reopened Sept. 30, after redecoration, by Oakley Shey, with his noted Quinooplexal Troupe, composed of Minnie Jackson, Leopar Brothers, Martha Wren, James Collins, George Thatcher, Hannah Birch, Charles Gleason, Goodyear and Whiting, George Buckley and Hugh Haggerty. There was both an orchestra and a brass band, and a crowded audience of 1,500.

The engagement of the Lydia Thompson Troupe at the Globe Theatre, Boston, has been thus far extremely successful—the audiences being large and fashionable and demonstrative in their expressions of approval.

Sothern has been playing Brother Sam at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, but competent critics do not deem the performance equal to his Dundreary or David Garrick.

Miss Laura Joyce, recently connected with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Paul's company in England, is

J. H. Budworth has joined Moran and Dixey's Minstrel Troupe in Philadelphia.

Walter Bray and Lizzie Warren opened at Nixon's Amphitheatre, Chicago, on the 7th.

The Memphis New Varieties opened on the 30th with J. M. Schooles, manager; Frank Jones, stage manager.

The Dramatic News says: "Lillie Hall was to close at Pittsburgh on the 5th, and take her immemorial song and dance blue jockey jacket and white satin breeches to San Francisco.

Lunatics in love with actors grow apace. Lately it was one who pursued Miss Lydia Thompson in New York, and now it is a stage-struck young lady of Syracuse, who has left her paternal home to follow Mr. Lawrence Barrett, disguised in boy's attire, and who has only been thwarted in her persistent efforts by temporary confinement at the instance of her relatives, in a lunatic asylum.

The old American Theatre, on Walnut street, Philadelphia, was sold at auction on the 1st for $90,000, to M. F. Campbell, of New York, who talks of renovating it, and making it either a museum or a variety theatre. The Seventh-street Theatre of Philadelphia, was offered at auction, but did not bring the required price, and was bought in.

A wigmaker of Boston, followed Lingard to Chelsea, Mass., recently, for a bill of $60. Lingard had not the funds at the moment, and some of the company found the money. The landlord of the hotel held the troupe's baggage for their bills These were soon paid, but a train was lost by the delay, and Lingard promised to make the man pay damages.

Josie Mansfield talks of adopting the stage. Probably the adoption of some affluent manager would be nearer the mark.

The Boston Saturday evening Gazette, speaking of the performances of the Lydia Thompson Troupe at the Globe Theatre, after highly commending the performances of Beckett, Willie Edouin, Miss Lydia Thompson, Miss Eliza Weathersby, good-naturedly remarks:

> Of the additions to the company we cannot speak so favorably; Miss Amy Sheridan displaying but little in the way of talent except legs, which, after all, are to be viewed less in the light of talents than of gifts. However, these she certainly displays to an extent that does more credit to her good nature than to her good taste or her judgment.

Lester Wallack appeared on the 14th, at the Boston Theatre in his own play of "Rosedale." He was supported by Miss Effie Germon.

Miss Ella Wesner, accompanied by Helen Josephine Mansfield, sailed for Brest, France, in the steamship St. Laurent, Oct 5th. Although the former was extensively billed and advertised to commence an engagement at the Theatre Comique Oct. 7th, she took no pains to inform the manager of her departure. How true it is that "evil communications corrupt good manners!"

Julien Martinetti died the week before last in New York. He was forty years of age. He had been ill for some weeks with liver complaint. His remains were interred in the family lot in Greenwood cemetery.

The First Sunday Evening Concert was given at the Grand Opera House on Oct 6th, but attracted a somewhat meagre audience composed almost entirely of males. The artistes were Miss Rose Hersee, Sparapani, Vizzani, Ronconi and Leviëlli, assisted by the combined orchestras of the Italian Opera and the Grand Opera House

Mr. C. W. Couldock commenced a week's engagement at the Pittsburgh, Pa., Opera House on Sept. 30th, opening as Luke Fielding in "The Willow Corpse," before one of the largest audiences of the season.

Clairvoyance.

Through the solicitation of Dr. J—— we called to test the Natural Medium Powers of Madame Burr's wonderful gift. She gave tests of the past and our present thoughts and intentions, with perfect accuracy. Events in life only known to myself were given, and her predictions of my future life I note with confidence. As I have consulted all mediums in our city, I can truly say Madame Burr is "The Reliable Clairvoyant." Her office—408 Pine street, opposite Russ House.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

Pioche, Nev.—W. J. Cogswell, with a company, is going to open the Pioche Theatre for the Fall and Winter season.

Stockton.—Professor Daniels, a "Wizard," gave an entertainment at the theatre last Saturday. Since then there has been no amusement in Stockton.

Hamilton, Nev.—The clever little vocalist and danseuse, Miss Maggie Knight, Harry Lorraine, Patsy Mason, and others are performing at the Athenæum.

Carson City.—George Fane, who used to appear in character changes at the Theatre Comique in this city, was found dead in his bed last Sunday. He had retired from the stage and was pursuing his regular business of decorator and paper-hanger. He had been on a prolonged spree and his constitution gave way.

Salt Lake.—Miss Jean Clara Walters, D. McKenzie, and others have been playing in a series of burlesques, comedies and dramas. On the 12th the performance consisted of the burlesques of "Alladdin." On Monday, the 14th, a play entitled "Sogerth Aroon," by the irrepressible John Maguire, of benefit fame, was to have been produced.

Oakland.—Chiarini's Circus performed on Wednesday to one of the largest assemblages of people ever brought together in Oakland. One of the San Francisco papers says that Oakland is a poor town for lectures and theatrical performances, but a circus will always draw. Such a circus as Chiarini's would draw a house in Galilee, which is as bad a show town as San Jose. The Transcript speaking of the performance says:

San Jose.—The San Jose papers announced that Brohaska, of the Opera House, "had at considerable outlay engaged the talented young star" E. T. Stetson to make his appearance on the evenings of Oct. 21st, 22d and 23d. Of course there wasn't any "outlay;" there was no money paid but it was thought that if Stetson had nothing to do and wanted to do something for nothing very badly, he might risk playing in "Neck and Neck" as a sort of neck or nothing alternative. But he would'nt, he said he would if he could, but he could'nt because he wanted to go East. San Jose was insulted and the Evening Tribune of Wednesday fairly howled. It had nearly a column about the insult offered to San Jose and headed it thus:

E. T Stetson, the tragedian, plays Brohaska for a full-fledged Hoosier—Stetson gone East and the San Jose engagement "busted."

We have only room for an extract:

The Opera House was engaged for Wednesday, Oct. 23d, by the Tanners and Cobblers, and Brohaska, after considerable trouble, got the Tanner's to give up the hall for that night to Stetson. The preliminary arrangements were made and everything looked serene until a few days ago when Brohaska received a letter from Stetson, in which he said that he should leave for the East in the morning and therefore could not perform in San Jose.

Just fancy! The Tanners and Cobblers gave up the hall and then Stetson would'nt play. Real hanging would'nt be too bad for such a man. The Tanners and Cobblers would have been sure to draw a house (as they did'nt charge for admission) and Brohaska lost the use of the money, they were to pay, for a day or two. The Tribune thinks that Stetson is the meanest man who ever breathed for not coming down to San Jose and playing to a $60 house and then paying his expenses back. We don't. We are sorry Mr. Stetson made any promise to Brohaska and inconvenienced him, but as for the San Jose people, we don't see what they have to say about it. They would'nt have gone to the theatre anyhow and Brohaska has probably made money by Mr. Stetson's failure to appear.

Portland, Or.—G. B. Waldron after a most successful season in Salem returned to Portland, and opened the Oro Fino Theatre for the Fall and Winter season on the 14th. "Wild Oats" was the play. John Wilson's Circus showed to good business at Salem Fair and Portland, Or. Wilson had a big benefit at Portland, Oct. 14th, Showed at the Hillsboro Fair on the 15th, 16th and 17th, and from there started for California, overland. Persons wishing to write to any member of the company may address their letters in accordance with the following route: will show at Lafayette Oct. 18; McMinnville, 19; Dallas, 21; Albany, 22; Corvallis, 23; Harrisburg, 24; Junction, 25; Eugene, 26; Drain's Ranch, 27; Oakland, 28; Roseburg, 29; Canyonville, 30; Grave Creek, 31; Rock Point, November 1; Jacksonville, 2; Cottonwood, 3; Yreka, 4; Fort Jones, 5; Rough and Ready, 6; Callahan's Ranch, 7; Trinity Center, 8; Weaverville, 9; French Gulch, 11; Shasta, 12; Red Bluff, 14; Tehama, 15; Chico, 16. The veteran manager bought about forty young Oregon draught horses before starting homeward, and intends to cross the mountains in stage time, as will be seen by the route laid out above.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night the regular acting edition of "Richard III" will be presented with the beautiful scenery which has been the theme of general conversation since Monday last and has given such pleasure to the thousands who have witnessed it. But few opportunities remain to see this great revival of one of Shakspeare's most popular tragedies. To-morrow night will be opera night.

Alhambra.

To-night, P. F. Baker and T. J. Farron will commence an engagement at this house, and appear in two of their most famous Dutch impersonations, Chris and Lena. Miss Kate Denin has been engaged to support these artistes. The usual first part will be given, and then the four-act drama of "Chris and Lena" will be presented with the cast published on our first page. In addition to being character actors of high reputation, Messrs. Baker and Farron are fine vocalists, and have created a sensation wherever they have appeared.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.

The California Theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity last night. "Faust" was presented in fine style; Signora Inez Fabbri sang and acted the role of Marguerite with charming taste and feeling, and Jacob Muller in the character of Mephistopheles surpassed all his former efforts and achieved a veritable triumph. Miss Annie Elzer made a charming Siebel, filling the role to the satisfaction of everyone. "Martha" will be presented to-morrow evening, when another audience equally as large and still more fashionable, will doubtless be present.

Bella Union.

This house was crowded on Saturday night and again last night, and the new programme gave unqualified satisfaction to all present. The sketch entitled "Governor Stanford's Ghost" is very amusing; the popularity of the ballet by Mme. Therese, M. Schmidt and corps de ballet continues undiminished: the wonderful feats of M'lle Gracie, the lady with the iron jaw, are rewarded by storms of applause and everything in the programme is pleasing.

The Atheneum.

This house is doing a capital business. Everyone goes there because there is something in the very varied programme presented to suit all tastes. Good music, beautiful ballads by Miss Agnes Kennedy and Miss May Leslie, graceful dances, amusing acts, wonderful gymnastic feats and other performances specified on our first page, make an evening spent here pass pleasantly away. By correspondence which appears in another column it will be perceived that J. H. Church the enterprising manager has been tendered a complimentary benefit by the members of his company. It will take place on Friday next.

The Robinson. Conklin Circus.

This circus will open this evening under canvas on the old circus lot on Jackson street. The programme will be changed, and Pete Conklin, the popular clown will give a new budget of jokes and witticisms The pavilion is spacious; it is the same in which this troupe gave their exhibitions coming across the continent. After all a circus does not seem a circus to some people unless it is under canvas and many will go to the Pavilion who did not care to visit the Circus Temple.

Platt's Hall.

To-night Edith O'Gorman, the eloquent lecturess, who has suffered from disgraceful persecution in San Francisco, and come out of her trials most triumphantly, will deliver her farewell lecture. The subject will be "Rome in the United States," and the matter will be entirely original. Miss O'Gorman will read the audience a number of threatening letters she has received during her stay in San Francisco There is no doubt about there being a large attendance on this occasion and all who go will be well entertained.

Woodward's Gardens.

The cars ran every minute or two to these gardens yesterday loaded down with visitors to the most popular pleasure gardens in the United States. The performance of the Fire King and other entertainments in the pavilion delighted and astonished all. This human salamander will appear daily during the present week.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The Australian play of "Hazard" was played for the first time on Saturday night and repeated last night. "Hazard" possesses some literary merit, and the characters of Captain Swindleton Wylde, Sponge Lofer and some others are well drawn. The plot is a pleasing transparency—thin in fact, as was the audience on both occasions of the representations of the play. Jas. J. Bartlett is a rather heavy comedian but acts in a natural and unaffected style, Frank Hussey does some good nigger business in the part of Jake, Miss Blanche Clifton is a pleasing actress and played the part of Matilda well. Miss Sallie Hinckley was very good in the character of Mrs. Gauntley. John Woodard did some capital acting as Sponge Lofer, and Frank Rea was particularly effective in the role of Byceton. We understand that this play will be repeated to-night.

Miss Zoe Gayton.

This lady, who recently played a star engagement at the Cleveland Opera House, is in town. Miss Gayton brings two or three new pieces with her, and will, doubtless, appear soon on our local boards.

The blind see, the deaf hear, the lame walk, all curable chronic diseases speedily cured by

Edmund Yates.

This popular English novelist made his debut in New York, the other evening, to a crowded auditory. To many of the people who saw him for the first time, Mr. Yates more than filled the ideal formed of him. It is a common and popular superstition that every man who writes half a dozen successful books must have a pale and consumptive appearance; that he must be weak in the knees; that he will be afflicted with bad hearing and a difficulty in his eyesight. Therefore all were more than disagreeably disappointed when a tall, six-foot gentleman, in unexceptionable evening dress, with the orthodox white tie, the brawn and muscle of a Life Guardsman, stepped upon the platform to receive one of the heartiest welcomes ever given by a New York audience to a stranger. Mr. Yates has large, massive features, parts his hair in the middle, and he got to work last evening with the ease and force of an accomplished cricketer. To be brief, he bowled his way into the hearts of his audience, and made them feel as easy as he felt himself, which, without any disrespect to Mr. Yates, is no slight accomplishment.—N. Y. Paper.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrepins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Rushing Business at the Bivalve.

So great is the rush of business at the Bivalve that W. Spreen, the proprietor, finds it necessary to enlarge his accommodations for ladies and families. The Bivalve Oyster and Dining Saloon, 640 Market st., three doors below Kearny, is immensely popular. A

CAPRICE.

BY W. D. HOWELLS.

She hung the cage at the window;
"If he goes by," she said,
"He will hear my robin singing.
And when he lifts his head,
I shall be sitting here to sew,
And he will bow to me, I know."

The robin sang a love-sweet song,
The young man raised his head:
The maiden turned away and blushed:
"I am a fool," she said,
And went on embroidering in silk,
A pink-eyed rabbit, white as milk.

The young man loitered slowly
By the house three times that day:
She took her bird from the window;
"He need not look this way,"
She sat at her piano long,
And sighed, and played a death-sad song

But when the day was done, she said:
"I wish that he would come!
Remember, Mary, if he calls
To-night—I'm not at home."
So when he rang, she went—the elf!—
She went and let him in herself.

They sang full long together
Their songs love-sweet, death-sad;
The robin woke from his slumber,
And rang out, clear and glad,
"Now go," she coldly said; "'tis late:"
And followed him—to latch the gate.

He took the rosebud from her hair,
While, "You shall not!" she said;
He closed her hand within his own,
And while her tongue forbade
Her will was darked in the eclipse
Of blinding love upon his lips.

Clairvoyance.

Through the solicitation of Dr. J—— we called to test the Natural Medium Powers of Madame Burr's wonderful gift. She gave tests of the past and our present thoughts and intentions, with perfect accuracy. Events in life only known to myself were given, and her predictions of my future life I note with confidence. As I have consulted all mediums in our city, I can truly say Madame Burr is "The Reliable Clairvoyant." Her office—408 Pine street, opposite Russ House.

San Francisco and Colorado River Railway.

Office of the San Francisco & Colorado River Railway Co.

No. 305 Sansome Street,

San Francisco, Sept. 24, 1872.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE City and County of San Francisco, having passed an Ordinance submitting to the Electors the question of granting a subsidy to our company, for the construction of a Railroad to the Colorado River, to connect with the Railroads being built from the East, we are now in better position to ask the citizens of San Francisco to join us, and urge the importance of the undertaking and beg to say:

FIRST—We propose in good faith to build a first-class railroad, with all the dispatch possible, and certainly within the time provided in the Ordinance.

SECOND—We pledge ourselves as men to the fact that we are entirely disconnected and free from all association with the Central or Southern Pacific Railroad Companies or their managers or Directors, and are in genuine competition with them, and we have no association or connection with any other railroad company or combination in existence, and expect to have none, except business or running arrangements with lines from the East and South which hereafter may desire to exchange business with us.

THIRD—We invite every citizen of the City and County of San Francisco to subscribe to our stock Our Books are open to all. Our Company is not a close corporation, and in no sense a monopoly. We particularly invite every Taxpayer to subscribe, at least as much as he will be called upon to contribute to the subsidy, and thus, in a manner, free of legal difficulties, participate in the advantages growing out of the enterprise.

FOURTH—A Committee of the Board will be in attendance at the office of the Company, No. 305 Sansome street, from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M. daily—Sundays excepted, to receive subscriptions, and duly authorized parties will wait upon the citizens generally, giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

FIFTH—This being an independent and competing road, there can be no reason for those who desire the success of such an enterprise to decline their co-operation, which we cordially invite.

MONDAY..............OCTOBER 21, 1872

Very Peculiar,

We have the following from the Truckee Republican's report of the late railroad accident:

> The passengers say that the osculation of the cars in rounding the curves was so great that they could not stand up.

"Osculation" is a pretty word and osculation is most pleasant in a railroad car, in church, in the parlor, in the conservatory, in fact almost anywhere, when no one is looking on. We don't think, however, that "osculation" could cause a railway accident. The Republican had better consult its Webster's Unabridged.

Mean.

Some one wickedly says that the reason why very young girls usually take the prizes at fairs for making good bread, is because their mothers make it for them, while the older girls think they can manage alone, and fail miserably.

Poor Piper.

Piper evidently does not understand his position as a candidate for Congress. He cannot get the idea out of his head that he was chosen by the Democratic Party because he possessed some fitness for the office. This is really not the case, and the sooner Piper realizes the fact the better it will be for him. It was simply because he had money that Piper was nominated, and now, when he is called upon to disburse for the benefit of the party he growls. It was fondly imagined by the party that Piper would hand out his money and hold his peace. Piper is no such man. If he spends his money he wants to have some fun for it. He will talk and expects to find hearers because he has paid his money. Public speaking is not Piper's forte. He made a horrid mess of it when he addressed the Ninth Ward Greeley and Brown Club on Thursday night. His speech was a very muddled composition. He started out by saying, "Horace Greeley was a simple farmer's son and like myself he struck out to make himself a history and fortune, and is to-day the foremost man in the nation." Now Piper does not, we hope, expect to make a history for himself; he had much better stick to making money. It sounded well for Piper to boast of being a farmer's boy, but he couldn't stop there; he must needs boast of his "ancestors." Now Democrats don't care about ancestors, so this was impolitic. Piper said he was ashamed of Pennsylvania, and continued:

> The bones of my ancestors have laid there more than two hundred years. But they have been bribed with the flesh-pots of Egypt—bought with the money you and I have to pay into the Federal treasury.

Who thought it worth while to bribe the bones of Piper's ancestors with the flesh-pots of Egypt, and afterwards buy them, Piper did not mention. Piper couldn't keep off the subject of his ancestors, whom he evidently considered remarkable. He went on talking about them:

> My ancestors fought for this country. My great-grandfather was killed at Brandywine on one side and at Yorktown on the other side. My father fought in the last war with England for fourteen months, and was honorably discharged; at least I never heard the contrary.

Piper's great-grandfather, if he was Piper's great-grandfather, may lay claim to have been a really remarkable man, if it be true that he was "killed at Brandywine on one side and at Yorktown on the other side," and showed a skill in changing sides not surpassed by any politician of the present day. Then, after all this talk about "ancestors," Piper tries to make a point against Mr. Clayton by saying he is a gentleman. He exclaims:

> I want to go by the free and voluntary vote of my fellow-citizens; but if the people prefer an English gentleman to an American mechanic, so be it; but I shall stay here and fight it out to the bitter end.

Then this stupid Piper winds up by telling how much money he paid for his nomination ($7,000), and swears that he won't pay another cent. Really, Piper, the more we see and hear of you, the more we are amazed that any men of even average intelligence can be so carried away by self-conceit. There is not a man in San Francisco who thinks you are fit to go to Congress, but they know you have money and expect you to spend it.
